Speaks Out !!!

FLEISCHER

WHEN Angelo Dundee announced that Jimmy Ellis, the WBA version of a world champion, would fight d Patterson in Sweden, many crafty of the boxing business doubted the n of the move from the Ellis side.

was apparent that Ellis was taking the gamble while Patterson had everything ain and little to lose.

Ellis got the decision. Referee Harold an, imported from New York, called ine rounds to six, and there were no ges to say him nay.

However, thousands of fight fans who the contest on television screens were vinced that Patterson had given Ellis eating.

was not at the Stockholm ringside. I not, in advance, rate the fight as being th the time and money necessary for a to Sweden.

saw the TV picture and felt that it wed Patterson the winner—not by ch, but a winner.

However, I am not inclined, ever, to ge a fight by what I see on the screen. have the highest regard for Valan as a ree, and a man of integrity.

The solution, it would appear, lies in a atch. There, again, is the Ellis connec- beset with the problem of a possible ack.

uppose Patterson, emboldened by what did at Stockholm, and encouraged by at he learned about Ellis, gave Jimmy an official and indubitable beating?

The Ellis connection has to weigh many considerations. First, is it justified, from the side of wisdom, money and technical advantage, in leading Jimmy into another battle with Patterson?

In view of the decision favoring Ellis at Stockholm, is the Jimmy side forced to clean up the record and try for an official and emphatic victory over Patterson?

Is the money to be derived from a second fight with Floyd important enough to justify the obvious risks?

Does Ellis have to clear Patterson from his path in order to reestablish the position he held before his adventure in Sweden?

The Man in the Street says, "What's all the shooting about? If there is any serious, well-founded doubt that Ellis beat Patterson, let them fight again. There are many places where this rematch would be welcomed and would make money beyond the possibilities of avarice."

If, when and where a Patterson-Ellis rematch is to be consummated lies in the decision of Mike Malitz, head of Sports Action, Inc., which conducted the elimination carnival that left Jimmy the WBA version of the title holder.

How does Mike look at it? Let him do the talking:

"At this time we are not offering Ellis and Patterson for a rematch. We may do that later on, or we may never invite bids for that pairing.

"Chris Dundee would like it to happen at Miami Beach. But he does not have the fight.

"We cannot set up a contest for Ellis because, for one important thing, he suffered a badly fractured nose at Stockholm and will be sidelined for at least three months.

"Whether it was a Patterson punch or a butt, Ellis came away with a nose so badly injured that it required a long surgical job. The nose was fractured in three places.

"You know how rematches of that sort develop. It has to be a matter of striking while the iron is hot.

"In the meantime there is the entry in the record book which says that Ellis beat Patterson, and that, it would appear, is that.

"We face no urgency for Ellis to fight Patterson again. Beating Patterson again would not benefit Jimmy."

There is much in what Malitz says. Ellis holds a decision over Patterson, Patterson never has protested this verdict, and Ellis is mending a busted beak.

Be all that as it may, the fact remains that Joe Frazier's position as the No. 1 contender for the heavyweight title has been strengthened by the controversy over the Valan verdict.

As this issue of The Ring Magazine goes to press, the Cassius Clay situation still lies in abeyance.

The Ring continues to rate him the world champion, with Frazier No. 1 behind him, and Ellis No. 2.

It would appear that the Federal courts have assumed a more determined stand against draft registrants who refuse induction.

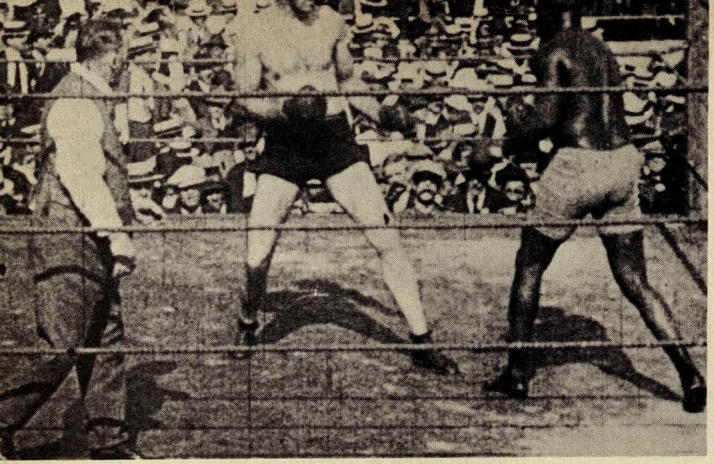
The Supreme Court has been in session only since October 7, so there is no guideline as to how it looks upon cases resembling that of Cassius Clay, who has arrived at the court of last appeal.

Clay's recent televised utterances have been quite tempered. He indicates that he needs money. Efforts to cash in on Cassius through affairs disguised as exhibitions have failed.

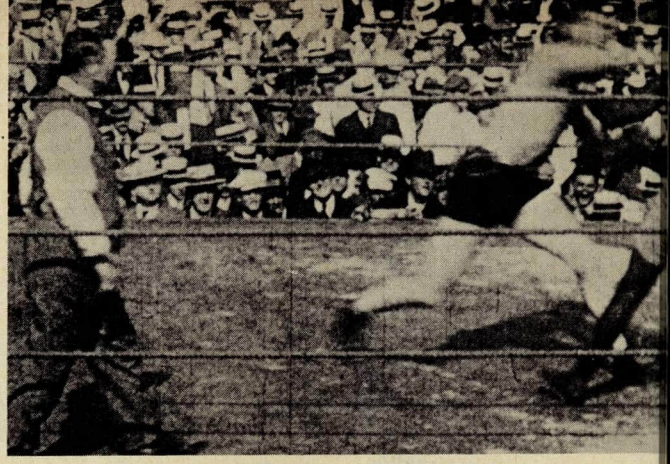
He fights in defense of his championship. Or he goes to jail, with hope that the Federal courts will cut his sentence from five to two, or at most three, years.

With George Chuvalo back in contention after an emphatic KO victory over Manuel Ramos, Patterson refurbished by the fight with Ellis, Sonny Liston seeking a return to the higher echelon and circumstances lifting Oscar Bonavena to the No. 3 rating, the heavyweight division has spurted to greater activity than it has shown in recent years.

Jerry Quarry has cast off his bandages after a long period of recovery from injury, Alvin Lewis demands consideration after having dumped Eduardo Corletti out of a Detroit ring, and the goose honks high.



Jess Willard and Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion, are socking away at each other in heat No. 7 of what was to be a 26-round battle at the Oriental Race Track in Havana on Easter Sunday in 1915. Jack Welch is the referee.



They are in round No. 26 and Jess is going at Jack very much on title b This is one of the frames lifted out of the movie of the fight, which i possession of Jimmy Jacobs, who owns the largest collection of fight f in the world.

N.Y. STAGE SMASH REVIVES JOHNSON-WILLARD MYSTERY

By NAT LOUBET

JACK Johnson is back . . . and Broadway has him!

A playwright, Howard Sackler, and a black actor, James Earl Jones, reawaken man's conscience in this time of social upheaval. The vehicle is "The Great White Hope." In it Jack Johnson, once world heavyweight champion, again is brought to scrutiny.

The part of Johnson, played by Jones (known in the play as Jack Jefferson) is fictionalized to suit the aims of the playwright as he attempts to present the plight of the black man in the early 1900s.

There is no sustained effort on the part of the author to maintain any degree of authenticity as he picks up the threads of Johnson's life soon after Jack has won the world heavywei championship from Tommy Burns on that Australian day 1908.

A white racist referee purported to be part of the clique cahoots with "the promoter," mouths these words immediat after Johnson wins the championship:

"No sir, I'll tell you what we do. We beat those bushes another White Hope, and if he's no good we find another Wh Hope. We'll find them and we'll boost them up till one sta What the hell is this country, Ethiopia?"

Strong sentiments with strong words and good theatre. But this stage of Johnson's career he had not as yet achieved animosity of the sporting group indicated.

The true Johnson was a fun-loving, good natured son nature. He was constantly in minor troubles, constantly in sk mishes with the law. His escapades in fast cars and faster soc strata would have made him acceptable today as a "swinger."

In the times in which he lived he was a social outcast not o because of his four marriages, three with white women, but his contempt for convention.

Johnson outraged society and in turn was pressed to conv to tradition or suffer the consequences.

In the play Johnson is whitewashed, and portrayed as misunderstood black man victimized by whitey. That he w mistreated in real life there is no doubt. That he was not angel and certainly would have been chastised by society his other antics, without his inter-racial marriages, is also true

The real Johnson's trafficking with white women was straw that broke the camel's back. The play, on the other ha depicts a Johnson whose sole desire was to be left to live his li finally smashed for daring to live with a white girl.

The author brings to life for the play-goer the events s rounding one of boxing's biggest mysteries, the question whet Johnson had taken a dive in his fight with Jess Willard on t hot Easter Sunday in Havana, Cuba.

The play carries the action through Johnson's jumping bail a Mann Act charge during 1912, up to his losing his crown nd No. 26, continued. The crowd is stunned. The great Johnson is in ious trouble as Willard presses his advantage against the ill-condi- ned, about to be dethroned champion of the fistic universe. The heat been aiding Jess.

Johnson has been decked and is seen here trying to grab Willard and pull him down with him. This frame from the movie is offered as evidence by those who argue that it was an honest fight. If fake, why not hit the deck?

s Willard in a triumph, for a time, of the racists who had nded him out of the U.S. into Europe and Mexico.

n the play Johnson is unbelievably noble and if he has a fault s in his brash pride. His boyish enjoyment of high life leads to dents for which he is full of apology.

The real Johnson couldn't have cared less for what people ght think and was rarely bothered by being sorry for his apades.

The play runs to good theatre but stretches fact. Willard is eaten hulk of a man with features smeared in blood, a man o has won but resembles a melon which has been hit with a ng starter. Johnson, the loser, is an unholy mess with features ffed, body racked with pain, and barely able to speak, much s stand.

In truth, neither man was bleeding and neither had marred tures to show for his afternoon's combat.

The play indicates that Johnson accepted a deal to throw the ht but never intended to live up to the terms. In the play he s out like the fighting hero he is supposed to be, unsullied, ten fairly and squarely.

In real life the case is not so simple. Johnson was ahead up ough the 10th and even the 15th rounds. Those who charge fight was fixed state that Jack was waiting for his wife, seated ringside, to receive his (Continued on page 34) elow, note that Jack's legs now are in contact with the ring floor. ut, note, too, that Johnson still appears to be shading his eyes from e blazing sun of a gorgeous Cuban afternoon.

Above, Willard has untangled himself and Johnson apparently is shading his eyes and lifting his legs off the hot canvas. This frame is offered by those who say it was a fake. Below, Willard stands over fallen foe, ready to continue attack. There was no rule forcing Jess to neutral corner.

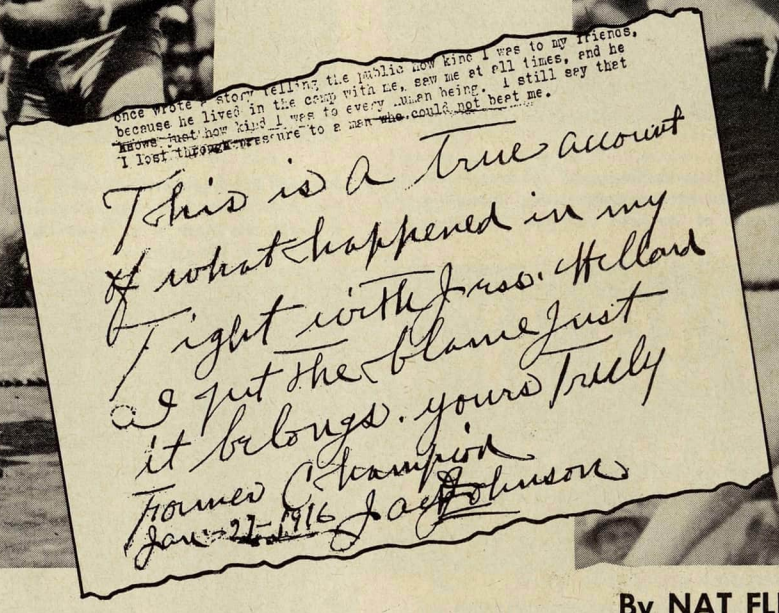
Top left, Jack shoots right to jaw in 12th. On right, Jack is exhausted, in 25th round, nearing finale. Bottom of page, left, Mrs. Lucille Cameron Johnson being escorted from arena in 25th. Bottom right, Mrs. Etta Duryea Johnson, who committed suicide not too long after Jack had beaten Jeffries and cleared title. Directly below, end of Johnson's actual confession, signed by him.



once wrote a story telling the public how kind I was to my friends, because he lived in the camp with me, saw me at all times, and he knows just how kind I was to every human being. I still say that I lost through pressure to a man who could not beat me.

This is a true account of what happened in my fight with Jess Willard & put the blame just it belongs. yours Truly

By NAT FLEISCHER

Fleischer Bought Confession But Didn't Believe It

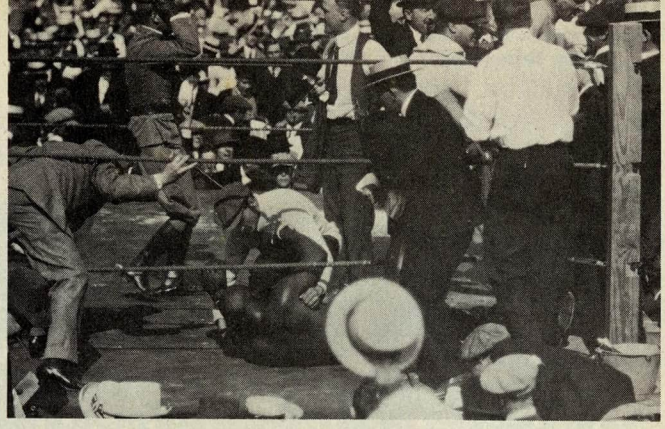
IN the offices of The Ring there is a document signed by J Johnson, dated January 2, 1916. It is Johnson's confessio having faked the 26-round fight with Jess Willard at Hav on April 5, 1915, Easter Sunday afternoon. Or the docum itself is a fake, since, later on, he repudiated it and insisted t he had allowed himself to besmirch his record because of fin cial need. In any event, the document is on public display.

I bought the confession for $250. He told me that the N York World had offered him $200. I outbid the newspa because I wanted the document suppressed. I did not believe t it told the truth. I sought to protect Jack against his poverty

Now the whole sordid story has been revived and the myst reopened by a theatre production at the Alvin in New Yo called "The Great White Hope."

The play, which the author insists is not based on the life Johnson, but obviously is, ends with "Jack Jefferson" runn out on his guarantee to throw the fight.

Willard and Johnson get their instructions from referee Jack Welch. Note that Jess is so well heeled that despite heat he is wrapped in heavy sweater. He did not own a bathrobe.



Pandemonium in the ring. Everybody is milling around in that limited space while Johnson's handlers apparently are busy bringing the beaten champion out of the ether.

I got to know Johnson about as well as anybody knew him. When he was in New York in later years he never failed to visit the offices of The Ring and talk about the old days with me.

He never alluded to the Havana fight. He never failed to find flaws in Joe Louis's style and method. Poor Jack. He crashed his racing car at Raleigh, N.C. on June 10, 1946, and took the mystery of Havana to the grave with him.

Jess Willard still is around to discuss it, but won't, at age 87. He still is suing people who cast aspersions on his achievements and question his ferocity as a champion.

My contacts with the three white Mrs. Johnson women were not very extensive.

After Jack had knocked out Jim Jeffries at Reno in 1910, and cleared up the authenticity of his world title, I met him on a New York-bound train at Albany, N.Y.

He said, "You come home with me and we will talk about it."

So into a cab we tumbled at Grand Central Station and rode to Baron Wilkins' theatrical rooming house for Negro stage and sports people. On West 36th Street, I believe it was.

We walked up a flight. Jack did not take the trouble to knock. He burst into the room and I followed. No sooner had we entered than Etta Duryea Johnson came charging out of the bathroom, naked.

Etta did not stop to hide her nudity. She gave Jack a terrific tongue lashing loaded with four-letter words. I retreated. He followed, laughing. "She didn't like it," Jack explained.

To follow Johnson through his adventures and misadventures from Reno in 1910 to Havana in 1915 would take a book.

He had only five fights. There was the nine-round fiasco with Jim Flynn at Las Vegas, New Mexico; the two-round KO of Andre Sproul in Paris; the 10-round draw with Battling Jim Johnson in the French capital; the 20-round decision over Frank Moran in Paris on June 27, 1914, for which Jack and Frank never got paid; and the three-round KO of Jack Murray in Buenos Aires.

Two days before the Willard fight he put on an exhibition with Sam McVey in Havana. It was not well received.

The Johnson confession, which I still refuse to accept as the truth, sounds convincing. Jack starts off with the assurance that it is "the God's honest, Gospel truth." He goes on to "swear by the Holiness of my Maker and my dear, beloved mother."

Here is the document as it reads from the master copy in my possession:

"This confession of mine, is God's honest, Gospel truth. I swear by the Holiness of my Maker and my dear beloved mother, because of whom I consented to face Jess Willard in the ring, that I'm telling the truth and nothing but the truth. The confession that I told you about a week ago, was only half of what I really had to tell but now that you are being so friendly to me, I want to dictate to you the entire story as it should be printed.

I'm tired of being hounded. I accepted Curley's and Frazee's offer to let Willard win by a knockout, because they had promised that I would not be molested any more by the U.S. Government, and that I would be allowed to return home to see my dear, beloved mother—the one thing dearest to my heart. But as soon as Willard won, Curley and Frazee forgot their promise. They made me (Continued on page 35)

Five years before Havana and Willard, Johnson stands supreme among heavyweights while Jim Jeffries, who got suckered into a comeback, sits on the hot canvas at Reno, knocked out in the 15th round. Would the Johnson of that fight, trying hard, have let the title go to Jess?

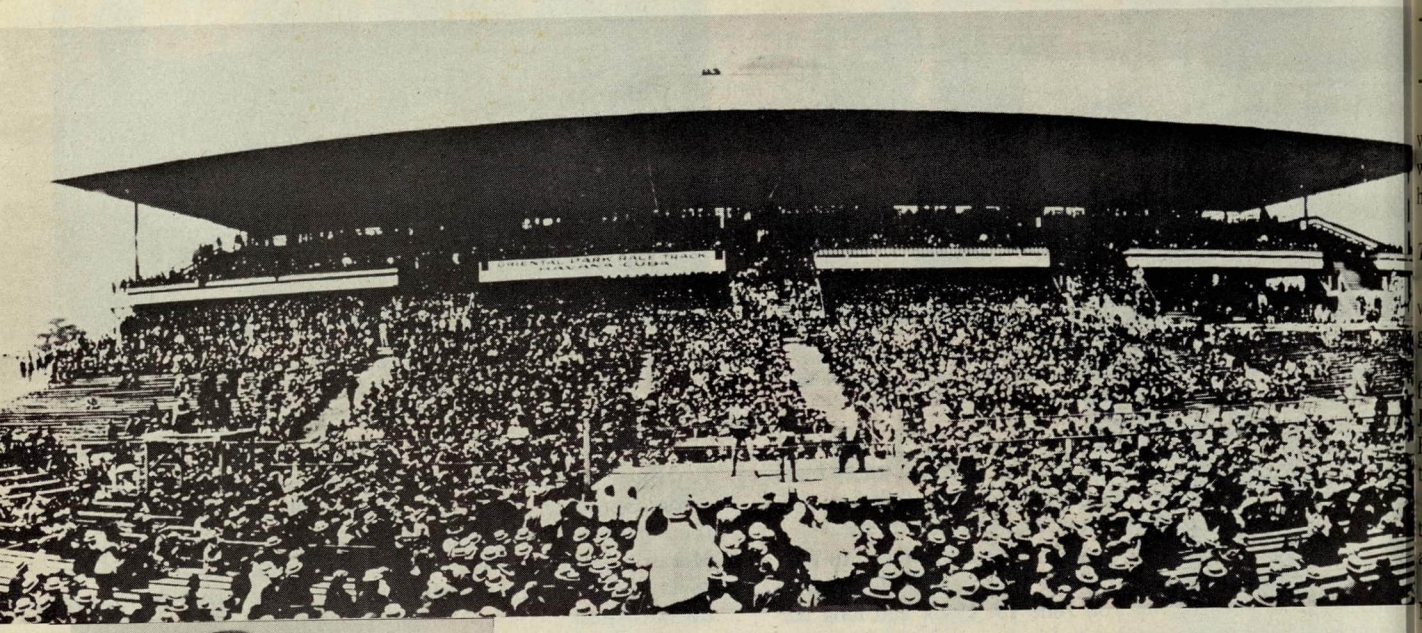
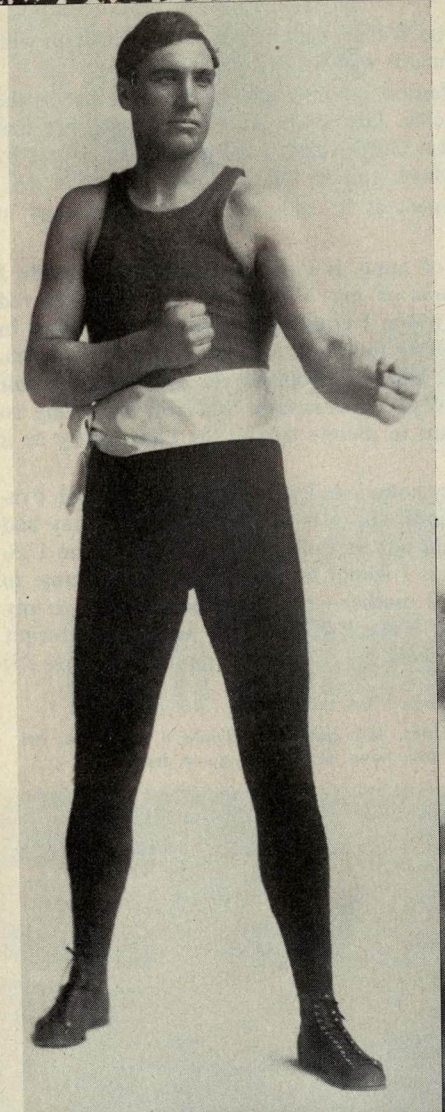
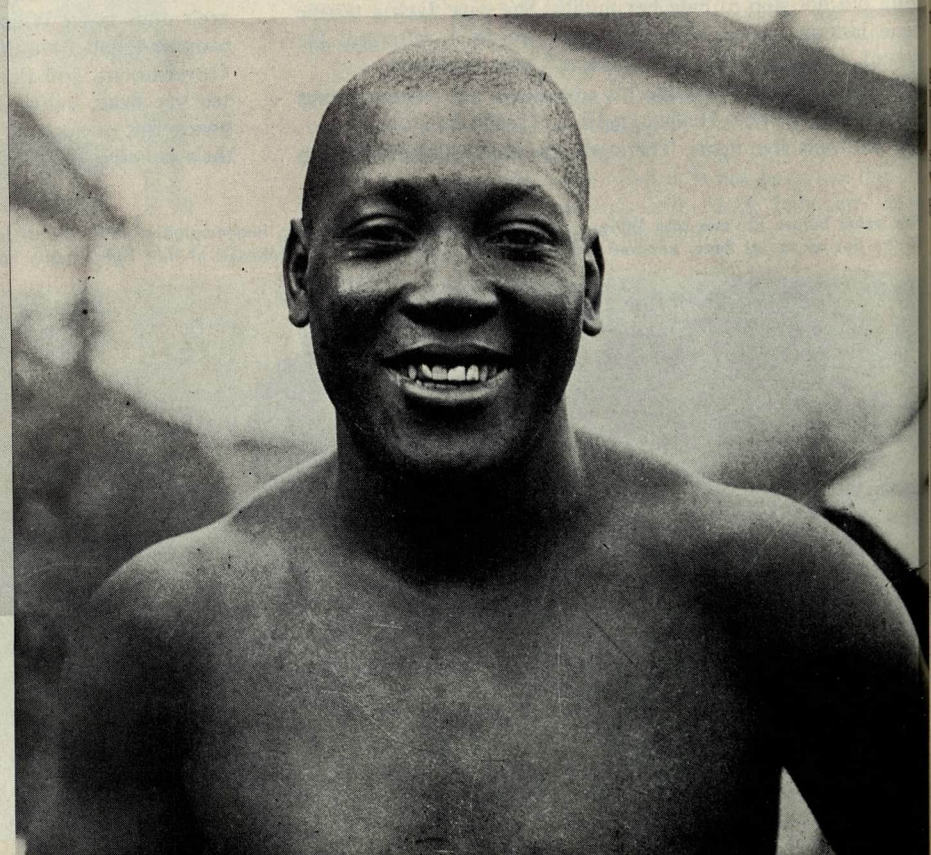
It was a hot Easter Sunday and the ring canvas was baked blazing hot.



Johnson, Ignoring Training, Left His Title Out Fishing





Above we see Jess Willard as he looked the afternoon he took a title which he was to lose to Jack Dempsey at Toledo on July 4, 1919. To the right, smiling Jack Johnson as he shaped up that day. Was he KOd or did he fake it?

By DAN DANIEL

IN 1915, Nat Fleischer and I were teammates in the sports department of the New York Press. He was the boss, I had jumped the Herald in the vital interest of a salary rise of $10.

Fleischer was on his vacation at the ringside in Havana when Jack Johnson was divested of the world championship by Jess Willard. I was in the Press office, with Charley Mathison, our famous boxing expert. We lacked the funds to send him to Cuba.

With the help of a skeleton cable from Fleischer, and courtesy proofs of the Tribune story of the fight, Mathison composed his thesis for the Press.

The result of the fight left us somewhat confused as we had counted on an easy victory for Johnson. Mathison was not a Willard admirer. The fact was, he derogated and disliked Jess tremendously.

Fleischer returned to the office a week later with all sorts of reports about the fight. It had been a fake. No, it had been on the level. The gamblers had got to Jack. No, the gamblers had been beaten at their own game and Johnson had quit. He was being hounded by the Federal authorities on the charge of having violated the stupid and generally ignored Mann Act.

In any event, reports about the bona fides, or the lack of authenticity, of the Johnson defeat remained a live topic for decades. Now it is more alive than ever.

One of the promoters of the Havana fight was Harry Frazee, New York theatrical impresario, who was to get his name in the paper in January, 1920, by selling Babe Ruth to the Yankees.

Harry went into the Boston baseball picture on a shoestring. His entry into the Havana promotion with Jack Curley reportedly was financed by another man of the theatre named Larry Webber.

I got to know Frazee pretty well, through his many sales of players to the Yankees, and one day, in his New York office, asked him about the fight.

"Take it from me, there was no deal with gamblers, there certainly was no deal with the promoters," Frazee said.

"What happened to Johnson was inevitable. He had lost interest in the title, except for what he could get out of it.

"He got $30,000 for the fight, and within a year was broke. So broke he went around offering a so-called confession to newspapers for $200.

"Johnson did not do any training for Willard. He got himself a couple of roasted chickens and a lot of biscuits almost every day and went out on Havana harbor fishing. Look at the pictures of the fight and note the excess baggage around his waist.

"He went the first 12 rounds on skill, and what was left of a great fighter. He fought the next 14 rounds on his nerve and his pride. Then the chicken and biscuits took their toll.

"In 1927, in a book he called 'In The Ring—And Out,' Johnson wrote, or his ghost did it for him, 'Preceding the fight with Willard I did no serious training. I engaged in a few boxing exhibitions, and did a few strong man stunts, such as pulling against horses and permitting a horse to stand on my stomach. This was about the extent of my training.'

This is Jack Curley, who, with Harry Frazee, New York theatre impresario and Boston baseball magnate, promoted the fight in Cuba. Jack got something like $30,000 while Willard received little more. No accurate report of receipts ever was made available by Curley.

"Johnson has been his own worst enemy. He could have made a fortune. He was broke all the time. People did not like his white wives. He always has been a happy-go-lucky, amiable guy. Make it as emphatic as you can, Johnson left the world championship in Havana Harbor."

In the last couple of years men have drawn parallels between Johnson and Cassius Clay.

These parallels are true in some degree. But Clay is no Jack Johnson, and Johnson was no counterpart of Cassius.

Clay got himself into trouble by association with the Black Muslims, and then through refusal to join the Army on notice of draft.

Johnson had neither troublesome associations nor Army difficulties.

He had the guts to stand up to those who hounded him by refusing to run out on his three white wives, the Duryea, Cameron and Pineau women. The Duryea woman, who had high connections in society, committed suicide.

Clay, too, has had his marital troubles, but only because of Black Muslim pressures. His first wife and her successor are Negroes. Neither of these women led him into legal messes. He provided his own pitfalls.

Clay has been conducting a running battle with the Establishment, the Military, the American social structure and those who made it possible for him to become famous and rich.

Johnson had no scunner on anybody except the bloodhounds who sought to land him in a Federal jail.

He had no sense of social (Continued on page 39)

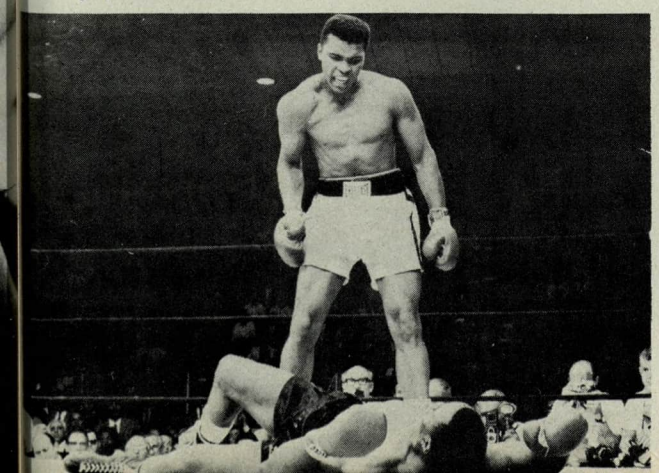
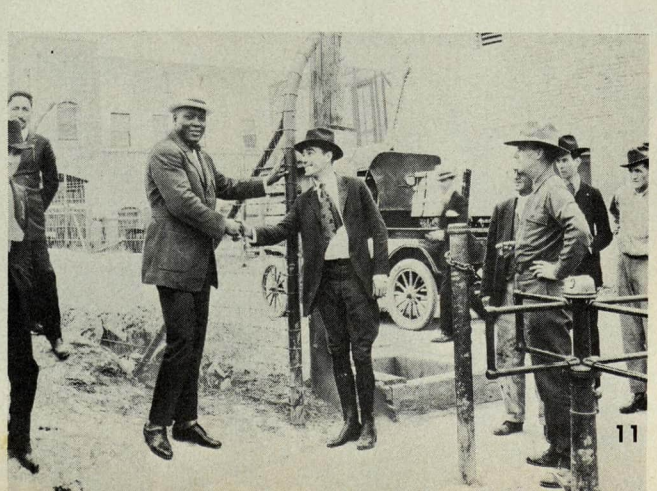
Some analysts have drawn sharp parallels between Jack Johnson and Cassius Clay. Jack never got the kind of money Muhammad Ali received for his title fights. We see Clay taunting Sonny Liston to get up and fight, at Lewiston, Me.



Johnson on his way to jail. Sheriff Billy Mitchell takes him in custody as he crosses the border from Mexico into the United States. Apparently there was no tear-shedding.



Sometimes life is made easy for a referee such as depicted in the photo above which shows Joe Rivers about to take the full count from Ed Graney, shown keeping lightweight champion Willie Ritchie back in the 11th round of their bout at San Francisco on July 4, 1913. Note the garb worn by the ring official, in the performance of his duties. Below, we see Ruby Goldstein, one of the most famous referees of recent years, getting down on the canvas to count out Ramon Fuentes in the fifth round of a contest with Gil Turner.

Third Man Theme Not Always A Happy Tune

By DAN DANIEL

NEITHER by his actions during a fight, nor his decision after it, does the truly top-notch referee make himself conspicuous. He knows the rules and lives up to them. He is neither arrogant nor is he subservient. He does everything legal, reasonable nd just to help the contestants to put on an attractive fight, and when it is all over with, e is in possession of the significant facts leading him to the proper decision.

The first-class referee is not intimidated by vociferous, biased fans. He is 100 per cent nest and, as such, highly respected and always in big demand.

The ranking referee knows how to run a fight, he knows how to do it physically and entally.

And yet, some of our best referees have had their misadventures, their betrayals by rcumstance, their forced acceptance of public criticism.

The maledictions of the disgruntled fight aficionado are as vehement as the fury of ell and the deadly reaction of the woman scorned.

All of this is a preamble to the story of Harold Valan, the New York referee who orked the Ellis-Patterson fight at Stockholm, Sweden, not so long ago. Thousands of ns insisted that they saw Floyd win on the TV screen, Valan called it nine rounds to in favor of Ellis.

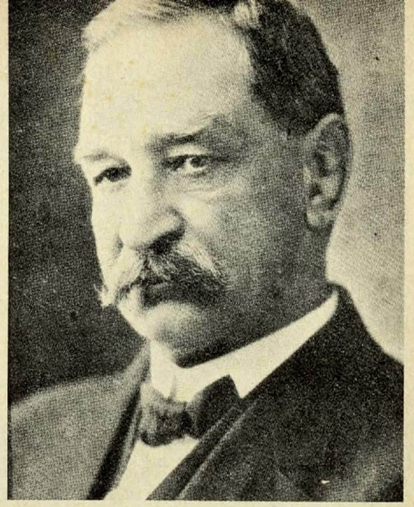
This is no re-examination of that fight, or an effort to strengthen Valan or the case of e TV viewer. The record book for 1969 will say that Ellis beat Patterson, and that is that.

If Valan really is in a predicament, he certainly has a lot of company in the harassed feree victims of past brouhahas.

Has a referee of marked experience as a fighter—and a world avyweight champion at that—ever got himself into the predica-nt in which Jersey Joe Walcott became enveloped up to his s on May 25, 1965, at Lewiston, Me., in the brief battle tween title holder Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston?

Liston, who had lost the title to Clay at Miami Beach on bruary 25, 1964, by failing to come out for the seventh und, was stopped in the first heat in Maine.

Poor Jersey Joe became the victim of a comedy of errors hich also involved the official timekeeper, and brought into e action a ringside reporter, Nat Fleischer, editor and pub-her of The Ring, who was forced to apprise the inexperienced nekeeper of his duties.



George Siler, one of the busiest of the old-time referees, had to be escorted from the arena by police after declaring Jim Jeffries the winner over Tom Sharkey after 25 rounds in 1899.

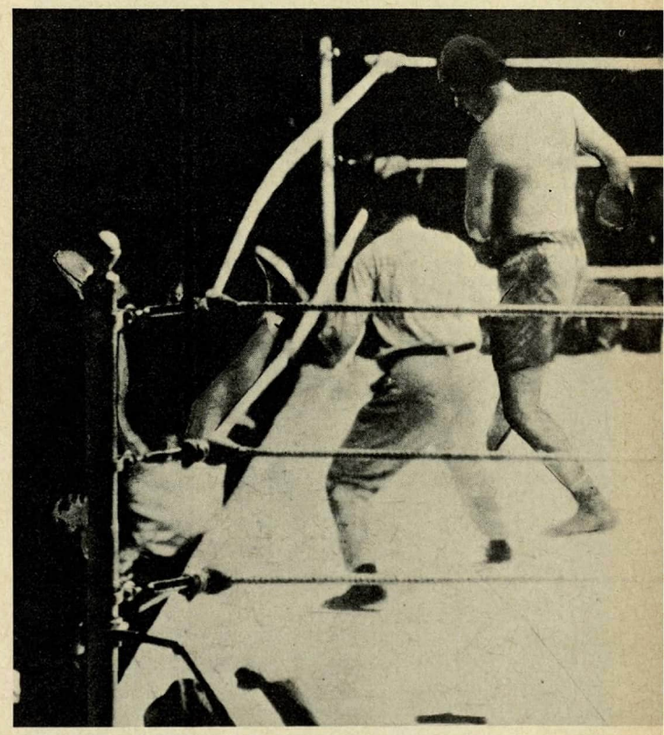
There were cries of "Fake" from the fans in attendance in that Lewiston skating rink.

There were charges from experienced reporters that the KO was an "invisible punch."

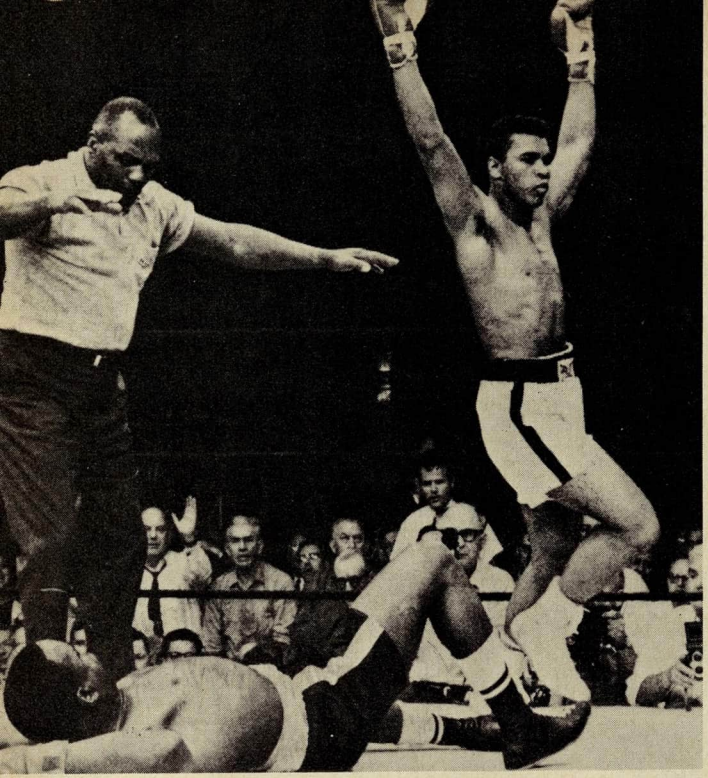
But it wasn't a fake and the knockout was as real, as valid a blow as Clay ever delivered in a career which—think what you like about Cassius of 1968—was brilliant and clean all the way.

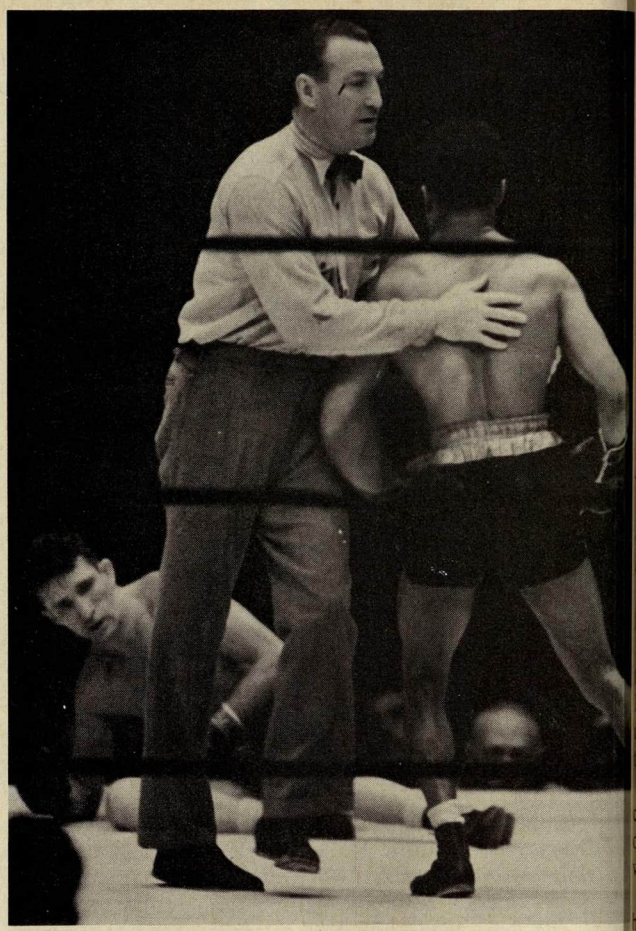
There being no mike for the use of timekeeper Frank McDonough, a retired printer who recently died, he had to toll off the seconds with a gavel. Referee Walcott could not hear the count.

McDonough counted 10 and hollered "Out." He let his watch run two more seconds, then he decided to let his watch toll off



Jack Dempsey goes sailing out of the ring after being soundly tagged by Luis Firpo in the first round of their 1923 Polo Grounds bout. Johnny Gallagher, the third man, was criticized by many for not counting out Dempsey because he was unable to return to ring in time, according to several watchers. Jack then KOd the Wild Bull in round two.





Sonny Liston is flat on his back after being floored by Cassius Clay in the first round of their 1965 bout at Lewiston, Me. Referee Jersey Joe Walcott did not hear the timekeeper's toll and let the contest continue after Liston arose, but when apprised that Liston had been on the canvas past the 10 count, halted matters and awarded the bout to Clay. (Right) Arthur Donovan, who officiated in many major bouts of the 1930s and 1940s, pushes Henry Armstrong away from the downed Lew Jenkins. Donovan did not figure in many rhubarbs.

20 seconds in all.

Fleischer watched McDonough and knew that Liston had been knocked out.

Liston arose and resumed fighting. McDonough had notified Jersey Joe that Sonny had been stopped, legally and effectively.

Eventually Walcott got to Clay and raised his arm, as the victor. Had he counted Liston out? No, the timekeeper had counted him out, Walcott said.

Fleischer did what McDonough, hemmed in by reporters, could not do. Nat called Walcott over and told him that the timekeeper had a message for him. To this day uninformed reporters insist that The Ring Editor, and not McDonough or Walcott, had stopped the fight.

In any event, the simple fact that the timekeeper had not been equipped with a mike led Walcott into about as big a mess of trouble as any referee has been tossed into by Lady Luck, circumstance and a major tough break.

Now let us go all the way back to November 3, 1899. The scene is Coney Island, wind-swept faubourg of New York City. Jim Jeffries, heavyweight champion of the world, defended his title that night against tough Tom Sharkey, the battling tar. Jim had won the title the previous June from Bob Fitzsimmons, by a KO in 11.

Jeffries and Sharkey went 25 rounds, the scheduled distance, and referee George Siler, the standout official of the time, gave the decision to the champion.

The fans raised the roof. They were sure that Sharkey, who was a New York favorite, and who later on was to run a saloon on 14th Street, had taken the championship.

Siler had to be escorted from the arena by police. This in spite of the fact that he had made the correct decision.

Sharkey was about as badly battered a challenger as the ring had seen. He went from Coney Island to the New York offices of Dr. John Erdman, who in later years became one of America's leading surgeons, fastest man with a scalpel.

Dr. Erdman told me, many years after the fight, that Jeffr had beaten Tom to a pulp, broken ribs and contusions gal testifying to the thoroughness of the trouncing.

Johnny Gallagher, the referee who worked in the fam battle between Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo on S tember 14, 1923, at the now vanished Polo Grounds in N York, was not one of the all-time greats among the third m in the ring.

But Gallagher deserved a better deal from the fistic Fa than he got when Firpo, who was to be knocked out in t rounds, belted Dempsey out of the ring in the first heat.

Did Dempsey get back into action in 10 seconds? There various estimates of the elapsed time. Gallagher was in quit stew.

It is conceivable that if Firpo had (Continued on page

Easy Winner Over LaCruz, Cokes Eyes Benvenuti

By IKE MORALES

NEW Orleans, La.—Who is next for Curtis Cokes? As of now, Jose Napoles, Mexico, and Percy Pugh, New Orleans, are leading contenders for Cokes' welterweight championship.

Also in contention are Raul Soriano, Mexico, and Ernie Lopez, Las Vegas.

Doug Lord, manager of the titleholder from Dallas, Tex., is thinking ahead following Coke's clear-cut 15-round victory over Ramon LaCruz, who was the WBA's No. 1 challenger but was unrated by The Ring, which saw its judgment supported by the Cokes fight.

"Cokes is just about running out of top opposition," said the champ's manager. "If the money's right, we're ready to take on Napoles, Pugh, Soriano or Lopez—but no promoter yet is willing to come up with the cash.

"Therefore, we'd like to take a crack at Nino Benvenuti and his middleweight crown. Cokes has the style, the ability, the know-how to cope with the Italian."

Tagged "El Matador" by his native Argentina supporters, LaCruz proved anything but a killer in his first and probably last chance to win a world prize. Curtis scored an easy 15-round decision. The loser entered the ring boasting a 90-5-12 mark in nine years of battling. Included among his 90 triumphs were 61 knockouts.

Curtis scored by a large margin on each of the three official cards. Referee Herman Dutreix scored it 11-3-1; judge Pete Giarrusso, 11-1-3; judge Eddie Brown, 11-3-1. Your correspondent scored it 11-4.

The fight was not title quality. Neither fighter was too anxious to take the lead, being more content to wait and counter.

LaCruz, who weighed 147 to 146½ for the champion, was making his first appearance in a United States ring. However, he was not lacking in support. Some 200 from the Argentine gave Ramon an ovation as he entered the ring. There was no ovation at the close. He was over-matched.

Cokes was the better boxer, sharper puncher and more knowledgeable. It was obvious after the second round that the Argentine fighter was in for mucho trouble. He was at a disadvantage in weight and reach, and an easy target for jarring hooks and rapid jabs.

Labeled a killer in his native land, LaCruz lacked the artillery to pierce the champion's armor. Cokes, basically a counter fighter, used his longer reach to keep his opponent at bay. He did that with a steady tattoo in almost every round.

The fight was fought too cautiously and jeers often resounded from the gallery. For a fighter making his bid for a championship, LaCruz was a pure dud. The stockier Argentinian tried to turn the tide with an occasional body attack but it was short-lived.

Cokes put a small cut over LaCruz's right eye at the end of the sixth round. The import was spitting red in the 12th and 13th rounds.

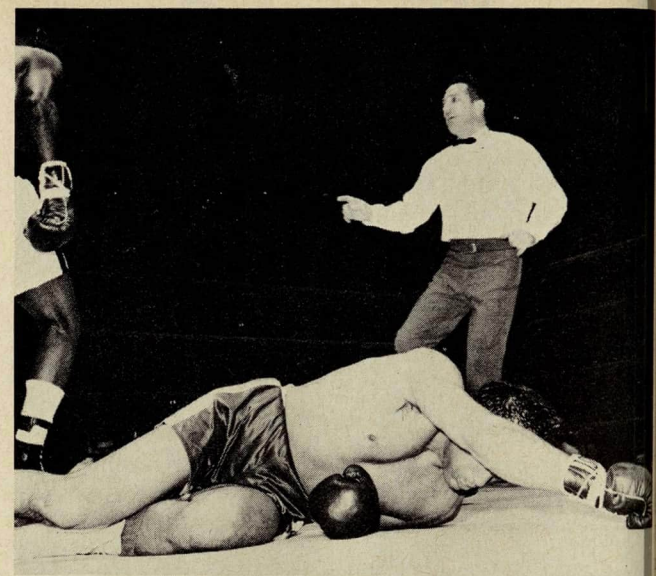
Frank De Paula watches Dick Tiger hit the canvas after downing him in the second round of their 10 at Madison Square Garden. The ex-champion from Biafra was floored again in the fourth round.



Now it's DePaula's turn to hit the mat as referee Arthur Mercante motions Tiger to a neutral corner in the third round. Frank was floored again in that round but managed to survive the heat.

TIGER TROUNCES DePAULA BUT HITS DECK TWICE, SHOWS HIS AGE

By GEORGE GIRSCH

DICK Tiger is back. His claws are still sharp, but despite his 10-round triumph over Frank DePaula he's very vulnerable. The big question: Is there still a future for the former middleweight and light heavyweight king who has developed the unfortunate habit of being knocked off his feet by men who would not have connected solidly a few short years ago?

Bob Foster, champion of the 175-pound division, is the man Tiger would like to meet again in a big-money return match. Foster knocked out Tiger in four rounds to take the title this past May. It does not appear that Tiger could reverse that result off his showing against DePaula. The Old Man from Biafra won rather handily after surviving a wild war for four rounds. But the old Tiger was gone.

DePaula is not a Foster. His bout against Tiger was the biggest of his life. If he had defeated Dick, he would have been in line for a shot at Foster's crown. For a little while in the 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden it appeared as if Frankie, to the delight of his fans from Jersey, was going to pull it off.

But Tiger rose to the occasion, showed his mettle, pride and determination, and pulled victory from the jaws of the defeat that appeared imminent at the bell which ended round two.

For four rounds the Tiger-DePaula war had more firepower in it than the one in Biafra. In the first heat, they felt each oth out for a while before getting down to business. After Tig connected with two good rights and lefts, DePaula almost floor Dick near the ropes with a hard two-handed flurry. Tiger a peared in trouble near the end of the round.

Tiger took charge at the start of the second round, catchi DePaula with lefts to the head which the Jersey fighter could n elude. Suddenly, DePaula unloosed a furious attack, floori Tiger with a left-right combination. Dick, up quickly, took t mandatory eight-count at the two-minute mark.

DePaula quickly nailed Tiger near the ropes and almo dropped him again. Frankie then knocked Dick into the rop Though Tiger sat on the lower strand, no knockdown was call by referee Arthur Mercante.

As Tiger walked slowly to his corner, he was very tired a very old. He appeared to be at the end of the trail, a beat ex-champion who had gone to the well once too often. Not ma in the crowd of 13,201 would have given two cents for Tige chances at that point. DePaula, the 8-5 underdog, apparent was about to reach the glory road.

But Dick Tiger, whether he owns a title or not, has the hea of a champion and always will have. That's the kind of guy he —as gutty as they come. As the bell rang for the third roun Tiger went out fighting for his very life. He began throwi punches and more punches at a surprised DePaula, who ce tainly did not expect Tiger to have this much strength left aft the beating he took in round two.

About halfway through the round, Tiger floored DePaula wi a smashing left and right to the jaw. Frankie bounced up quickl taking the mandatory eight. Tiger tore in and knocked DePau down again with a vicious right. This time Frankie was hurt. H eyes were glassy. He wobbled to his feet and stared wondering as he took the eight-count.

Tiger opened up with both hands, pumping them methodical and relentlessly to the head and body. DePaula was a punchi bag for the rest of the round as Tiger hammered him at will. B referee Mercante made no attempt to intervene.

If DePaula had been floored again the bout would have end automatically under the three-knockdown rule. DePaula's abili to remain on his feet during the furious cannonading, is a tribu to his physical condition. Why Mercante did not halt matters, a mystery. Bouts have been stopped for much less reason. F almost a full minute, DePaula was a helpless hulk trapped agai the ropes unable to defend himself. (Continued on page 6

IN THE CONFUSION NINO GOT A DRAW

By JOHN L. McCAFFERTY

AKRON, Ohio—What happened in the almost vacant Rubber Bowl here the night Nino Benvenuti got a draw in a 10-round non-title fight with local middleweight Doyle Baird bordered on the incredible and, in the aftermath, shaped up as downright ludicrous.

To begin with, the fight had been five minutes off the boards and still no announced decision. Ultimately it occurred to somebody to set the customers straight and tell them that Baird had not won, and that it had wound up in a draw.

A stalemate it was, and Benvenuti, middleweight champion of the world, was lucky he got even half of the marbles. This Baird put up a savage battle and the Italian is not going to come back for another look at Akron.

When the fight was finished the champion's entourage, in the belief that the decision was going to Akron's Pride, went daffy. So did Akronites.

One character, high in union circles in Cleveland, leaped into the ring and shouted at Don Elbaum, the promoter, "I'll get you, you ———."

Just what Elbaum had done except lose about $17,000 on a fight which drew only 3017 paid with $20,438 in receipts, was not clear. Baird was supposed to get $2500.

Referee Tony Chudick added to the bedlam when, right after the fight, he held Baird's hand aloft, as the winner. Examination of the score cards showed that Chudick had voted a 97-97 draw. Nat Brisker, one of the judges, gave it to Baird, 96 to 95, and Rex Reese, the other judge, called it 96 to 96.

The Akron Commission apparently did not help the situation. The chairman, Gale Gault, was in Florida. The other members seemed to be nonplused until a New York reporter told them that according to the score cards it was a draw. And so it was announced, after a local reporter had called his paper and told the editor Baird had won.

All through the fight, one of the Benvenuti entourage kept hollering "Foul." Benvenuti connections were busy informing promoter Elbaum that Akron never would get another fight. Baird was a five to one second choice but he fought like a champion.

Baird said he had won seven rounds. Benvenuti said he had won the fight, and he announced that he would not come here again as Baird was "an unworthy opponent." Akron still does not like that.

Benvenuti went to the deck in the ninth, but Chudick called it a slip.

It was the first time a world champion had appeared in an Akron ring since 1955 when Johnny Saxton came to town to box Ronnie Delaney in a non-title bout. Delaney scored an upset by outpointing the champion.

Nino proved popular with Akron fans. His good looks and sparkling personality made many friends for him.

October weather in Northern Ohio can be rough but fight day was clear and sunny with a temperature in the 70s. The beautiful weather held out through the evening hours and the temperature was in the 50s at fight time.

Baird started fast and immediately put Benvenuti on the defensive. He tore into Nino and banged away with lefts and rights to the body. (Continued on page 36)

DOYLE BAIRD FIGHTER OF THE MONTH

ON the basis of his 10-round draw with Nino Benvenuti, middleweight champion of the world, in a non-title fight at Akron, Doyle Baird achieved the distinction of being the Fighter of the Month.

The Buckeye middleweight is accorded that honor in connection with the up-to-date ratings of the boxers of the world in the January issue of The Ring.

It has not been customary for The Ring to make significant top judgments as consequences of drawn decisions.

But Baird went into that Akron fight very much an underdog and he came out of it decked out in the full panoply of a winner, even if the verdict did not make him that.

Freddie Little, who beat Sandro Mazzinghi in a fight which went eight rounds, for the Italian's world junior middleweight leadership, but had to be content with nothing better than a "No Contest," pressed Baird for the Fighter of the Month.

However, the German referee did not give the fight to Lit and the EBU failed to reverse the referee. It ordered the t vacant pending a rematch between Sandro and the 32-year- school teacher from Las Vegas.

No significant action having taken place within the month the heavyweight division, the Top Ten in that classification c tinued to be led by Joe Frazier, No. 1; Jimmy Ellis, No. 2; Os Bonavena, No. 3 and George Chuvalo, No. 4.

Jerry Quarry, No. 6, behind Sonny Liston, has broken o of his cast and is back in training.

A few matches are mentioned in connection with Quarr determination to repair his position but not one of them designed to bring Jerry into contention with a rated heavyweig

The one world title pronounced open by The Ring is th involving the featherweights.

The Ring refuses to recognize Japan's Sozo Saijyo as anythi tter than the No. 3 contender, behind Jose Legra and Johnny amechon. They are to fight in London for the open title, with e Japanese top challenger.

Since nothing important is stirring for the welterweight cham- on in his own class, Curtis Cokes has notified The Ring that now is eager to fight Benvenuti for middleweight laurels.

In the middleweight division, Emile Griffith lost his prerogative as No. 1 contender behind champion Benvenuti. Emile's efeat by Stan "Kitten" Hayward in a 10-round fight in Philaelphia was a very damaging blow to the former title holder, even ough the decision was split and many of the onlookers felt at Emile had won.

As a result of Griffith's setback, Don Fullmer has been moved to the No. 1 contender's niche, with Luis Rodriguez No. 2, ayward No. 3, and Griffith No. 4.

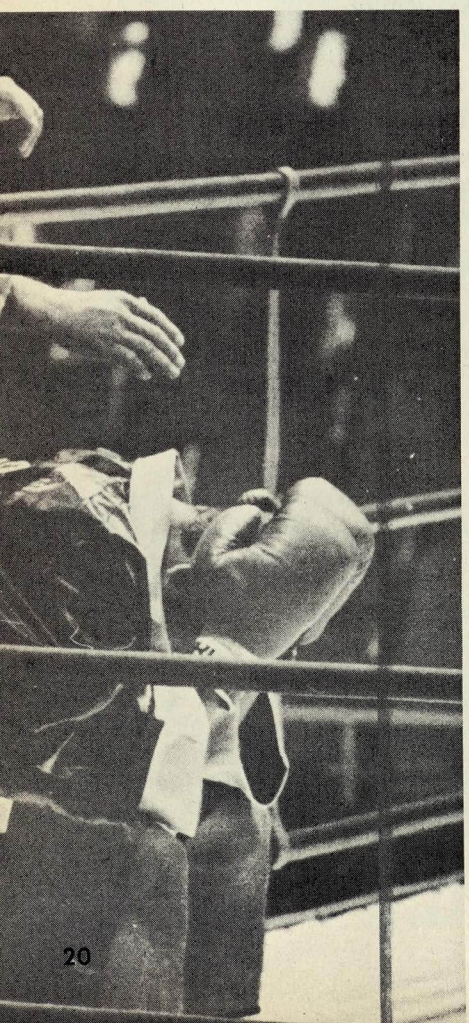
THE OLYMPIC STORY

FOREMAN and HARRIS CHAMP

Below, a personal tragedy affecting Heriberto Cintron, Puerto Rican flyweight. He is sitting in his corner, disconsolate, after disqualification by referee, who gave title to Artur Olech, of Poland.



By LARRY BORTSTEIN

MEXICO City, D.F.—When George Foreman, of Houston, left the Olymp games with the world amateur heavyweight championship gold medal, ar Ronnie Harris, of Canton, Ohio, superior to Foreman as a boxer, returned Ohio with the lightweight title, Foreman was reported to be turning professional. Ha ris's plans were not known.

Foreman was said to be tying in with Jimmy Iselin, who hobbles around with the fist career of Buster Mathis.

Foreman and Harris outclassed a pair of East European 29-year-olds in the Olymp finals.

Before a capacity crowd of 10,000 at the Arena Mexico, Foreman, only 19, packi 218 pounds on a 6-3½ frame, clubbed Russia's Iones Chepulis into pieces and w awarded a TKO nod in the second round of the heavyweight final.

Harris's victory was even more impressive, in light of the nature of his oppositio The 20-year-old scored a going-away decision over defending Olympic lightweig champion Josef Grudzien, of Poland. There was little doubt as to the justness of t verdict after Harris's masterful performance.

Below, the boxer on the deck is Armando Mendoza, of Venezuela, in his Olympic lightweight fight with Ramon Cuello, from the Dominican Republic. It was only a slip and Mendoza scored a third-round TKO.

On left, Foreman is banging his way to a two-round TKO over Russia's Ionas Chepulis in the Olympic heavyweight final. On right we see Foreman parading around ring waving an American flag after his impressive triumph, which, reportedly, will lead to the Texan's turning professional. No Black Power gestures for George.

Foreman earned his heavyweight gold by pumping jab after jab into the face of Chepulis. The referee finally got tired of watching the Russian bleed and stopped the bout at :33 of round two.

Olympic Winners

Light Flyweight—Francisco Rodriguez, Venezuela.
Flyweight—Ricardo Delgardo, Mexico.
Bantamweight—Valery Sokolov, Soviet Union.
Featherweight—Antonio Roldan, Mexico.
Lightweight—Ronnie Harris, Canton, Ohio.
Light Middleweight—Boris Lagutin, Soviet Union.
Light Welterweight—Jerzy Kulei, Poland.
Welterweight — Manfred Wole, East Germany.
Middleweight — Christopher Finnegan, Britain.
Light Heavyweight—Dan Pozdniak, Soviet Union.
Heavyweight—George Foreman, Houston.

Harris had surprisingly little trouble with Grudzien. He coolly jabbed the Polish defending champion dizzy, then crunched him with a left cross every time Grudzien tried to forge in.

Foreman gave the Olympic heavyweight title to the United States for another four years. Americans have copped the most prized crown in amateur boxing in three of the past four Olympics—Ed Sanders in 1952, Pete Rademacher in 1956, and Joe Frazier in 1964. Italy's Franco De Piccoli, who won in 1960, has been the only foreign interloper during the streak.

Harris's title win, on the other hand, was the first yet scored by an American in the Olympic lightweight class. As a 16-year-old at Tokyo four years ago, Ronnie earned a bronze medal in the same division, one of three bronzes awarded there to U.S. ringmen, along with Frazier's lone gold.

America's featherweight hope, 21-year-old Al Robinson of Phoenix, wasn't so fortunate. He and local hero Antonio Roldan were banging away along the ropes to the early stages of their second round when a tide of blood came surging from the Mexican's left eye.

The referee—a Russian—immediately stopped the fight and disqualified Robinson for allegedly butting Roldan. Robinson was way ahead on points. The youngster broke into uncontrollable sobs.

Films later showed that there was no butt, and Robinson's crisp left jabs were finding their marks repeatedly above the Mexican's eye.

At first the disqualification dropped Robinson out of medal consideration entirely, since an Olympic medal cannot be won

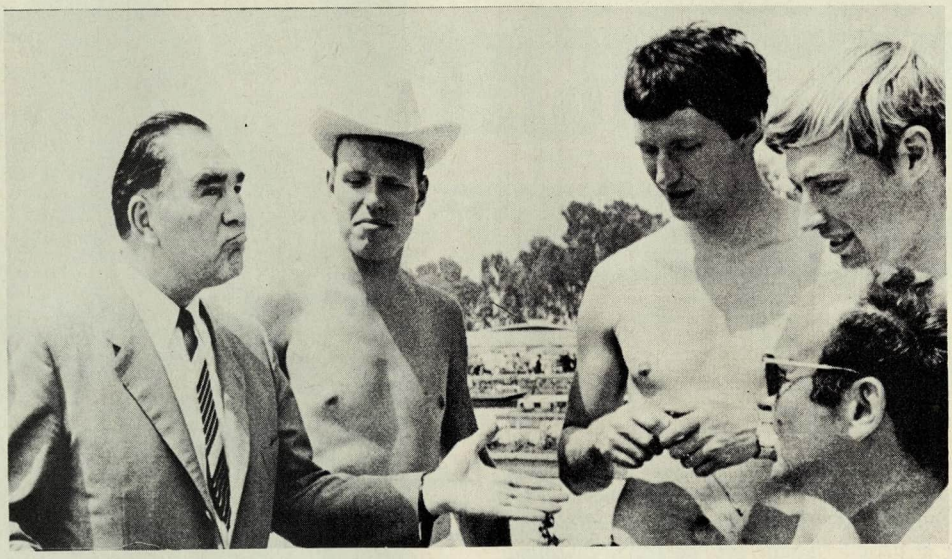
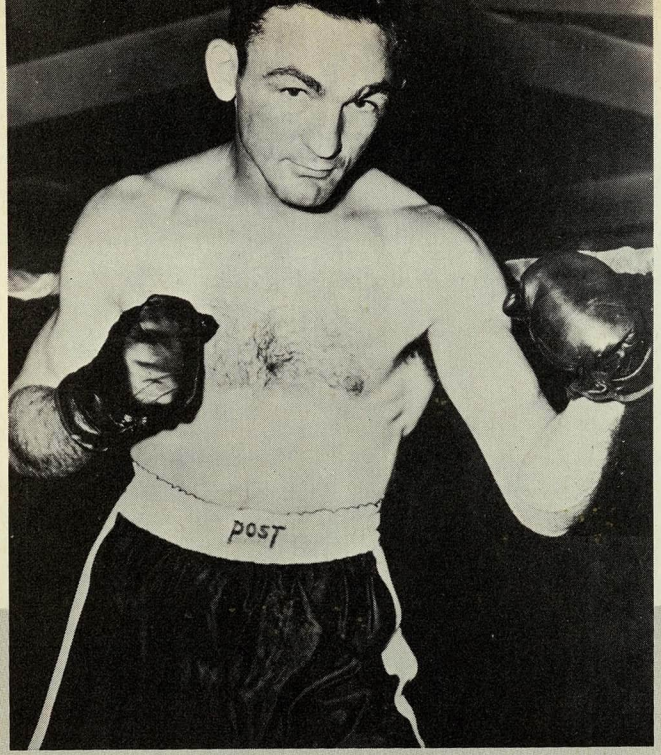
Here's a real swingin' amateur affair between Jimmy Alberino (left) and Don Proctor in Portland, Me. Alberino ended up as the winner in the wild encounter.



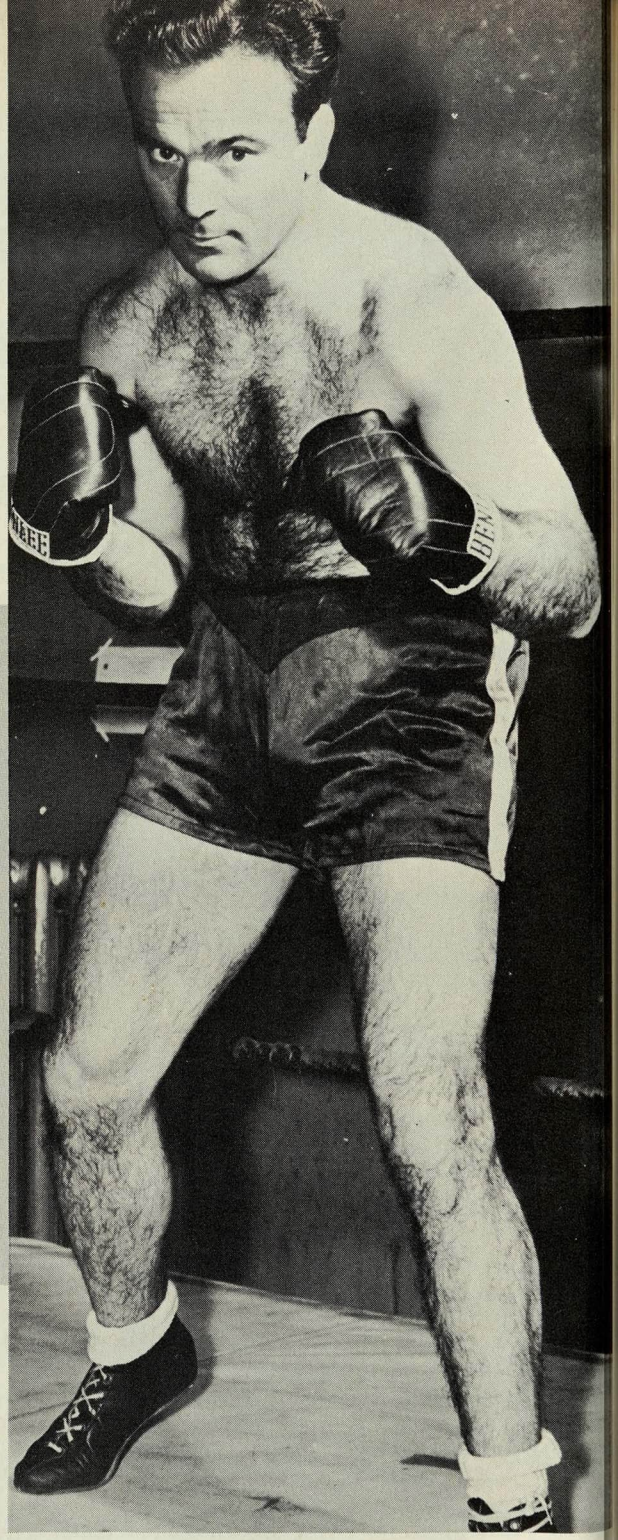
Bob Felstein, Toronto heavyweight, takes a left on the button from Dave Zyglewicz, of Houston, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-rounder in Houston. Ziggy captured a unanimous nod.

Former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling (left) talks with West German Olympic rowers during a visit to Olympic Village in Mexico City. Der Mox is probably telling them what's new.

Middleweight king Nino Benvenuti takes a playful jab on the chin from jockey Brian Swatuk on a visit to Toronto's Woodbine racetrack. Swatuk rode the winner in the sixth race, which was called the Nino Benvenuti Purse.



ALL-TIME MIDDLEWEIGHT TOURNAMENT



Carmen Basilio (upper left) and Marcel Cerdan (above) who fought in the first bout in the All-Time Middleweight Tournament heard on radio throughout the United States.

The Ring herewith presents the first two bouts of the computerized "All-Time Middleweight Championship Tournament" as heard on radio throughout the United States. Guy LeBow and Murry Woroner are at dream ringside for the round-by-round accounts of the contests between (1) Marcel Cerdan and Carmen Basilio and (2) Emile Griffith and Kid McCoy.

This is Murry Woroner at Miami Convention Hall for the first fight in our fifteen-fight "All-Time Middleweight Tournament." Tonight's match features the rough, tough former two-division champion, Carmen Basilio, and one of the greatest fighters to ever come out of Europe, the late great Marcel Cerdan. Here's the man who will be describing the dream action from ringside, modern radio's dean of blow-by-blow, Guy LeBow.

GUY—Both men are now in the ring, and our ring announcer, Irwin Berson walks to ring center, let's join him.

BERSON—Ladies and Gentlemen . . . this is our main event . . . the mandatory eight count has been waived . . . scoring is on the 10-point must system . . . the first fight in the "All-Time Middleweight Tournament." Our dream officials are . . . the judges . . . Bernie Neary, John Crittendon, and Donald Softness . . . the timekeeper, Eric Blair . . . Counting for the knockdowns at the bell, Carl Kozlik . . . attending physicians, Carl Schuele and William Fultz . . . This fight is scheduled for 15 rounds . . . Introducing, in the white trunks, at 5 feet 6½ inches and 159 pounds the former welter and middleweight champion of the world from Canastota, N.Y., The Canastota Express . . . Carmen Basilio.

And his opponent, at 5 feet 8 inches and 160 pounds, from Sidi Bel Abbes, Algeria and Paris, France, The Tiger of Casablanca, Marcel Cerdan . . . Your referee, Ruby Goldstein.

ROUND TWO—Here's a left to the mouth by Basilio. Cerdan shoots a left to the body and misses a right to the head. Carmen, at him again, misses a hard left at the head. He follows with a right hand and misses that. They trade jabs. Here's Cerdan tying up Basilio. Cerdan moves right, then with a quick move, sends a torrid right to the mouth. It hurt Basilio. The game Basilio rushes the head, left and right. Now Cerdan, with a smashing left to the teeth, weaving to his right and his left rams home to the body. Basilio lands a left and right to the head. Cerdan is simply everywhere with left and right, left and right to the face and mouth. Cerdan raps the body with a right, then misses an uppercut at the chin. Cerdan blew in the heavier stuff and Carmen looked disgusted. Basilio leaps toward Marcel with a looping left. Marcel rips a vicious right to the jaw. Basilio misses a right at the mouth. Cerdan hammers the head twice which pops Basilio back a step. Basilio puts a right under the heart, misses two shots to the head, two lefts to the midsection.

ROUND THREE—Cerdan slips a left hook to the body. Basilio jabs at the face and scores. Cerdan comes forward, hooks the mouth. Cerdan sends a solid right to the chin. Basilio goes down . . . 3, 4 on one elbow. He's okay. The mandatory eight count is in play. That was sudden and it didn't seem that solid, but the first knockdown goes to Cerdan. He hit a nerve and low bridge. Cerdan bulls in, Basilio covering. Cerdan put short lefts and rights to the face. Basilio sinks a solid right to the body. Here's a left to the mouth by Marcel. Basilio winging from a deep crouch, rips the body with two solid hooks. Basilio home with a torrid right to the head. Marcel staggering and Basilio with that right again and Marcel is down. He's hurt . . . 3, 4, rising now. He'll make it, but that was the wallop of the fight. On the far side, Cerdan rallying. A left to the chin by Cerdan. Basilio is measuring him for the right, with his left lead way out. Cerdan bombs the body with lefts and rights. Basilio drives a left hook and right cross to the mouth of Cerdan, who return two solid left hooks. Basilio drives a brutal left to the head and Cerdan is down again. He's hurt again . . . 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, one knee, and up at nine. Carmen rips the body with lefts and rights as he swarms over Cerdan. Here's a hard right under the heart by Cerdan. Basilio puts a good right to the mouth at the bell.

ROUND FOUR—Marcel drives home a solid right to the head. Basilio is jarred again with a left hook to the midsection. Basilio misses a right to the mouth. Cerdan bulls Basilio back. Again Cerdan drives home a right to the head Basilio is driven back two steps. He looks hurt. Basilio misses a long left. Cerdan closes to the body. Here are two lefts pumped to the side by Cerdan. A brusing right under the heart by Cerdan. Cerdan is working like a machine. Basilio misses a left and right over the head. Cerdan scores again with a right to the mouth. Basilio, trying to counter, is tagged with a vicious right under the heart. Cerdan rips the head with a right and a bomb to the jaw and Basilio is on his back . . . 2, 3, a vicious left . . . it may be over, 6, 7, 8, no movement. That's it. Marcel Cerdan the marvelous Frenchman, knocks out Carmen Basilio.

EMILE GRIFFITH vs. KID McCOY

This is Murry Woroner at the fabulous Houston Astrodome for the second fight in the All-Time Middleweight Tournament. Tonight's match features one of the most savage men to ever enter the ring, the tricky Kid McCoy, and a guy described as a tornado when he's mad, Emile Griffith. Sixty thousand seats are filled with imaginary fans for this great dream match. And now here's the best blow-by-blow guy around, Guy LeBow.

GUY—Well, Murry, here we go again and let me tell you, it's a great kick to take this show on the road.

MURRY—Both men are now in the ring and that's a real mob scene in McCoy's corner. Ring announcer Irwin Berson signals toward the bell, so let's go up to the ring for the introductions.

BERSON—Ladies and gentlemen, this is our main event, 15 rounds . . . the mandatory eight count will be in effect . . . the three-knockdown rule has been waived . . . scoring will be on the 10-point must system . . . Introducing, in the white trunks, at 5 feet 9 inches and 150½ pounds, former welter and middleweight champion of the world . . . Emile Griffith.

And his opponent, wearing black trunks, former three division contestant, and Hall of Famer, at 5 feet 11 inches and 160 pounds, the Real McCoy . . . Kid McCoy.

ROUND ONE—McCoy weaves in, catches a couple of shots on the hands. Emile jabs his face. McCoy tries a left to the body, but Griffith pulls back. Griffith hooks beautifully to the mouth. McCoy misses a haymaker, then tries a jab to the face, it's short. Griffith takes a left to the mouth and hooks hard to the nose. McCoy pumps a light left to the head, slides back, jabs the mouth, blocks and spins away.

ROUND TWO—They exchange jabs to the mouth. Griffith is tagged with two good jabs at the mouth. Griffith sends a solid right to the mouth of the Kid. McCoy dances back (Continued on page 33)

PHILLY'S FIGHT HISTORY FEATURES GREATS GALORE

By TED CARROLL

WHEN the gentle Quakers founded Philadelphia back in Colonial times they hardly could have foreseen that pugilism was to find such a welcome and enduring haven in the 'City of Brotherly Love.' As the site of the signing of the Declaration of Independence on that fateful July 4th, 1776, the city's place in history is forever secure. But notwithstanding the difference in importance, Philadelphia's spot in boxing's history is equally eminent.

The ring game has flourished there since the turn of the century, minus the spells of illegality which have interrupted boxing activity in places like New York and Chicago.

If one individual could be singled out most as responsible for Philadelphia's boxing durability it would have to be Herman "Muggsy" Taylor. The octogenarian promoter, still active after more than a half century of labor, became noted for the "All-Star" extravaganzas he put on in Philly in partnership with Bobby Gunnis back in World War I.

In the long years since, either solo, or in alliance with outside collaborators, "Muggsy" has held his position in the front rank of entrepreneurs. His most recent offering, in conjunction with Madison Square Garden, the Emile Griffith-Gypsy Joe Harris bout on August 4 in Philly, was a rousing success both artistically and financially.

The largest crowd to see a boxing match anywhere in the world—102,000 people—turned out for a Philadelphia presentation, the second Dempsey-Tunney fight at Municipal Stadium on September 23, 1926.

All of the greats of the past half century have appeared in Philadelphia in every division from flyweight to heavyweight. For many years, boxing was so popular in Philadelphia, that holiday fights—often on Christmas Day—were solid attractions.

In the great days of vaudeville, song-and-dance men scored heavily singing, "Tell them what I did to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, but don't tell them what he did to me."

With a boxing tradition as strong as this, it's not surprising that the long and imposing list of fine Philadelphia fighters contains the names of outstanding champions.

In Joe Frazier, Quakertown has a superlative heavyweight who is recognized as world champion not only in his state of Pennsylvania, but in New York, Massachusetts, Maine and Rhode Island, as well. Other Philly titleholders whose recognition was more complete were:

Light heavyweights: Battling Levinsky, Tommy Loughran, Harold Johnson and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Middleweight: Joey Giardello.

Junior welterweight: Johnny Jadick.

Lightweight: Bob Montgomery.

Featherweight: Benny Bass.

Flyweight: Midget Wolgast.

Giardello was Brooklyn-born, but started his career in Philadelphia, did most of his boxing there and was identified with the city throughout his career.

Philly's four light heavyweight champions were all unusually clever men; genuine ring scientists who were masters of the art. Tommy Loughran was referred to as the "Phantom of Philly." At the age of 40, Harold Johnson remains one of the most skilled operatives in the ring.

Two of Philadelphia's greatest fighters, lefty Lew Tendler and old Jack Blackburn, never became champions. Tendler had the misfortune to be a contemporary of the great Benny Leonard, whom he met twice. He is invariably regarded as the best of the left-handed boxers and the superior of many more fortunate ones who became champions.

Blackburn, who was to become famous as the teacher of Joe Louis, was a rangy fellow who weighed only about 150 pounds but thought nothing of meeting and beating men 50 pounds heavier.

According to that venerable authority, Charlie Rose, Blackburn was one of the greatest boxers of all time. He was a protege of the late Billy McCarney, himself a Philadelphian and a fistic celebrity in his own right.

Since the end of the Second World War, Philadelphia fighters have endured the frowns rather than the smiles of fortune where ring titles were involved. Gil Turner was one of the best fighters ever produced in Philly, and one of the greatest of what the British call "value-for-money" fighters yet seen in the ring.

He faced Kid Gavilan for the welterweight title in Philly in 1952, as an undefeated challenger who had swept all before him. But it was his tough luck to have the Cuban Hawk turn in one of his greatest fights. The men fought a a blistering pace for 10 rounds before Gavilan halted the Philadelphian in the 11th in one of the most stirring championship matches yet held. Win or lose, Gil Turner never disappointed the fans. All his matches were classics of sustained action.

Philly's most brilliant prospects included Sugar Hart, a sleek welterweight who showed such talent as an amateur that he was considered a cinch to become a champion. But the good-looking, flossy dressing Sugar was too sweet to the ladies. This short circuited a most promising career.

Lightweight Len Matthews was another Philadelphia comer of recent vintage who fell by the wayside, as did Jimmy Soo, part Chinese lightweight who could both box and punch, but whose chin was pure china.

Thirty-odd years ago big Jack Gross looked like a genuine Jewish heavyweight hope, but he proved unable to solve the clever style of neighbor light heavyweight Tommy Loughran. Philly heavies Gus Dorazio and Al Ettore were tough nuts until they tangled with Joe Louis.

Many of the ring's greatest men engaged in crucial bouts in Quakertown. In 1918 Jack Dempsey dazzled a Philly crowd by swarming all over clever Battling Levinsky and then knocking him out in three rounds.

Rocky Marciano had to come from behind before winning the heavyweight title from Jersey Joe Walcott in the 13th round in Philly in 1952. Benny Leonard turned in a classic performance knocking out featherweight champion Johnny Kilbane there in three rounds in 1917.

Gene Tunney had an unhappy experience in the city. His bout with Jack Renault was halted and declared "no contest" in the fourth round because of lack of action back in 1923. Tony Canzoneri was a great fighter but Philadelphia's Johnny Jadick had his number. He twice defeated Canzoneri, winning the junior welterweight championship from Tony in 1932.

Sugar Ray Robinson had some great moments in Philly rings. He knocked out Bobo Olson there in 1950 and turned in one of his most sparkling performances against Kid Gavilan there in 1949. In 1936 Jersey Joe Walcott knocked out Phil Johnson and 14 years later he knocked out Phil's son Harold in a Philly ring.

Many observers thought Ezzard Charles had regained his title from heavyweight Jersey Joe Walcott in Philadelphia in 1952 but the judging officials thought otherwise. Back in the long ago—1907—Jack Johnson knocked out old Bob Fitzsimmons in two rounds in Philly. A couple of ring immortals, Stanley Ketchel and Sam Langford fought six no-decision rounds there in 1910.

The ill luck which has trailed Philadelphia's better prospects struck again recently when welterweight Gypsy Joe Harris, a

ANENT ELLIS-PATTERSON

SINCE the Ellis-Patterson fight in Sweden, with its highly controversial decision by referee Harold Valan, of New York, in favor of Ellis, fan mail directed to The Ring Magazine has been virtually limited to that contest.

With letters still coming in from all parts of the world, the total has reached 586. Never before in the nearly half century of Ring history was there so vehement a mass protest from the readers of this publication.

The mail breaks down to 506 protests against the decision, 45 in favor of Ellis, and 35 declaring for a draw.

The letters favoring Patterson run from the customary tenor of the dissident to the violent protest of the user of four-letter words.

Some attacks on the referee are absolutely unbridled. And all on the basis of what virtually every one of the 506 saw on television screens thousands of miles from the battle scene.

J. A. Delassis, Scranton, Pa., asks if The Ring is going to "investigate this matter further." The answer is that no investigation is possible in New York of a decision rendered in Sweden, and there accepted as official.

Curtis Vanderzoul, Waverly, N.Y., insists that Patterson could have lost after the seventh round only by a knockout.

FLOYD LOOKED WINNER

Harley Grantham, Corpus Christi, Tex. says, "The cameras certainly made it look like Patterson. But I have seen them fool the public in the past. I am willing to go with Valan."

Billy Verdan, Richmond, Va., writes, "I never go overboard on impressions of fights unless I have been at the ringside. I thought I saw a draw."

Kjell Trippestad, Oslo, Norway, favors Patterson and says "Floyd is No. 4, behind Liston, Frazier and Kirkman."

Baird B. Langworthy, Salem, Oregon, calls it "a travesty on justice." Walter Perkins, Manchester, N.H., writes, "Is there any way to reverse the decision?" The answer is, emphatically, "NO."

From Lodi, Cal., comes a letter with seven signatures—La Don Bader, Rick Russell, Loren Shively, John Drummond, Alex Kruger, Dan Angstead, Tony Boccia. They say, in unison, "Who ever saw so outrageous a decision? Patterson won 10 of the 15 rounds."

Other capsule quotes: "Valan must have been watching another fight. Horace Reid, Panama City, R.P."

"Must Floyd kill to win?" Jack Miller, York, Pa."

"Patterson won. He was very unlucky to lose Valan's decision. Karl Olof Hallman, Ostersund, Sweden."

"If the boxing world in general has anything against Patterson, let it be made known to all of us. George Van Gorden, Denver, Colo."

"I am thoroughly disgusted with professional boxing, after the decision against Patterson. Philip Hastings, St. Paul, Minn."

NEW YORK VOTE FOR VALAN

"Valan is an honest, qualified, knowledgable referee. To call a man a burglar on what a TV screen shows thousands of miles away hardly is true Americanism. Abe Burgdorf, New York."

"I am glad that both fighters were Negroes, and the phony issue of racism could not be raised after the decision. I thought Ellis won. Dewey Hampton, Chapel Hill, N.C."

"Before the fight I was all for Jimmy. After the first round I gave up on him. Jose Chavira, San Gabriel, Cal."

"I was infuriated at the unjust decision. I saw Ellis knocked down. He did not slip. Bill Walz, Monrovia, Cal."

From Long Beach, Cal. came a letter signed by 21 supporters of Patterson, who sent a protest to the WBA. They are Janet Britton, E. Wald, I. Church, F. Vogel, Allen Ravne, Edward Dixon, L. R. Britton, C. E. Atkinson, Paul Steiner, Marino Spinelli, Richard Marsell, Charles Rosenberg, Gerald Swindell, Donald Kathan, Nancy Loudermilk, Ben Baher, Camilo Perez, Joe Molina, Garrett Bean, and Larry Fein.

"Valan deserves the booby prize for the worst decision of 1968. Jeff Whishen, British Columbia, Canada."

"I am not saying it was not a close fight. But Patterson held a decisive edge. Louis Realbuto, Albany, N.Y."

"I was amazed that four unofficial decisions by experts in New York supported Valan. John Seller, El Monte, Cal."

"Our worst referees, and we have a lot of those cut eye experts, could not have outdone Valan. Henry Dickenson, Brighton, England."

SAW ELLIS WIN, CLOSE

"I am amazed at the way boxing fans have ripped Valan to pieces on the basis of a TV picture of a fight. I thought Ellis deserved a nod. Just that and not more. James J. Handy, London, England."

"Floyd won 12 to three. I have lost confidence in the WBA. Tommy Howard, Newport, N.C."

"It was with shock and disbelief that I heard Valan's decision. It was the most flagrant thing in my experience as a viewer of fights. James T. Farley, Fort Lauderdale, Fla."

And so it goes, on and on. If you wrote in about the decision and your name is not mentioned, forgive us. We have got to cut it short.

DOWNGRADES ELLIS AND QUARRY

I drive a truck for a living. I have a wife and four kids and supporting them against the tide of inflation is a terrible job. However, now and then I blow myself to a $10 seat at a fight.

I saw the Ellis-Quarry mess and I almost fell asleep. Ellis wouldn't fight and Quarry couldn't. When I saw Jerry blow his big chance in the thirteenth round I got sick to my stomach and felt like going out to the box office and asking for my money back. Promoter Chargin is a fair man and I believe he would have refunded my dough.

Quarry was off form. Ellis stuck to Dundee's orders and stayed out of the fight, making Quarry look like a sucker. Well, Jerry just didn't merely look like a sucker. He was.

If Ellis had tried to fight like that in New York he would have been chased out of the ring.

Anyway, my wife is delighted that it was so poor a fight because I have vowed not to pay another ten to see another highly touted, horrible imitation of a scrap. Johnny Paychek or Red Burman would have beaten them both.

Bob Denham
San Francisco, Cal.

KUDOS FOR THE RING RATINGS

Month after month you rated Frazier the No. 1 contender and I kept asking myself if The Ring had the right slant.

After seeing Ellis and Quarry on TV, I have to hand it to you. Your ratings were right, and they still are.

If Ellis and Quarry were to fight again I would not give it the time to watch them on TV, let alone pay for seeing them exchange missed swings.

I believe that Cassius Clay would have stopped Ellis and Quarry in five heats. I believe Joe Louis would have scared Ellis and Quarry out of the ring before the opening bell.

Actually I have no real beef because if I don't like these people fighting for Confederate bills, all I have to do is to turn them off.

Ellis will have to fight Frazier. Frazier will have to fight Ellis. They are professionals out for the dough. Let them call each other names for a while. And keep Ellis away from Clay's connections. He is a level headed guy and will stay away any way. But the situation has to be watched.

The Chatter Box

By JOHN ORT

ODDITY OF THE MONTH—A stunned crowd at the Portland, Me. Exposition building sat in amazement as popular George Johnson received a count of 22 by referee Pete Bennett before he stopped the bout in the sixth round. The action went like this: David Beckles, Trinidad, B.W.I., decked Johnson with a flurry of punches. The referee started the count and was up to six, but broke it off to force Beckles to a neutral corner. He then began the count for the second time, but stopped again to return Beckles to the neutral corner. He started the count for the third time and was up to nine when Johnson got to his feet. George then took a savage barrage to the body, which forced the referee to stop the contest. Fans in Portland will be telling their children for years to come that George slept here—not Washington, but Johnson.

Promoter Don Elbaum had four shows called off during the last two months due to injuries to boxers who were to headline his shows. Don canceled out of Toronto, Detroit, Milwaukee and Buffalo. He did manage to put on a bout in Akron, Ohio, between Nino Benvenuti, current middleweight king, and local boy Doyle Baird, which ended in a draw and cost Mr. Elbaum $17,000. Don proved one thing—if you're persistent enough you can lose money in boxing.

Milwaukee's light heavyweight hope, Karl Zurheide, is now handled by Perry Payne of Houston and Matt L. Baulie of Fond du Lac, Wis. . . . John Anderson of Fond du Lac applied for a promoter's license in his home town, and plans to run pro shows there in the near future . . . Juan Maldonado, flyweight contender of the past, died recently in San Francisco, Calif. . . . HAY VALORES DE BOXEO EN ARGENTINA PERO, NECESITA MAYOR DEPURACION

Por PEDRO GALIANA

RAMON LaCRUZ, el campeón welter de Sud América, falló en su intento de ganar para la América Latina la corona mundial de la división; pero, eso no quere decir que esta derrota represente un golpe duro al boxeo argentino . . . Sin presentar el asunto como disculpa, "El Matador" descubrió, después del encuentro, que desde el segundo round había estado peleando con una lesión en el brazo derecho, razón por la cual no pudo utilizarlo debidamente . . . Y ésa es el arma decisiva que le permitió acumular un record de 80 victorias con solo 5 derrotas en los cuadriláteros sureños . . . 61 de esas victorias fueron por knock out . . . Y Ramón no pudo aplicar sus golpes debidamente, a pesar de que el mismo campeón Curtis Cokes, admitió, después de la pelea de New Orleans, que en dos o tres ocasiones sintió bien la fuerza del as argentino.

¿Hay material en Argentina para que el boxeo pueda considerarse debidamente establecido en la tierra de Luis Angel Firpo . . .? Todos los informes que recibimos de Buenos Aires nos permiten asegurar que si, y como los informes son valiosos, nos apoyamos firmemente en ellos para pensar que Argentina ocupa, después de Méjico, el mejor lugar del pugilismo en la América Latina.

Julio Ernesto Vila, que mantiene firme contacto con todas las actividades pugilísticas del Plata, nos proporciona los detalles que buscamos, y de acuerdo con la información recibida, éste es el estado del boxeo en la tierra del bandoneón:

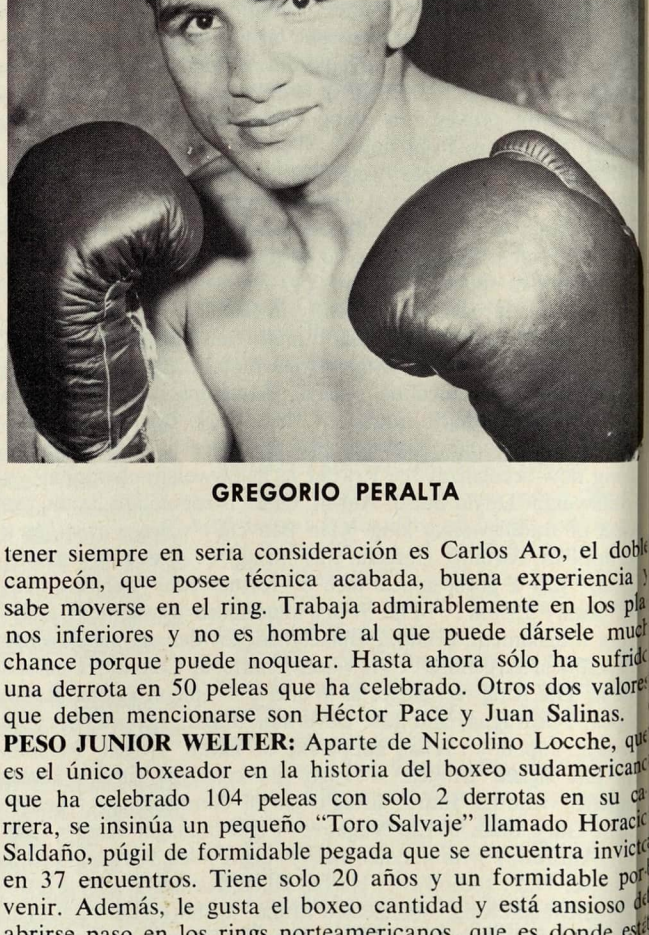
PESO MOSCA: Horacio Accavallo, pese a sus 34 años, no está acabado ni cosa que se le parezca. Tiene una importante pelea revancha con el chileno Germán Luco y debe mantenerse en primera línea por algún tiempo más. Otro valor: José Severino, aunque le falta cierto fogueo internacional, tiene 32 peleas celebradas y solo 2 derrotas, lo que significa que no es ningún novato del ring.

PESO GALLO: (Bantam) En realidad, por Sud América no hay un peso gallo que tenga verdadera calidad. Quizás a esto se deba que Valentín Galeano, el valiente paraguayo, conocido por Kid Pascualito, sigue siendo el rey de la división por la América del Sur.

PESO PLUMA: El mejor de todos es el campeón sudamericano, el chileno Godfrey Stevens, que tiene 64 peleas celebradas y solo 4 reveses sufridos. En Argentina avanza de modo firme Luis Romo, y logra impresionantes exhibiciones el ex-campeón del Sur, Jorge Ramos. Dentro de la América del Sur, parece que el Caraqueño Pedro Gómez, de Venezuela, es el que mejores condiciones presenta.

PESO LIVIANO JUNIOR: Una figura grande en la división es Carlos Cañete, doble campeón, que a pesar de sus 28 años sigue imponiéndose de modo convincente en los rings. Tiene 79 peleas celebradas y solo ha sido derrotado 3 veces. Pega muy fuerte y depende más de su ataque que de su defensa. 51 de sus victories han sido por la vía del sueño, lo cual da una idea bastante exacta del enorme punch que posee.

PESO LIVIANO: Un hombre que la cronica pugilística debe tener siempre en seria consideración es Carlos Aro, el doble campeón, que posee técnica acabada, buena experiencia y sabe moverse en el ring. Trabaja admirablemente en los planos inferiores y no es hombre al que puede dársele mucha chance porque puede noquear. Hasta ahora sólo ha sufrido una derrota en 50 peleas que ha celebrado. Otros dos valores que deben mencionarse son Héctor Pace y Juan Salinas.



GREGORIO PERALTA

PESO JUNIOR WELTER: Aparte de Niccolino Locche, que es el único boxeador en la historia del boxeo sudamericano que ha celebrado 104 peleas con solo 2 derrotas en su carrera, se insinúa un pequeño "Toro Salvaje" llamado Horacio Saldaño, púgil de formidable pegada que se encuentra invicto en 37 encuentros. Tiene solo 20 años y un formidable porvenir. Además, le gusta el boxeo cantidad y está ansioso de abrirse paso en los rings norteamericanos, que es donde está siempre la buena escuela del deporte. Horacio Saldaño es otro contendiente de empuje. Lo mismo que el brasileño Joao Henrique, que mantiene su invicto en 22 peleas que ha celebrado, aunque es un muchacho que teniendo condiciones por arrobas, pelea muy espaciado. En Argentina hay dos buenos prospectos en Juan Aranda y Luis Horacio Cabral. Los dos tienen condiciones. Los dos lucen bien y los dos deben mejorar grandemente.

UP AND DOWN

Old Broadway

By SAM TAUB

UP and down Broadway one runs into many figures in our boxing game. One is the likable 59-year-old member of the Madison Square Garden matchmaking staff, Anthony Francis "Duke" Stefano, who was born in Greenwich Village and was brought up in Weehawken, N.J.

A 1927 Golden Glover he was in the navy in World War II. Started his career as matchmaker in 1945 and booked for more clubs than any other matchmaker we know of.

Here's the parade: Newark Laurel Gardens; last two years of boxing at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, with the Monahan Brothers; White Plains County Center; Jersey City Gardens; Meadowbrook Bowl in Newark; Moose Hall in Trenton; Union City State Garden; Sunnyside in L.I. City; St. Nicholas Arena and, finally, in the Garden.

Currently he also is matchmaker for the world's smallest boxing club, Plaza Arena, in Secaucus, N.J., seating 800, always a turnaway. Developed many boxing stars, among his latest: Frank DePaula, "Irish" Pat Murphy and Chuck Wepner. If a man is a boxer, "Duke" knows his history.

The Lambs Club had to turn away 500 at the "Lambast" night for Jack Dempsey. It was a wonderful show, with the theatrical world doing its bit. Harry Hershfield and his sidekick from "Can You Top This," Senator Ford, were among the good-natured hecklers of the honored guest.

M.C. Jack Waldron, another biggie from the club, handled the two-hour affair with class. "Yours Truly" had a short session with the champion. The Lambs are talking up another Dempsey night.

C.W. Post College, Brookville, L.I., had a splendid turnout of boxing greats, headed by Floyd Patterson, at their shindig to raise funds for the Olympic athletes. Among those we introduced besides the former two-time heavyweight king, were Kid Gavilan, Petey Scalzo, Paul Berlenbach, Willie Pep, Tony Zale, Joey Giardello and Jose Torres. Others were Billy Graham, Ruby Goldstein, and Charley Varre.

Ben Jeby, former middleweight title holder, associated with Ring No. 8 Veteran Boxers, now is employed by New York as Building Department plumbing expert. He's living at 140 Fulton St., Brooklyn, married to Evelyn, has two married children, Kenny and Joannie, and is grandfather of three girls.

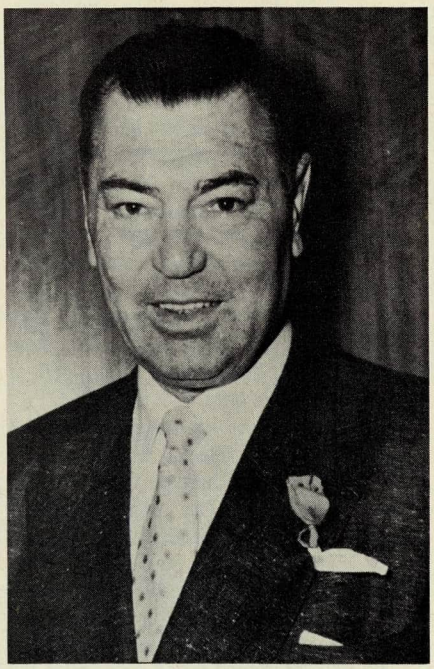
Al Lang, veteran fight manager from Valley Stream, Long Island, was an amateur boxer and also played semi-pro football with the Valley Stream Red Riders. Lang, who boxed as an amateur, at one time managed Sonny Horne, middleweight from Niles, Ohio, as well as his brother Roland, who was a welter, Indian Gomez, the Cuban middleweight, and in his final fights Gunner Barlund, originally managed by the late Paul Damski.



JACK DEMPSEY

His father Isadore was the founder of Lang's Department Store, which has been in business for 75 years. Lang has his own gymnasium in Lynbrook, L.I. Among his new fighters is Donato Taduano, from Montreal, Canada, 1967-68 Golden Gloves middleweight champion, member of the Canadian Olympic team. He's co-manager of Taduano with Roger Larivie, Canada.

Now and then on Broadway I run into Phillie Terranova, former NBA featherweight king, who has deserted the Bronx for Astoria. His brother Frankie, who fought as a feather and lightweight, still lives in the Bronx, while brother Jack, a lightweight, now makes his home in Corona, L.I.

Peter Fuller, Cadillac representative in Boston, comes to town to take in the Garden fights. Told us his former heavyweight, Tom McNeeley, who is a member of the Bay State Boxing Commission is one of his outstanding salesmen. Peter, who still hopes to find a good fighter, says his son Peter, Jr., one of seven, who is 12 years old, would like to be a fighter.

Ran into Syd Peskin, welterweight who boxed in the 1930s, and was managed by K.O. Phil Kaplan. Syd says he's interested in a bar in Atlantic City. Peskin told me of the passing of Charley Bedami, the Yorkville lightweight, a good competitor in the 1930s, who suffered a heart attack at the age of 55. He fought draws with Ambers and Larkin.

In Dempsey's, they were talking of Billy Hogan, a welter managed by the late Gus Wilson, who came to America when Georges Carpentier sailed over . . . Gus later was also trainer to Jack Dempsey. In the old days, when Hogan came to the Ridgewood and other New York clubs, he invariably brought several busloads of admirers with him and they whooped it up. Hogan is the owner of 59 Diner, West Nyack. Old cronies welcomed.

Never did Kid Gavilan, former welter champion, experience such a heart-warming reception as he got when he came back and made his appearance in the Garden. The man who had 143 professional bouts, with a record of 103 wins, 30 defeats and six draws, retained his smile and good nature.

Jimmy O'Connor, who always does nice things for people, honored four octogenarians in Jack Dempsey's restaurant with a luncheon. The guests were Ned Brown, 86, Charley Rose, 82, Phil Rosen, 80, your reporter, 82. It was also the birthday of Pearl Barton, who loves boxing, hockey, basketball and all sports, and who is a close friend of all the honored guests. Dempsey's was ajitter as Jack, Tommy Loughran and Ruby Goldstein paid their respects. Also sitting in was K.O. Phil Kaplan.

THE LATIN VIEWPOINT

hacerse realmente justicia, aunque no puede negarse que se enfrentó con un hombre que tiene más experiencia y técnica más depurada.

La pelea Cokes-LaCruz ha servido para demostrar la necesidad que hay de que los boxeadores de la América Latina, especialmente los que pelean más al Sur, experimenten mayor cruce con los pugilistas norteamericanos. Hay muy buen material de boxeo en la América Latina, pero, los muchachos están faltos de técnica, y únicamente el cruce con los mejores hombres de Norteamérica puede facilitarles la habilidad que necesitan para imponerse . . . LaCruz retornará, porque solo tiene 29 años, y cuando lo haga tendrá experiencia sufiiciente para hacerse sentir.

PESO MEDIANO JUNIOR: Esteban Osuna, que dió una buena pelea a Luis Manuel Rodríguez, es uno de los mejores valores de la América del Sur. Pero, repetimos con Osuna lo que hemos dicho con otros elementos argentinos y sudamericanos. Les hace falta más cruce internacional. De modo que si los promotores americanos les proporcionan el chance, no solo tendrán material de colorido, sino que podrán mejorar el standard pugilístico de los muchachos.

PESO MEDIO: Carlos Monzón, que tiene 26 años, con record de 60 victorias y 3 derrotas en 63 encuentros que ha celebrado, tiene punch suficiente para voltear a cualquiera. Recientemente dió cuenta de Douglas Huctley. Y aunque no tiene bonito estilo, es un valor positivo, que sabe desenvolverse en el ring. Tiene un empate con Briscoe, a pesar de que lució ganador.

Un prospecto que todos deben seguir con interés es Jorge Víctor Ahumada, que está invicto en 6 peleas que ha celebrado como profesional. Se impuso en los Juegos Panamericanos de Winnipeg, y desde entonces ha estado peleando como profesional, demonstrando clase estelarísima. Debe mejorar por días. Y debe ser peligroso en la división. También lucen buenas figuras, Juan Aguilar y Antonio Aguilar. Este último muy técnico, pero, tiene la desventaja de que no posee gran punch.

PESO SEMI-PESADO: Gregorio Peralta es un hombre que todos los fanáticos le conocen. Pero tiene 33 años y eso le hace un poco viejo ya. Solo ha sido vencido 5 veces en su larga carrera que comprende 77 peleas. Tiene problemas con el peso. Y como completo no parece ser el mismo hombre. Su hermano más chico, Avenamar, que solo tiene 25 años, parece progresar por días y cuenta con clase para resultar una figura de interés. Ha celebrado ya 43 peleas y solo ha sido derrotado una vez. Dos buenos prospectos son: Adolfo Jorge Cardozo, que está invicto en 10 matches y Miguel Angel Páez, tiene clase nacional.

PESOS PESADOS: Ringo es lo mejor de Argentina y nada más. Alberto Lovell se hace esperar demasiado. Le ganó a Leslie bien, pero la pelea no fué muy vistosa. Tiene 26 años y solo ha sido derrotado una vez en 27 peleas. Corletti está ahora por tierras americanas, y busca abrirse paso. Pero, no tiene punch y esto, en su peso es fatal.

La verdadera sensación de Argentina es Horacio Saldaño. Estuvo en New Orleans, cuando la presentación de Ramón LaCruz frente a Curtis Cokes, y ofreció una demonstración de empuje que dejó a toda la crítica americana satisfecha. Acaba de cumplir los 21 años. Y es uno de esos muchachos que sale a fajarse de principio a fin. Gusta y como tiene condiciones, debe progresar.

¿Opinión general del boxeo argentino? No está mal, aunque necesita mucho de cruce con los ases americanos para acostumbrarse a la técnica moderna del box a fin de dar mejores peleas frente a los campeones americanos.

Little Whips Mazz But Referee And EBU Don't Concur

ROME, Italy—Sandro Mazzinghi, junior middleweight "champion" of the world, and Freddie Little, of Las Vegas, will meet again for the title, which the EBU has declared open and vacant, and yet neither open nor vacant.

One of the dizziest decisions yet delivered in a championship fight came from Herbert Tomser, a referee imported from West Germany.

There were 14,000 fans at the fight, in which Little gave Mazz a thorough trouncing and, by American rules, knocked him out as the Italian did not come out for round nine.

However, Tomser, who would not meet the press after his odd verdict, insisted that it was "No Contest."

For 48 hours officials of the EBU debated over this decision and then solved their dilemma by declaring the title vacant, and yet closed to the winner of a rematch between Mazz and Little.

American fans will find it virtually impossible to understand either Tomser's decision or the EBU solution.

Tomser stopped the fight as the bell rang for the ninth round. Under EBU rules, which should be repealed, if a fight is stopped at midpoint for fistic reasons it is No Contest. If stopped at midpoint by the doctor, it is a TKO.

Tomser stopped the brawl after the midpoint, but he insisted that "for me" eight rounds made half of 15.

Jim Deskin, of Las Vegas, member of the WBA Championship Committee, was at the fight and said that it had been stopped by the doctor and this was a TKO against Mazzinghi, with a title for Little, 32-year-old school teacher.

Mazzinghi expressed disgust with his showing and, apparently, with the Tomser verdict, and said it was a fight that he wanted re-fought.

Hayward Gets Nod, Griffith Lands One Vote From Judge

By ARCHIE PIROLLI

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Did Stanley Kitten Hayward actually beat Emile Griffith in their 10-round fight here, and drive the former middleweight champion out of the No. 1 contender spot?

Or did Griffith find himself the victim of error and suffer a damaging decision which Hayward did not quite earn?

These questions were left dangling after the Associated Press had ruled the fight a 48 to 43 affair in favor of Griffith.

Hayward, hitherto rated No. 6 as a welterweight, came in at 155 pounds. Griffith weighed 156.

Referee Zack Clayton called it 47-46 for Hayward. So did judge Lou Tress.

Judge Jack Styes saw Griffith win, 47-44.

It was a situation which appeared to call for a rematch, perhaps in New York.

Hayward's decision resulted in his being shifted to the middleweight ratings, and dropped Griffith below Don Fullmer, now middleweight contender No. 1.

Dana And Beard, Old Time Battlers, Go West

HOUSTON, Tex.—Boxing people were saddened by the passing of several fellow members of the fraternity in recent months. Art Dana, a long-time fight man who promoted in Texas, died of a heart attack.

Cancer claimed former lightweight standout Lou Beard, who won many a fight. Lou, who drove a taxi in Houston in recent years, was active during the 1930s.

share of the loot, all in $500 bills, before taking the dive.

They say that when he received the signal from his wife, a waved handkerchief, that all was well, he went through with his side of the bargain, took a punch to the midsection, one to the jaw, and relaxed on the canvas.

The question has never been settled. In 1916 Johnson, in need of funds, sold a confession to Nat Fleischer for $250. It can be read elsewhere in this magazine. Fleischer states that Johnson later repudiated the confession but that he had needed the money, and that no one was likely to purchase a statement to the effect that he had lost honestly.

According to Fleischer, Jack intended to sell his confession to the Morning World, and The Ring Editor purchased it to suppress it, since Jack admitted it was not true.

Which is the real story of the fight? Was Jack's confession a fake?

Checking into the facts always has indicated that Willard was free of any connection with a barney and that if the fight had been fixed it was all on Johnson's side.

Johnson was his own worst enemy. How many champions would sell a confession of fakery? This is not the mark of the martyr. His disregard for normal sportsmanship exhibited in a ring was the cause of much antagonism by blacks and whites. His derisive gestures to opponents as well as vocal comments to opponents when he had them beaten did little to endear him to the boxing public.

The play blows up the importance of Johnson in his time much more than was true. He was far from the concern of people around the world as dramatized by Sackler.

The world was in a war and Johnson was not front page. He was sports page news. If any single man was responsible for molding opinion against Johnson it was Jack London. In a newspaper series he characterized Johnson as a boxer with contempt for his fellow man, as the man with "the golden smile." By pointing out how Johnson taunted his opponents, London put the finishing touches to an already besmirched career. London's book was the fuel that fed a fire of anti-Johnson feeling.

In an attempt to gain evidence as to the guilt or innocence of Johnson in his loss to Willard, I went to a good friend, Jim Jacobs, whose collection of fight films is unsurpassed. He ran off the footage of the blow by blow fight at Havana.

Watching the film makes it hard to believe that Johnson was anything but serious in attempting to win. The blow which knocked him out was a right hand that carried a bomb. As he fell to the canvas Johnson entwined his arms about the body of Willard, attempting to maintain his feet, and almost dragged Jess to the canvas with him.

Why would a man throwing a fight hold on to his antagonist? Is it not more logical that he would fall right to the canvas?

Pictures on these pages which have been taken from the movie have never before been published. In Johnson's confession, he calls attention to his keeping his arms up high over his eyes to protect them from the sun. He felt safe to do so since the only still shot that found its way out of Cuba was the one seen by all sports fans, with his arm high over his eyes, next to the last photo on these pages. But our last photo shows how his arm relaxed and fell on his head, how his legs dropped flat to the canvas.

Johnson had said that he kept his legs off the canvas because it was so hot. Our picture, the last of the series on these pages, never seen before, shows Johnson relaxed with his legs pressed hard against the hot canvas.

Our conclusion is that Johnson lost his bout with Willard fair and square. He lost because he was in poor physical condition and because he was on the receiving end of a knockout punch.

In 1946 Johnson died as he had lived, with gusto and style. He crushed the life out of his body on a North Carolina road by bashing his car into a bridge abutment at a speed far above the legal limit.

Just prior to his last trip he paid a visit to The Ring office. His "golden smile" and his black beret, worn at a jaunty angle, made it hard to believe that this man was on his financial uppers. His sole support at the time was his association with a flea circus on New York's 42nd Street.

Nothing daunted the spirit of L'il Artha as he entertained us by showing his famous stance and how he caught blows with his open hands. He admitted with Johnsonian modesty that he was the best fighter of all time and felt that he could best the new crop of heavyweights with ease.

"Heavyweights who have come along since my time don't know how to defend themselves properly," he said.

He found fault with almost all the top notchers. He charged that Joe Louis held his left too low, Braddock couldn't punch, Max Baer had only a right hand, Conn wasn't strong enough, Primo Carnera was only a "big man" who clubbed, Max Schmeling, "had a good right hand but was a poor defensive fighter."

He had nice words to say about Ezzard Charles, who he felt was one of the best of the younger crop. He was kind to Jack Dempsey: "He had a good punch to the heart and head, a real tough man, that Jack, but not as good as I was in keeping the other man from hitting him."

In contrast with "The Great White Hope," in which Johnson speaks with a Dixie accent, the true Johnson spoke faultless English.

He was a man of stature, a man with a natural love of high life, a man who lived for himself and his pleasures and cared little for the problems of his race. Everything about Johnson was colorful . . . he was a champion, and from his intelligent wide-open eyes to his proud demeanor, he never left any doubt that the world should know that he was just that . . . The Champion.

He relished the picking by Nat Fleischer of him as the best heavyweight of all time. Johnson as a fighter or a man was to be reckoned with . . . a man not soon forgotten.

Ramon was warned by the referee for butting in the sixth round and for a low blow in the ninth.

LaCruz blamed an injury to his left arm. He said he hurt his arm in the first round.

Ramon contended that the champ hit him with one blow that hurt, but that otherwise he was in good condition and took Cokes' punches with no trouble.

"He never landed any good punches," Cokes remarked, "so I don't know how strong a puncher he is. I had three opportunities to put him out but was not able to follow up.

"I hit LaCruz with a right to the rib in the third; an uppercut in the seventh and a right to the body in the ninth, but missed the follow up.

"He confused me all right, I like a fighter to come at me . . . Ramon didn't."

A total of 5127 fans paid a gross $34,570, and a net of $29,470.

Cokes was 9 to 5 but he looked like a 1-5 shot.

Jerry Pellegrini, New Orleans favorite returned to the ring in a special tenner with Cassius Greene, stablemate of Cokes, and chalked up an easy victory. It was Pellegrini's first start since being handed his first kayo by Pete Toro several months ago.

Pelly had to survive a fourth-round knockdown. This he did and managed to take the play away from Greene for the remainder of the battle. Both fighters weighed 149. Referee Pete Giarrusso and judge Lucien Joubert scored it 6-3-1, while judge Eddie Brown saw it 7-3.

In another 10-rounder, Willie Warren, 159, Corpus Christi, Tex., won narrowly over Carlos Salinas, 161, Argentina.

Willie Lee, 207, scored a fourth-round TKO over Beau Williford, 234, North Carolina, who was making his pro debut. Referee Jefferson stopped the bout in 1:0[illegible] of the fourth.

Joe Cokes, 155¾, Dallas, the 21-year-old brother of Curtis, stopped Freddie Calaway, 159¼, in 2:10 of the second round.

FLEISCHER BOUGHT CONFESSION BUT DIDN'T BELIEVE IT

the goat. Sure, I got paid well for what I did, but they never would have got me to go through with this for any amount of money, had I not believed they would get me out of my difficulties and enable me to go back to my native land.

No one but Curley, Frazee and I knew what arrangements had been made by us. I didn't tell my wife about it until the morning of the fight and then I confided in her and informed her of her part of the plot—the collection of the money still due me, and the signals that would enable me to know that she had been paid in full and that I could let Willard win. I can never forget how sad she was, but she went through with it.

Curley had paid me my fight percentage before I had left the hotel. No one knew the money was there for safe keeping. I told my wife to watch at the ringside and that when I signalled her, she should go to the box office to collect from Curley the remainder of what was due me. Then she was to return and nod to me after which I would finish the plot.

Delay in paying the promised extra money was due to an incomplete count at the box office but at the end of the twenty-fourth round, Mrs. Johnson nodded that all was well and at the end of the twenty-fifth I signalled for her to leave the arena. When I saw her go down the aisle, I decided this was the round to end it, and so it happened.

I was happy when it was all over. I didn't mind losing as I did so long as I knew that the loss would enable me to see my mother. But it didn't. I was double-crossed by the men I had trusted.

During one of my conversations with Curley, he told me, "Don't you know if you weren't champion you would not have all this trouble?" I told him that perhaps he was right in saying so. I said to him. What is your idea about the fight with Willard and myself, let me hear from you. He said to me, "How many rounds do you want to fight Willard."

I told Curley that the amount of rounds did not matter with me, as I could set the number of rounds, being the champion. and said, as far as I am concerned it can be 25, 50 or a finish fight. He said to me. "Do you think you can go that far." I said, if necessary I could go even further. A finish fight is alright with me.

Then he asked me how much money I wanted. I told him I wanted all the money I could possibly get. Curley told me that he thought he could collect a lot of money for me and also straighten my affairs with the United States Government if I should win. The next drift of conversation was that of what a great mother I had and how she loved and worshipped me.

He told me that I should see her as soon as possible. All the time I was listening to Curley and thinking to myself, I should see my mother. This night Curley and I was talking, it was in the middle part of the week. I remember telling him that I would pick him up that Saturday. Curley then told me it was necessary that he should come back to the United States very quick because he had two men in the states that would back him, Jack Gleason and Webber.

Anyway, I said, you must wait until Saturday. We met on a Saturday evening and I went to a theatre with him. We talked all through the show on the subject of the Willard-Johnson fight. I did not decide then that I would lose. I did not speak a word even to my wife on the subject. Curley did not leave as was scheduled and we were around together quite a bit. He nursed me like a baby. He tried to show me all great things that would be done for me after the Willard fight, if Willard was the winner. He said that, time and time again. Curley did not have much cash then. We talked about expenses etc., and I agreed to pay my own way to wherever the fight was to take place. Curley left London and came to America, and then I started my trip. I had to leave England on a ship bound for Buenos Aires, South America. After I got to South America, I could not cross the Andes Mountains on account of the snow, then I had to turn back from Buenos Aires.

We set sail for Barbados, West Indian Island. Then from there we went to Havana, Cuba. Immediately upon our arrival I cabled Jack Curley, and he cabled me back to stay in Havana and wait for him. I stayed at the Trocadero Hotel. Curley came over, he told me that I could not get through to Mexico. It was impossible to get through Caranza's soldiers. Pancho Villa was the man that was backing Curley. He, Pancho is the great outlaw of Mexico. He withdrew from the combination, and that left Curley flat at the time being. I opened a bank account in Havana, Cuba, to enable Curley to do some things that he wanted to do and could not do without the cash.

Curley was a cunning fellow, at least, he tried to be. After my working with him and doing most everything that he asked me to do concerning the fight, he tried to get a film to take along with me to Europe. He stalled through this session until the day came that I had to sail for Spain, and he tells me the pictures were not finished, and that he would send me a film on the first boat that left New York, or wherever he should be. I waited, and no film came. I went to a certain express company in London. I done a little private detective work myself. The day when Al Weill came to the express office for the films, I was standing behind the post in the express office close to the window in which Al Weill received the films.

As soon as the cashier took his hands off of the films, and Weill had them in his hands, I certainly grabbed the films and said, "These are mine." Weill said "Nothing doing you cannot do that." And I said "Well I did it, and I am going to keep them," meaning the films. Then Weill went to see his lawyers, and I went to see my lawyers, which was myself, and I sold the rights and the film to Jack Mailer. The lawyers tried to prohibit me from selling them but I had the lead on them and I sold them to Mailer. Then I put the films out on commission in England. This was a negative that I snatched from Weill in the express office. That is how I got the films.

I was to get so much of Willard's earnings, because after the fight I had to take it on the cuff from Frazee and Curley because if they paid me the lump sum, they didn't have any cash left. So, therefore, I trusted them to send me a certain percentage of Willard's earnings, and if I was not smart enough to get the cash money, I would have been up against it for payment. I was to have lost after the 10th round, namely the 11th.

I fought on for a couple of rounds then I said to them if they didn't come through quick, I was going to do my best to win the fight. So that stalled for a couple of rounds, and they was counting the money, they had an idea in their heads that after 12 rounds Willard might accidentally wear me down, but not so. About the 18th or 19th round I gave a couple of hard punches breaking one of his ribs, and then about the 22nd round everything was O. K. and I gave my wife a nod, and she went out of the arena.

After she left I began to feel happy and glad, believing I was going to see my mother again, and that Curley would arrange and fix matters for me.

I did not tell my wife just what I was going to do until the morning of the fight. I can never forget how sad she was, and how she cried and didn't want things to go that way.

I told her it was best for all concerned, because I had been framed in America and Curley would fix and arrange everything so that I could come back home. It was a drama, a very sad drama for some, a very happy drama for me at the moment, knowing that I would not be tantalized and pushed about after the championship had left me.

Never mind what Curley may say in the future, but he arranged for Johnson to lose the fight. I always know I lost to a man that could not beat me. There are many people that say when one is traveling abroad in Europe and can come home any time he likes, he may never wish to come home when he is free to come.

had a qualified, knowledgeable handler in his corner, and had insisted that Dempsey had been knocked out of time, Gallagher would have found himself over his noggin in trouble.

But Firpo made no claim. Dempsey got back into the ring. And the Wild Bull of the Pampas was knocked writhing by a short-arm right to the jaw in the next round.

Boxing history does not mention the two judges behind Gallagher in that fight. It does not say what Gallagher was doing while Jack was picking himself off Jack Lawrence's typewriter. It merely says, "Dempsey by a KO in 2."

Dempsey figured in quite a mixup the afternoon he knocked out Jess Willard and took the title from him on July 4, 1919 at Toledo, in three rounds.

The referee that day was Ollie Pecord. He was not one of America's standout officials. Had the fight been held anywhere else Ollie would not have been the choice. But it was Toledo and Pecord, and here is what happened in the first round.

Dempsey gave the champion a terrific beating right from the start. Jess went to the deck seven times in those three minutes.

The seventh time he was sitting on the canvas, taking the count, which Pecord failed to pick up from timekeeper Warren Barbour, former amateur champion and future U.S. Senator from New Jersey.

The bell ending the first heat sounded at seven. Jess was saved by that gong.

However, Pecord believed that Willard had been counted out and raised Dempsey's arm. A new champion had been crowned—at least that was what Pecord and Dempsey thought.

Off went Jack to his dressing room. But Barbour quickly set things right, and Jack had to come out for two more rounds.

At the end of the third round, Willard, sitting in his corner, surrendered and the slaughter was finished.

Pecord came close to achieving the "fame" which was to be attained by Walcott at Lewiston, Me., 46 years later.

Ollie was lucky he had the experienced Barbour keeping time instead of the retired printer who helped to mess things up for Walcott.

Dempsey had a strange flair for the unusual, for creating trouble for referees. By refusing to go to a neutral corner after he had decked Gene Tunney in the seventh round of their second fight, at Chicago, on September 22, 1927, he got referee Dave Barry into a historic hassle.

This was the Battle of the Long Count. The trouble started with a long left hook to the jaw. Gene sat down, one hand grabbing at a nearby rope.

Timekeeper Beeler started to count, but referee Dave Barry paid no attention to the watch.

Before the fight, both Jack and Gene had been apprised of the fact that in Illinois a fighter floored was not considered to be off his feet until his opponent had gone to a corner farthest from the downed boxer.

Dempsey stubbornly and foolishly held his ground. Barry obeyed the rules and would not count. Ultimately Dempsey obeyed the rule and Tunney took nine, then arose.

How many seconds elapsed before Barry tolled off nine? The estimates vary, from 14 seconds to 18.

Dempsey and Jack Kearns stormed, hollered, protested in vain after the fight, which was won decisively by Tunney. The Illinois Commission upheld Barry.

The last three rounds of the fight were all Tunney. He was ready to fight Jack a third time but Dempsey refused.

Nor were the Willard, Firpo and Tunney fights the only ones in which Jack raised a whirlwind and landed a referee in a tough spot. There was the 1927 battle with Jack Sharkey, in which no longer champion Dempsey delivered a body blow that might have been low, in the seventh round.

Sharkey, experienced though he was, turned his head to protest to referee Jack O'Sullivan, Dempsey took fast advantage of Sharkey's mistake, and crashed a deadly hook to the jaw. The former gob went down and out.

The Sharkey interests hollered long and loud. It still is hollering and calling O'Sullivan names. The referee may have been mistaken concerning that body blow. But Sharkey certainly was in error when he left the fatal opening.

IN THE CONFUSION NINO GOT A DRAW

In round two Nino warmed up and started scoring with his left but Baird continued to press him. The round was even. Nino had a slight advantage in rounds three and four as he made Baird miss while pecking away with the jab. The left was working better now.

In the fifth and sixth rounds Baird started finding the range and landed well to the body. He was boxing well and the rounds were fairly even.

In rounds seven and eight Nino had a slight advantage. Once more it was the left which scored points for him.

Round nine was the big one for Baird. He sensed an upset in the making and by now was confident that Nino could not hurt him. He drove Nino around the ring with a vicious body bombardment.

Nino went down from a hard shot to the ribs but the referee ruled it a slip. Nino was not hurt and boxed his way out of trouble. Nino came out strong in round 10. He went after Baird at the bell but the Akron Iron Man was not to be denied. He more than held his own until the final bell.

Both men were guilty of butting throughout the action.

The champion's corner protested long and loud that he had been robbed. Jo Carlo stated that there would be no mor Akron fights for Nino.

Benvenuti had taken Baird too lightly The Akron boy has to be one of the strong est middleweights in the business. He also proved to be a much better boxer than wa generally believed. Benvenuti learned thes things the hard way.

After paying Nino his $20,000 guaran tee Elbaum figured he was about $17,00 in the red. He now has a red-hot drawin card in the courageous Akron battler an better days are ahead.

Baird has had trouble with eye cuts bu he came out of the fight without too man mementos.

In the eight-round semi-final two veteran fighters competed. Ted Wright, 171½ Detroit, carried too many guns for Chuck McCreavy, 167½, Youngstown, an scored a TKO in the third round. Wrigh would like action with both Baird an Benvenuti.

In the best preliminary bout on the car Akron junior welter Terry Reed fought a four-round draw with Tommy Kristian Youngstown. It appeared to most ringsiders that Reed outboxed and outscored his opponent. Reed came in at 143, Kristian 140.

Tommy Shafer, 165, Uniontown, Ohio won a four-round decision over Bob Stripling, 164½, Youngstown.

Gil King, 138, Akron, outclassed Joe Romano, 141, Fairmount, W. Va., an scored a KO in round one.

Trainer Charlie Daniels must be given a great deal of credit for Baird's fine effort. Charlie had Doyle in the best physical and mental condition of his career.

FLEISCHER BOUGHT CONFESSION BUT DIDN'T BELIEVE IT

But when you are not free to go home you are always wanting to go back to your home. That feeling goes with the most quiet man, and also the most desperate man, when he can't do as he wants to. Jack Curley never proved to be a genuine sport. I have read different articles in magazines where he said horrible things against me.

I have often wondered if he has forgotten the $5000 I let him take in Las Vegas. At the time, we were in Mexico with this writer, if I could only mention his name without causing a disturbance. That same writer once wrote a story telling the public how kind I was to my friends, because he lived in the camp with me, saw me at all times, and he knows just how kind I was to every human being. I still say that I lost through pressure to a man who could not beat me."

It is possible for a man to have much and still be a failure . . . even in his own eyes . . . because what a man IS, is infinitely more important than what a man HAS!

Some of the most frustrated men in the world are those who seem to have everything. The more they have — the deeper their frustration. This is really no mystery: life is BEING not just HAVING!

The inexplicable loneliness of some "big men" comes from their never being really sure who their friends are. Secretly in their hearts they wonder whether they are recognized for themselves or for their possessions — because no intelligent man is satisfied with the respect of others if that respect is based upon what he possesses rather than upon what he is.

Would people love them or respect them as much without their possessions? . . .

Are they wanted because of the kind of men they are . . . or because of what people hope to get out of them?

A glaring failure of our modern world is that it has taught us how to get and have . . . and neglected to teach us how to live. Training in character has failed to keep pace with science and technology. We are technical giants — moral and spiritual adolescents.

God intended man to have things . . . but He wants man to possess his possessions — not to be possessed by them. Possessions were to be man's tool . . . not his master!

Man was made to love people and use things . . . so often he loves things and uses people.

". . . a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." St. Luke 12:15. "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" St. Mark 8:36.

How may we know there is a God? What was God's purpose in creating the world? Is faith logical? Why did God make men capable of making the wrong choice? Is there a life after death? Will God take us all to heaven?

THE OLYMPIC STORY
FOREMAN AND HARRIS CHAMPS

on a foul. But an appeal by American coach "Pappy" Gault before the International Amateur Boxing Association got the Phoenix youngster reinstated as the silver medalist.

He likely would have struck gold had the referee not made what appeared to be a mistaken foul call.

Another flat note sounded in the light heavyweight class when Rumania's Ion Monea had to forfeit the gold medal to Russia's Dan Pozdniak. Monea had his nose broken during his semifinal bout and couldn't compete in the final.

Pozdniak's title by default was one of three golds gained by the Soviets, more than any other nation. Russia's Boris Lagutin wasn't very popular with the fans but got his second straight light middleweight title with a decision over Cuba's Rolando Garbey.

Lagutin pinned Garbey into a corner for the final 90 seconds of the bout, a state of affairs that infuriated the fans into pelting the referee with orange rinds and other missiles after the three rounds had elapsed.

The third Soviet score came in the bantamweight class, when Valeri Solkov rocked Uganda's Eridari Mukwanga into submission with 48 seconds to go in the second round.

Jerzy Kulej was the second Olympic brawler to retain a 1964 title when he kept his light welterweight laurels via a narrow decision over Cuba's Enrique Regueiferos. The Cuban gained the crowd's sympathy by pounding Kulej along the ropes and raking him with uppercuts. But the crafty Pole evaded serious trouble and counterpunched well during the last three-minute session to gain the nod.

The tainted victory in the featherweight final by the Mexican Roldan over the American Robinson was one of two golds obtained by the Mexicans, who never before had won an Olympic boxing crown. Two bouts before the controversial feather clash, Mexico's flyweight Ricardo Delgado outpointed Poland's Arthur Olech.

Other titles were won by Venezuela's Francisco Rodriguez in the new light flyweight class, by easy decision over Yong-Ju Jee, of South Korea. Manfred Wolke, of East Germany, who outpointed Joseph Bessela, fighting to become the first Olympic champion ever from the Cameroons, in the welterweight final; and Chris Finnegan, of Great Britain, who took the measure of Russia's highly favored Alexei Kiselev for the middleweight crown.

Rodriguez, the new light flyweight king, had to topple little Washington, D.C. scrapper Harland Marbley to gain the final.

Marbley, who lost to the Venezuelan in the finals of last year's Pan American Games, became one of four Americans to pick up bronze medals here. There were two bronzes awarded in each weight class, one to each of the beaten semi-finalists.

Other American bronze-winners were middleweight Alfred Jones, who dropped a controversial decision to back-pedaling Finnegan, in a middleweight semi; John Baldwin, who lost his light middleweight semi to Cuba's Garbey; and Jim Wallington, who was cut over both eyes in the final round and lost a light welterweight vote to Cuba's Regueiferos.

mer world's bantam king, who was managed by Champ Segal. He weighs a hefty 175. Phillie recalls that when he was 16 he boxed Frankie Genaro, late flyweight NBA king, and he has a memento of that occasion—a cauliflower ear. Rosenberg retired after winning a 10-round decision in New York on January 4, 1929, over Johnny Dundee. Phil is married and lives in New York.

Few retired fighters enjoy the popularity of K.O. Phil Kaplan, who is at Jack Dempsey's at Broadway and 49th St. Champions are naturally remembered but Phil never attained the heights. Kaplan, who was born in Newark, N.J. and is 66, had an amazing career. K.O. fought them all as a welter and middleweight albeit he never had an amateur scrap. Before Champ Segal his managers were Lew Diamond and Willie Lewis, the welter managed by the late Dan McKettrick. Some of those who held crowns whom he met were Jack Britton, Pinkey Mitchell, Pete Latzo and Maxie Rosenbloom. Phil met them all.

injustice. He had no quarrel with society, he was no campaigner for desegregation or any other inter-racial factor.

This is not to be taken as a derogation of Johnson. He lived at peace with the tenor of the times. This tenor was all wrong. But there were very few crusaders against it, certainly none of them in the boxing profession.

In Johnson's time a boxer was examined for color. Today there is no such process because performance and class are the only factors that matter.

Be it boxing or baseball, football or basketball, there is no public consciousness of the athlete's skin tones. A Mays is as widely and strongly acclaimed as a Mantle, a Frazier is as enthusiastically huzzahed as a white contender would be if a white contender were around.

If Jack Johnson threw the title and the fight to Jess Willard, it was not through basic chicanery.

Johnson was tired. He said he was 37. He was two years older. He had been fighting professionally since 1895. The book says 1897 but some of his early fights in and around Galveston, where he was a dock roustabout, were lost in the limbo of forgotten and thoroughly inconsequential affairs.

In which direction does the evidence lead? Well, let us say that Li'l Artha was not out to do his best, and did not train to do that best.

I knew Jack and his times, his skills and his shortcomings. He was not a fighter of the cast and mold depicted in "The Great White Hope." And he was not an actor.

loser of only one bout, to Emile Griffith, saw his career come to an untimely end because of an eye injury.

Other names to remember in Philly fight annals are southpaw featherweight Danny Kramer; Unk Russell, old time lightweight protege of Billy McCarney; lightweights Bobby Barrett, Nate Goldman and Johnny Mealey; lightweight Wesley Mouzon; featherweight Harry Blitman, a southpaw who defeated Tony Canzoneri; baseball-named lightweights Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth, a couple of Italian lads who took the names of diamond heroes and did well by them; Brooklyn-born lightweight Joe Tiplitz, who kayoed George K.O. Chaney; Philadelphia Pal Moore a featherweight who beat the great Welshman, Jem Driscoll; the oddly titled Louisiana, a Jewish lightweight; bantamweight Battling Murray; lightweight Harry Kid Brown; middleweight Vincent Forgione; featherweight Lew Massey; one-time featherweight contender Percy Bassett and Stan "Kitten" Hayward, who recently defeated Emile Griffith.

Much ring history has been made by the fighting sons of the "City of Brotherly Love."

WILLIAMS SCORES KO AS BOXING RETURNS TO TAMPA

By Herb Allen

Tampa, Fla.—An estimated 900 "die-hard" fans welcomed boxing back to the Cigar City as veteran Cleveland Williams, 217, belted an overmatched Mose Harrell, 194, of St. Petersburg, into submission in 2:26 of the seventh round at Fort Homer Hesterly Armory.

Williams, who has knocked upon the heavyweight championship door, won as he pleased in the scheduled 10-rounder despite an injured shoulder sustained five days earlier in a gym workout.

In scoring his victory, Williams, who began his career in Tampa back in 1951, passed Joe Louis in the knockout department by registering his 55th. His record now stands at 70-6-1, while the loser is 16-4. Veterans Lou Viscusi and Billy Gore worked in the Big Cat's corner.

Steve Freeman, 136, of Houston, a recent returnee from Vietnam, made his first start in several years by outclassing a game Sandy Jefferis, 141, of St. Petersburg in six rounds.

Three amateur bouts rounded out the card. Johnny Arrizola, 149, and Roger Nichols, 148, both of Houston, traveled three rounds to a draw; Eddie Stofer, 152, stopped Bill Starks, 147, in the third; and sharp, hard-punching Tony Licata, 16, a former Tampan living in New Orleans, banged out a two-round TKO over Houston middleweight Frank Santana.

The promotion was handled by Earl Gilliam, president of Texas Boxing Enterprises, who said he expects to promote another show here before the first of the year. The gross gate for his first effort was $3,089.

VEGAS QUALITY RISES AS EDDIE JONES BEATS LESLIE

By Harley Drummond

Las Vegas, Nev.—The quality of boxing here improved considerably with the 12-round fight in which Eddie Jones, 173, Los Angeles, got a split decision over Charley Leslie, Los Angeles, 175.

It was a battle above the style of so many other Vegas contests of the past year and may bring about a general surge in fistic vitality here.

Ron Wilson, San Diego, 165, got more points than Eddie Harris in a six. Eddie weighed 170½ and flew in from L.A.

Gil Gillardo, San Diego, 131, decisioned Ron Montoya, Rio Colorado, Mexico, in six.

Marcello Cid, L.A., 128, outpointed Josfat Huizar, (Jose Luis) in a five.

Ron Hardison, Vegas, 135, stopped Rubin Chaidez, L.A., 133, in the first round.

▶ Another card at the Silver Slipper saw Scrapiron Johnson, 217½, with the tremendous advantage of 28½ pounds, stop Alvin Carter, also of Los Angeles, in the sixth round. It was not a triumph in match making.

Gary Bates, Vegas, 192½, stopped Johnny Featherman, 185, Phoenix. Cut eyes and lacerations forced a halt.

Benito Juarez, 139, Vegas, outpointed Many Linson, 135, L.A., in a five, and Ron Hardison, Vegas 138, and Tony Porter, Phoenix, 141, went five to a draw.

Art Alderette, Phoenix, 162, got more points in 15 minutes than Jim Polk, Long Beach, Cal., 159.

"GREAT" SCOTT STOPS PARA IN THIRD HEAT

By Jack D. Hopkins

Seattle, Wash.—Fraser Scott, 20-year-old Seattle middleweight, looked like a veteran as he pummeled Joey Para, Oakland, into submission in the third round of a 10-round main event. Scott jolted Para in the second and had hih tottering near the end of the round. When the bell rang to start the third, Scott opened up with a volley of lefts and rights that dropped Para three times, and out.

In another 10-round bout Seattle welterweight Jesse Tucek lost a split decision to Willie Thomas of San Francisco. It was only the second loss in 30 fights for Tucek.

Gary Wyler, Seattle heavyweight, won a six-round decision over favored Duke Spears of Tacoma, and in a four-rounder Jeff Wall, Seattle light heavyweight, won a decision over Ed Ostapovitch of Vancouver, B.C.

▶ Tacoma, Wash.—Tony Doyle, 210, Salt Lake City, stopped Floyd Joyner, Los Angeles, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10. Doyle, who is now based in Tacoma, toyed with his foe until the fifth when he opened up with a barrage of punches and felled Joyner three times before the referee stopped the bout. The fight attracted 1230 customers who paid $5065.

Les Vegas, 145, Vancouver, B.C., stopped Dick Barrett, Eugene, Ore., in the first. Farron Charlton 178, Yakima, won a split decision over Jeff Wall, Vancouver, B.C., in an action-packed six-rounder. Duke Spears, 209, Tacoma, decisioned Nafiz Ahmed, 205, Vancouver, B.C.

FIVE STRAIGHT FOR THE CAT, ● WITH HARRELL HIS VICTIM ●

By Tom Ephrem

Tampa, Fla.—This city's first fight card in several years, marking the debut of Houston's promoter Earl Gilliam in Florida, could be termed 50-50 in the eyes of the Texas Boxing Enterprises president. The action was okay but the fans and money were not up to expectations. A major football game and other sports activities were competing.

▶ Former heavyweight contender Cleveland Williams, itching to get back in The Ring ratings, scored his fifth straight comeback win, a knockout in seven rounds over Mose Harrell. The "Big Cat," who ran up a long streak of knockout triumphs here, his former home, caught his fleeting foe in the seventh with rights to the head and body for his 55th short order, one better than former ring great, Joe Louis. Williams weighed 217, and Harrell, St. Petersburg, 194.

▶ Bobby (Songbird) Williams, 156½, Memphis, was a two-round knockout winner over Billy Strother, 160, Houston, in what was to have been a tenner. The victor, managed by veteran Jack Lazarow, took the rubber match. He's one of the better prospects coming up in the South.

Steve Freeman, Lou Viscusi's lightweight from Houston, having returned home from duty in Vietnam, triumphed in his ring return, with a six-round decision over Sandy Jeffris, St. Petersburg. Freeman, trained by Bill Gore, weighed 136¼, and the loser, in his second pro go, 141.

▶ Savannah, Ga.—Gordon Lott's favorite, a left hook, stopped ambitious Jimmy (Terry) Williams and accounted for Lott's 33rd professional win in 36 bouts. The middleweights, Lott, Savannah and Williams, Jacksonville, opened up well and it was nip and tuck for several rounds. But Gordon came up with his heavy artillery and in the sixth, dropped the Floridian, who couldn't come out for the seventh. Lott, most popular fighter out of Savannah in many years, has been absent from the ring for eight months but the layoff didn't appear to bother him. Marty Fuller's fighter weighed 155, while the loser, looked after by Bob Harris, tipped 157.

Big Tom Cohen, Savannah, met bigger Big John Womble in a heavyweight fracas and won the semi-final by a TKO when Womble failed to answer the bell for the fifth round.

Junior "G," 175, New York, TKOd Lester Delmar, 175, in the fourth. Johnny Cohen, 151, won a four-rounder from Charles Chisholm, 156. Jerry Hayes, 173, TKOd Willie Brown, 180, in three.

▶ Lou Viscusi and Earl Gilliam, in Tampa, said Jacksonville may have pro boxing once more at the Coliseum.

Savannah fighters Freddie Sullivan, heavyweight, and lightweight Jimmy Bullock are serving Uncle Sam, which leaves Grady Bragg with middleweight Gordon Lott the only local attraction the fans go for . . . Jacksonville manager Bob Harris says his middleweight LeRoy (Kid) Fullard is ready to go again. Harris is booking local middle Jimmy (Terry) Williams.

Dennis Riggs, Jacksonville, may wind up under the Angelo Dundee banner. If he does he'll move with his family to Miami.

CLARK KEEPS CALIFORNIA ● TITLE AGAINST GILMORE ●

By Don Fraser

Oakland, Cal.—Terry Lee, 173½, Concord, California's newly crowned light heavyweight champ, found the range with a solid right to the mid section to drop Bobby Rascon, 175, Tucson, for the full count. The end came early in the sixth round.

Lee's title was not at stake in the scheduled 10-rounder. Why no championship fight? Only 1800 fans went for it.

▶ Oakland—Giving away 55½ pounds, Henry Clark, San Francisco, retained his California heavyweight championship by virtue of a 12-round decision over Jim Gilmore, Oakland.

Clark's speed was too much for Gilmore. However, Henry, making his first outing since getting stopped by Sonny Liston, failed to deck his ponderous foe. The crowd was 2850.

George Cooper, 160½, Oakland, halted Chuck Hamilton, 170, Oakland, midway in the fifth; Tonga Kid, 194, San Francisco, KOd Ivory Jones, 197, in the second; Ray Ellis, 203, San Francisco, stopped Sailor Jack Reilly, 213½, Denver, in the fourth.

COBBS STOPS CHRISTIAN ● IN FIFTH AT ST. LOUIS ●

By Clarence Goldstein

St. Louis, Mo.—Don Cobbs, 153, St. Louis, was the headliner against Ray Christian, 155, Winnipeg, Ont. Cobbs, who outclassed Christian, dropped him for an eight count in the second round. The referee stopped the bout in 1:37 of the fifth round.

The action bout of the card saw Norbert Cody, 155, St. Louis, come off the canvas in the third round to deck Richard Young, 155, Springfield, Mo. in the closing seconds of the ninth round. The referee stopped the bout in 0:25 seconds of the 10th, with Young the loser.

Bobby Mayes, 141½, Belleville, Ill., won a split decision in six rounds from Terry Reed, 141, Akron.

Charles Williams, 202, St. Louis, KOd O. Quinn Bynum, 198, Louisville, in 1:57 of the first round. Bynum was downed twice and from the looks of the flab he was carrying around the waist his training must have been sketchy.

Honey Boy Jackson, 163, St. Louis, won a four-round decision over Cliff DeLoach, 156, St. Louis.

▶ The Arena Club opened its winter program with a card of three 10-rounders and one six. The fans witnessed only 13 rounds of boxing from the three main events. Ron Marsh, 183, Kansas City, didn't even work up a sweat when he belted the nose of Roy (Yancy Dee) Smith, 184, Los Angeles. Roy weathered the first round, but the bleeding couldn't be stopped between rounds and he was unable to continue. Yancy Dee was a substitute for Al Mills, Milwaukee, whose nose was broken during training

Billy Novak, 152, Kansas City, was matched against Jessie McCoy, 150, Los Angeles. Novak arrived less than 15 minutes before his bout. He hurriedly disposed of McCoy when the referee stopped the bout in 2:20 of the second round after McCoy went down three times in the round from blows that were invisible.

In the third 10-rounder, Bobby Harrington, 161, St. Louis, against Bobby Rye, 161, Los Angeles, Harrington returned to St. Louis after four bouts in the East. With his long reach he was able to hit his shorter opponent at will. Harrington won a unanimous decision.

Mike Brown, 165, St. Louis, avenged a loss two weeks earlier by winning a six-round decision over Franklin Wilson, 165, Chicago.

● MINNESOTA BOXING ●

By Jim Malcolm

Ben Sternberg, Rochester promoter, has taken giant strides toward creating interest in new local fighters. Two boxers in particular are emerging as local favorites, Pat O'Connor a sensational Rochester middleweight, and Tom Shaughnessy a St. Paul welterweight.

O'Connor was the national welterweight Golden Gloves champion at the age of 16. Now, two years later, he is still too young to go beyond the six-round limit but is, nevertheless, Sternberg's Rochester main eventer. In his sixth pro fight, O'Connor cagily obeyed trainer Del Flanagan's instructions for handling a southpaw. In 1:57 of the first round, O'Connor pinpointed on Wayne Bletcher's jaw to stretch him for the full count.

The exciting match of the evening, however, was Shaughnessy's. Opponent Jackie Richmond of Chicago obviously had more class than most of the other fighters imported to meet the local favorites. So Shaughnessy's victory was that much more impressive. In his second fight Shaughnessy showed that special cool of an experienced pro as he waited for one mistake of Richmond's. When it came, Shaughnessy shot combinations to the Chicagoan's head to knock his more experienced opponent motionless.

Sternberg should be complimented for building local fighters without whom the possibility of big money promotions in this area is remote. Wally Karbo promoted the largest gate in the state's history with Jim Beattie and Buster Mathis. He is rumored to have more in store for the boxing starved Twin Cities public.

Other bouts on the card:

Simon Maestes, 133, St. Paul TKOd Famous Powers, 138, Chicago, in two; Frank Jiminez, 158, Albert Lea drew with Nick Castillo, 157, St. Paul, four. Lee Estes, 206, Minneapolis, TKOd Murphy Hughes, 200, Chicago, in two.

TEENAGER FORD ACQUIRES CANADA TITLE ● OVER MANDELL ●

By Frank Allnutt

EDMONTON, Canada—Al Ford made it look easy in winning a 12-round decision over Julie Mandell to win the vacant Canadian lightweight title. It was scored 59-49, 59-51 and 58-52 by the officials. Ford is the youngest holder yet of a Canadian pro title. He was 18 a couple of months ago.

Ford was the aggressor, swarming all over the Toronto fighter and never allowing him to settle down. This was the first 12-round fight for both men.

Ford has a pro record of 11-11. He made Mandell fight his kind of fight and never let up. Mandell, who likes to box at long range, just did not have the ability to handle the extremely aggressive youngster.

For the opening two rounds the two fought at long range and the Edmonton kid suffered a slight cut over his eye. From then on in until the final bell he worked in close, nullifying attempts by Mandell to inflict further damage. There were no knockdowns. Mandell was rocked in the fifth round when Ford nailed him with good body and head shots.

At 135, Ford is endowed with a splendid physique, powerful shoulders and a reach of 73 inches.

Canada's prospects of a British Empire lightweight champion look good now.

▶ Hull, Que.—Bob Cleroux, Montreal, former Canadian heavyweight champion now making a comeback, won his fourth fight in a row when he stopped Bert Perry, Nassau, in the fifth round.

▶ Toronto—Al (Ace) Breau, Canadian junior welterweight champion from Waterloo, Que. arrived in Toronto with a record of one loss on points in 36 pro bouts. He returned to Montreal an ex-champ, having suffered his first KO defeat at the hands of Colin Fraser of this city. Breau, a skilled boxer, was no match for the right hooks, uppercuts and overhand rights thrown by Fraser. At the close of the second round Breau was staggered by a right. In round three Breau was reeling from an all-out attack. With the end in sight, Fraser unleashed the big bombs in round four, decking Breau four times. Al just beat the count in the last one. A stiff left hook draped Breau over the ropes at 23 seconds of round five. Then referee Bobby Lawrence intervened. Breau was out on his feet and had to be dragged back to his corner.

Fraser has been a contender for the Canadian welterweight title for three years and this was his first shot at it. In his most recent fight in Toronto, Fraser upset Doug Agin, Akron, and fought a blistering fight to gain the decision.

The under-card did little to improve boxing in Toronto. Gary Broughton, Brantford, 157, had a walk-over against Ed Derocher, Toronto, 162, a right hand thrown by Broughton at 2:34 of the second round terminated the fight.

In a catchweight over eight rounds that achieved nothing for either fighter, Toronto welterweight Clyde Gray, 148½, won a unanimous decision over Julie Mandell, Toronto, 137.

Frank Bullard, Toronto, 176, outlasted comeback Ron Edwards, Toronto, 170, to score a TKO in 56 seconds of the sixth round.

▶ Montreal—Bob Cleroux, Montreal, moved into a possible fourth meeting with George Chuvalo. In his fifth bout since his comeback Cleroux won a unanimous 10-round decision over Jean Claude Roy, Montmagny, Que., at Verdun. There were no knockdowns.

▶ Granby, Que.—Billed as the first Canadian championship match to be fought in this city, featuring Joey Durelle, Sorel, Que., was to have defended his Canadian middleweight championship against local Luc Pivin over 12 rounds. In the closing seconds of the 10th round both fighters fell out of the ring. Pivin injured his back and was unable to continue. The three judges and the referee decided to call it 'no-contest.' Did the Canadian Boxing Federation sanction this travesty? It was 'no-contest' even before they entered the ring. The Canadian Boxing Federation is a joke.

DUNLOP BEATS ROUNDTREE, ● NOTHING TO BRAG ABOUT ●

By Ray Mitchell

Sydney, Australia—Australian and Empire light heavyweight champion Bob Dunlop, 179½, staged a storming finish to gain a points victory over American Levan Roundtree, 181¼, at the Stadium.

Referee Vic Patrick's decision for Dunlop met with a mixed reception, but the verdict was correct. Roundtree walked through most of the fight, but walking up without landing punches does not score points over an opponent who is landing while traveling on the backmove. This fools the uninitiated.

If Roundtree wanted to do his roadwork in the ring, that was his business, but the fact remains that he fought for no more than one minute in each round, while Dunlop was doing something nearly all of the time.

Dunlop scored 52½ points to Roundtree's 47½. In rounds, Bob won six, one was even, and Roundtree won three.

Nevertheless, this was Dunlop's worst fight. He edged the points in a quiet first round, then, in the second, Roundtree found the spot with a right to the head. Down went Dunlop. Up at about three, he took the remainder of the eight-count on his feet.

Roundtree came in fast to try to finish the fight but Dunlop went with him in a slugging burst.

However, from the start of the third round Dunlop boxed too cautiously, allowing Roundtree to win the third and fourth heats.

At the end of the seventh Roundtree held a points lead. Dunlop won the eighth to even the score, then took the ninth to place himself ahead.

Dunlop staged an all-out blitz in the 10th round. Roundtree traded punches with him for about half a minute but, being hit at the ratio of five to one, desisted and spent the remainder of the three minutes desperately defending himself. The American clinched but Dunlop punched him off.

▶ Jake Gulino is the new lightweight champion of Australia. At the Melbourne Festival Hall he halted defending champion Arthur Bradley in the sixth round. An eye cut ended the bout but Gulino had the fight well in hand.

▶ At HSV Channel 7 TV studios, South Melbourne, Bobby Daldy, 126, outpointed Les Dunn, 127½, by a comfortable margin in the main eight-rounder. Eighteen days later he met New Zealand champion Toro George, 124¼, at Melbourne and George pulled out a spectacular last-round KO. Daldy had taken everything George had to offer during the preceding nine rounds, and although trailing the New Zealander on points, had fought well.

Then George brought up an uppercut which dropped Daldy like a sack of spuds. Up at eight, he was dazed and a cinch. George landed one right on the jaw and referee Terry Reilly called a halt.

▶ Two importations shared top billing at Melbourne. Italian Vincenzo Pitardi, 134, outpointed Filipino James Skelton, 126. Skelton found Pitardi's eight-pound advantage too much.

▶ The same night, at Brisbane, former Australian heavyweight Fred Casey, 181¾, lost on points to Argentine Jose Menno, 189. This was a return contest, their first, a fortnight earlier, ending in a draw.

▶ At HSV Channel 7 TV studios, South Melbourne, Mick Canavan, 159½, gained a points decision in 10 rounds over Bob Murdoch, 159.

▶ At South Sydney Leagues Club, Redfern, Freddie Wicks, 134, and Con Russell, 132½, staged the most exciting fight seen at the club for a long time, with Wicks gaining a points decision. Jimmy Carruthers refereed. They had met before—at Gympie, Queensland—with Russell winning on points.

▶ At North Sydney Leagues Club Johnny Wright, 149, and Aub Phillips, 150, went into Fight Four of their series, with Wright winning a good one on points, in 10.

▶ The two met again 12 days later, in a six-round support to Dunlop and Roundtree, with the same result. Score now reads: Wright, two points wins; Phillips, one points win; two draws.

▶ Had a good trip to Port Moresby, New Guinea, to referee a bout between Aussies Aub Phillips, 150, and Brian Larsen, 149, over 10 rounds. A good clean bout won on points by Phillips.

▶ The boxers stayed for another week to engage in a return. This time Larsen, more accustomed to the heat than he had been a week earlier, was sharper, and won on points. The score in their series is ven—two wins each, four draws.

The promoters, John Young, Laurie Fineran Darcy Goode and Neil Denson, are trying to put boxing on its feet in New Guinea. Expenses are high. It costs $213 to fly one person from Sydney—and so far they are in the red.

Clay Finds Optimist In Lectures Manager

Despite the fact that Cassius Clay Muhammad Ali is in marked danger of being forced to go to jail, he has found a manager of non-boxing operations who has invested in a full-page advertisement in Variety.

Richard Fulton, Inc. offers Clay for lectures, personal appearances, colleges, county fairs and the like.

Fulton believes that, at worst, he can count on three months of Clay's availability even if the Supreme Court sends Cassius to a Federal penitentiary.

▶ Coming in as a late substitute and after a layoff of 17 months, Aussie Johnny Roberts, 138, lost a close points decision to Australian junior welter champ Norm "Kid" Langford, 141, over 10 at South Sydney Leagues Club, Redfern.

▶ There was a double bill at the Brisbane Festival Hall. In one of the tens, Geoff White, 132, outpointed Russell Clark, 144, while in the other, Simon Templar, 173, boxed a draw with George Sutton, 161. Templar recently changed his ring name from "John Plant."

▶ At Albury, on the border between N.S.W. and Victoria, over 10 rounds, local Johnny Holt, 147, had a solid points win over Melbourne junior middleweight Rod Hall, 149.

LEWIS STOPS STALLINGS IN ● SECOND AT DETROIT ●

By Elliott H. Harvith

Detroit, Mich.—Alvin (Blue) Lewis and Bob Stallings were supposed to fight 10 rounds here, but the highly erratic Stallings failed to see round three.

Lewis decked the man from Long Island with a right uppercut in round two. Stallings suffered two more knockdowns before the round was 52 seconds old. That was the finish.

It was the third, doubtless the last, meeting of Lewis and Stallings, who stopped his man in seven at Buffalo and lost a 10 in McKeesport.

Lewis tipped the beam here at 212 and Stallings at 196.

Billy Tiger, 177, Detroit, got a unanimous eight-round verdict over Art Curly Miller, 192, Mansfield, Ohio. Curly was floored in the fourth.

Frankie Steele, 138, Flint, scored an eighth-round TKO against Gene Gresham, 133, Detroit, who had been on the sidelines for four years.

Why veterans of that type come back, and why matchmakers put them on, are questions not easily answered.

Tommy Hanna, 161, Detroit, turning pro, beat Charley Holloway, 160, Detroit, in the four-round curtain raiser.

BARBER SHAFFER GIVES ● PARTLOW PAINFUL SHAVE ●

By Jim Setzer

NEW YORK'S MONTH THAT WAS

By Jersey Jones

With increased action in Madison Square Garden and its Felt Forum, the National Maritime Union Hall functioning on a regular weekly basis, and occasional cards presented at the Audubon Ballroom, New York fans are curious about the plans of Sunnyside Garden out on Long Island. There has been talk of Sunnyside reopening shortly—and there also has been talk of the arena being demolished and replaced by a supermarket. Nobody seems to know definitely what is what with the cozy little arena, which had been operating with fight cards for more than 20 years.

Veteran New Yorkers in the sock market were shocked to hear that Henry Onorato, 68, known to the trade as "Henny Andrews," had died in upstate New York. Onorato, or "Andrews," had lived in and around Syracuse for nearly 40 years. A pigeon fancier, he had raised a racing flock, and also owned race horse stables in New York and Syracuse. As a fight manager and promoter, he had been active in the original Managers Guild in New York, and among the many boxers who had operated under his wing was Nick Barone, Syracuse heavyweight, who once fought Ezzard Charles for the world championship.

▶ Touted only a few months before as one of the light heavyweight division's better young prospects, Angel Oquendo, 176, Puerto Rico, suffered his second KO defeat in succession when Paul Johnson, 176, Brooklyn, demolished him in 2:28 of round one at the National Maritime Union Hall.

The card, listing a total of 30 rounds, actually produced less than 15, with knockouts abbreviating three of the five bouts.

In a scheduled six, Leon Washington, 160, Bronx, disposed of Eddie Owens, 159, Springfield, Mass., in 1:57 of the first, and another six lasted until 1:56 of the final session when Julio Figueroa, 159, Puerto Rico, finished Norman Smith, 165¾, Harlem.

In a couple of fours that went their prescribed routes, Ramon Hernandez, 162, Puerto Rico, won from Orlando Fuller, 157, Bronx, and Felix Ortiz, 135, Puerto Rico, decisioned a rival islander, Tito Flores, 135.

The 1217 cash customers contributed $3783 to the box-office.

▶ A decision that failed to meet with unanimous approval of the assembled onlookers was a split verdict for Joe Shaw, 147, Kansas City, over Pete Toro, 148, Bronx Puerto Rican, in a generally dull 10 in Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum. Announcement of the decision produced a noisy round of boos that drowned out the scattered cheers. Judges Leo (Bobby Dawson) Birnbaum and Joe Armstrong tabbed for Shaw, while referee Barney Felix had it all even in rounds and points.

Danny McAloon, 147, the transplanted Scot who has been a consistent winner in local rings, decisioned Al Massey, 146, Philadelphia, in the semi-final eight, while Dave Dittmar, 151, Bronx, outpointed Rafael Correa, 148¾, Puerto Rico, in six.

In fours, Hector Matta, 134¼, Puerto Rico, won from a fellow-islander, Jose Vargas, 135½, Bob O'Brien, 163, Freeport, had the better of a Long Island rival, Conrad Wynter, 162½, Brentwood, and Louis Rivera, 151, Puerto Rico, decisioned Roland Cooper, West Side.

No official statistics were released, but the attendance looked about 1200, with the gross recepits probably $4000.

▶ It was an unusual development at the National Maritime Union Hall when not one knockout was registered in five bouts, scheduled for 32 rounds. Two tens and a trio of fours all went their full routes.

In one of the tens, Charley Green, 183½, Greenwich Village, outfought the veteran Dave Russell, 180, Uniondale, L.I., who was returning to action after a year's absence.

In the other half of the double windup, Genaro Soto, 137, won from Ulysses Jiminez, 140, in an all-Puerto Rican pairing.

In the fours, Rubin Melendez, 153, Puerto Rico, celebrated his professional debut by pounding out a decision over Billy Rouse, 158, West Side; Felix Ortiz, 136, Puerto Rico, finished in front of Bob Ackerson, 135¾, Bronx, and Tony Caraballo, 136, Puerto Rico, had the better of Ray Merrell, 140, East Side.

The turnout was one of the poorest yet reported at the Hall, only 919 clients paying $2368 to sit in on the festivities.

▶ For the second week in succession, not one knockout was accounted for at the National Maritime Union Hall. All five bouts, totalling 32 scheduled rounds, lasted their full distances.

Out of action for more than a year, Tom Bethea, 160½, West Side, returned to the ring to batter his way to a decision over Danny Perez, 160¾, Puerto Rico, in the windup 10.

In a co-featured 10, an all-Puerto Rican pairing, Ernesto Ortega, 141, had the better of Ricky Ortiz, also 141.

In a trio of fours, Bobby Hughes, 136, Bronx, won from Winston Noel, 136, West Side; Walter Seeley, 126, Freeport, L.I., continued along his winning way by outfighting Danny Figueroa, 126, Puerto Rico, and Abraham Cabrera, 164¾, Puerto Rico, decisioned an island rival, Ramon Hernandez, 160½.

Business at the Hall took an upturn when 1193 customers accounted for box-office receipts of $4339.55.

Hudson County, N.J., didn't fare too well on the card headlined by Dick Tiger and Frank DePaula in Madison Square Garden. Not only was DePaula outslugged by Tiger in the main 10, but two of his county fellows were beaten in fours, another seemed lucky to get a draw in the semi-final eight.

In the fours, Billy Rouse, 156, Bayonne, was outpointed by Ruben Melendez, 143½, Puerto Rico, and Johnny Gillio, 165½, Jersey City, lost to Bobby Little, 162, Brooklyn.

The draw was credited to Jimmy Dupree, transplanted South Carolinian, currently operating out of Jersey City, in a dull eight with Willie Burton, 176, Bronx.

In the flashiest bout on the card, unbeaten Jose Nieves, 135, Puerto Rican product of the Maritime Union, was a unanimous winner over another Puerto Rican, Bobby Melendez, 134½. It was the first defeat suffered by the speedy but clownish Melendez, and the 16th straight accounted for by Nieves in his second year professional operations. Melendez was twice during the bout, a right dropping him the second and a left in the sixth.

The Tiger-DePaula brawl is covered elsewhere in this issue by George Girsch.

Harry Grayson Dead at 74

One of the Fourth Estate's most prominent sports writers, and a charter member of the New York Boxing Writers Association, was counted out when Harry Markey Grayson, 74, died in New York's St. Luke's Hospital after a long illness.

Although noted mainly as a boxing authority, Grayson also was an experienced and competent observer on baseball, football, track-and-field, horse racing and the other major events on the sports calendar.

When the Scripps-Howard newspaper empire moved into New York in 1927, to take over and merge the World and the Telegram, and brought Joe Williams on from Cleveland to handle the sports department, one of the first things Williams did was to import Grayson from San Francisco, where he was sports editor of the Bulletin, and turn the boxing assignment over to him.

Grayson was what in newspaper lingo is known as a "news hound." Time meant nothing to him, and whenever he wanted a story he often kept going into the wee sma' hours of the morning, chasing the information he sought.

One popular tale concerned a discussion over what time it was. "Gimme the phone," said Harry. "I'll call Greenwich." He did—but it was Greenwich, England, not Greenwich, Conn.

Grayson left the World-Telegran during the '30s to become sports editor of the Scripps-Howard syndicate, the Newspaper Enterprise Association, and he served until illness forced his retirement in 1964.

BASILIO'S NEPHEW BACKUS ● WINS EASILY OVER BROOKS

By Ike Morales

New Orleans, La.—Young Billy Backus, "Conastota Clouter," has appeared in four New Orleans fights and never has failed to put up a fine performance. He dropped a decision to Pete Pugh; upset Jerry Pellegrini, and then floored Johnny Brooks of Las Vegas on two occasions to chalk up another upset. Now southpaw Backus, nephew of former champion Carmen Basilio, weighing 146 pounds to Brooks' 147½, had little trouble solving his opponent's style, punching Johnny at will to score a unanimous 10-round decision in Municipal Auditorium.

Brooks' inferior showing led the boxing commission to fine the Las Vegas fighter $100. He failed to display any zip in his punching and his lackluster performance led the Commission to suspend him until December 31.

"I did the best I could," said Brooks at the hearing. "I know I was in good shape but the guy was too awkward for me and I just couldn't get started.

"Every time I'd move in on him, he'd hit me on the forehead with his left. Besides, I hurt my right hand. I make no excuses. I lost."

Referee Pete Giarrusso saw it 8-0-2; judge Norman Dutreix voted 8-1-1, and judge Ernest Cossart 7-2-1.

New Orleans' star featherweight, Bennie McCall, fighting at 127 pounds, made short work of his scheduled tenner with Bevo Estrada, 130, San Antonio, by scoring a one-round knockout. The bell rang just as Estrada went down in the first round. Under WBA rules, a fighter can be saved by the bell and must make it to his feet on his own as the referee counts.

McCall set Estrada up with a quick right cross and then decked him with a long, looping left hook.

The two scheduled fours also ended in knockouts for local boys against Texans. Al Jackson, 145½, stopped Jesse Lara, 147, Waco, in 1:15 of the third round.

Billy Vining, 145, New Orleans, made a most impressive debut as a pro as he took out rugged Baldo Garcia, 143½, San Antonio, in 2:52 of the third round.

▶ The issuance of a license to Jimmy White, former New Yorker, brings the number of boxing promoters in New Orleans to three. Others already in the field as Lou Messina and Al Kane. . . . Alvin Phillips, New Orleans' most impressive middleweight, dropped a 10-round feature bout to Willie "Buzzsaw" Crosby in Mobile. Crosby had to survive a late round comeback by Phillips. The decision was split.

▶ Lenny Elmer, Boxing commissioner in the early 40s, once a promoter under the New Orleans Athletic Club banner, died recently at the age of 82.

BALTIMORE FANS EXUBERATI ● DiVERONICA PRESSES PUGH

By Joe Poodles, Sr.

Baltimore, Md.—Percy Pugh, New Orle welterweight, squeaked through a 10-round s decision over Dick DiVeronica, Canastota, Dick piled up a big lead in the early rou and looked like a handy winner, only to have Southerner rally in the late heats.

Judge Terry Moore voted 46-44 for Pugh, ju Tom Kelly had it 48-45 for DiVeronica w referee Benny Goldstein matched judge Moo score for the deciding tally.

The show was cut to four bouts due to th fighters failing to put in an appearance.

In a lightweight bout Ron Miller, Washing D.C., won a six-round split decision over Yorker Bobby Hughes. Miller, who won m amateur titles, fought his first pro encounter

Jody Harris, welterweight from Washing fought his first pro bout and had his fe townsman, Rodney Smith, well beaten on come up with a gash on his cheek that cau the referee to stop the bout in the third round

In a four-round heavyweight bout, Baltimor Larry Middleton, 207½, won a split decision Billy Moore, 192, New York.

DOWN EASTERS SEE THREE ● WIN STREAKS SNAPPED ●

By Don Hamill

Portland, Me.—During the past month there were several developments of major interest in New England boxing. The winnning streaks of George Johnson, Pat Stapleton, and Aime Morin came to an end. Al Romano knocked out Morin in a single heat to win the vacant New England welterweight championship.

▶ Dave Beckles, 158, Trinidad, trailing on points and suffering from an eye cut, became an opportunist here when he staggered Georgie Johnson, 163, Trenton, N.J. He charged into Johnson with a riot that sent him to the canvas. Johnson arose but another blitz rendered him helpless and referee Pete Bennett called a halt.

Gene Roberts, 158½, Portland, stopped Dick McCarthy, 153, Somerville, in the eight-round semi-final by scoring three knockdowns. Bob Payzant, 149, Freeport, atoned for three decision losses to Lefty Charest, 143, Lewiston, by stopping him in the fifth round. Charest's comeback streak of seven straight was snapped. Tommy Butts, 152½, Portland, was awarded a second-round TKO over Jerry Wright, 159½, New York, who was unable to answer the bell.

▶ Taunton, Mass.—Charley "Emperor" Harris, 206½, Jersey City, ended the 21-straight knock-out streak of Pat Stapleton, 216, North Easton, by flattening him in the first round. Stapleton was dropped three times before referee Ed Bradley intervened.

The 10-round co-feature stole the show. Isidro Perez, 149, Westfield, came back from a bad beating to knock out Dave Adkins, 150½, Camden, N.J., and Roxbury, in the sixth round. Adkins had Perez whipped and on the floor in the fifth round. Perez never gave up trying and his persistence paid off when he wore Adkins down with a body attack mixed with head blows.

Luis Vinales, 159, New York, was too shifty and ringwise for Spider Freeman, 155, Roxbury, and captured a split decision after eight fast rounds. Pablo Rodriguez, 151, Holyoke, in his second pro fight, looked good in taking a four-round decision over Feliz Guzino, 147, New York.

▶ Portland, Me.—Irish Jimmy McDermott, 170, Holyoke, tangled with tough Leo Richard, 172, Quebec City, Canada, and despite scoring with many, many hard punches had to settle for a decision. The durable Canadian was off his feet only in the second round when a left hook to the body dropped him to his knees. There was no doubt about the winner at the end of the 10 rounds.

Freddy Butts, 152, Portland, scored his second straight win in his comeback by kayoing lanky southpaw Jerry Wright, 158, New York, in the second round. Gene Roberts, 159, Portland, cut down a taller Denny Lavoie, 168, Quebec City, in the second round with a solid right to the jaw. Bob Payzant, 147, Freeport, disposed of Louis (Kid) Falu, 143, Worcester, also in the second round. The opener also failed to last thru the second heat as Charley Brown, 136, Portland, flattened Winston Cook, 134, New York.

▶ Lewiston, Me.—Al Romano, 143, North Adams, Mass., won the vacant New England welterweight title in an impressive manner by scoring a spectacular one-round knockout over Aime Morin, 146, Lewiston. It was Morin's first defeat in his comeback after having tallied six wins. Romano countered a right-hand lead with a solid left hook to spill Morin. He managed to regain his feet but was in no condition to continue.

Lefty Charest, 145, Lewiston, landed a left hook just before the end of the first round. His opponent, Sid Howard, 154, New York, decided against answering the bell for the second round giving Charest a two-round KO win. Paul Hamilton, 142, Brunswick, battered Johnny Flood, 135, New York, so that he was unable to answer the bell for the second heat. Flood was on the floor twice in round one. Bob Payzant, 149, Freeport, handed Don DuBois, 149, Lewiston, his first defeat by stopping him in the second round. Norman Aube, 163, Lewiston, halted Jim Downs, 159, Brunswick, in the third round of the four-round opener.

▶ Portland—Jimmy McDermott, 168, Holyoke, easily disposed of Augie Simmons, 160, New York, with a body attack. The bout ended in the second session. Simmons was a replacement for Tony Lampron, who was denied the chance at McDermott's New England heavyweight title by the Maine Boxing Commission, which felt that he was not ready for the match.

Lampron, 167, Westbrook, appeared in the eight-round semi-final and dropped a decision to Rocky Halliday, 161, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Halliday got off to an early lead and scored a knockdown in the fifth round. He then had to survive a rally by Lampron which came too late to change the picture. By Jose Alvarez

Madrid, Spain—Pedro Carrasco, not surpri ingly, has beaten old man Ollie Maeki from Fi land on points. Pedro officially defended his titl providing the Finn with a severe beating, Ollie forehead had an enormous bump that increase as the fight went on and the accumulative ja bing of Carrasco persisted.

During the third round a right cross put Oll down. He jumped up at three but took the ma datory eight. Round five saw Pedro go down aft being hit in the groin. French referee Berna Maschot started to count and would have stoppe the bout in the Spaniard's favor if he hadn recovered. But Pedro did not want this kind result and although limping, he resumed fightin

Rounds six, seven and eight were the on ones that Maeki won on my score card. Fro then on he was again on the receiving end a fighting only in bursts when Pedro rested h piston-like left hand.

The Spaniard even switched to southpaw occ sionally in order to loosen up and try the utmo to KO his foe, but he did not hit hard enoug to put the Finn out.

The decision was a mere formality.

The champion was unmarked but very tir after the fight. Negotiations are on with Ange Dundee for Teo Cruz to defend his title again Carrasco in Madrid.

STEELE RALLIES TO STOP ● GRESHAM IN 8 AT DETROIT ●

By Leonard LaBarre

Detroit, Mich.—Frankie Steele, Flint favorite, got the chance of his young life when he was called upon to substitute against Gene Gresham, once a contender. After taking a beating during the early going, Frankie came on to score a knockout. The bout was stopped in round eight when Gresham went down for the second time. A left hook put Gresham flat on his back. This bout was the semi-final to the Alvin Lewis-Bob Stallings bout. Alvin stopped Stallings in the second round.

▶CHUCK DAVEY, State Boxing Commissioner, would like to see state titles revived in Michigan ... Matchmaker Don Elbaum was amazed at the comeback made by Steele against Gresham. Gresham will be back, too. Undefeated Ron Harris and Steele may be matched with the State junior welterweight title on the line.

The biggest match for a Michigan title would be Buster Mathis vs. Alvin Lewis.

Tommy Hannah, Detroit middleweight, made his pro debut in fine style, winning over "Baby Bull" Holloway in a four at the Olympia. Tommy was a national finalist as an amateur ... Elliott Harvith's promising young heavyweight, Battling Bob Smith, was left without an opponent when veteran Joe Byrd was injured in a car accident and was unable to go through with the scheduled opener on the Lewis-Stallings card ... Florida's Willie Tiger decisioned Ohio's Art "Curley" Miller in his Michigan debut, on the Lewis-Stallings card ... Henry Hank stopped Manny Quinney in Indianapolis, in round seven ... Hedgemon Lewis got back on the winning track when he decisioned Shelly Lyons in San Diego ... Wilbert McClure was training to fight Bill Douglas in Columbus, but the bout was called off.

ORSOLICS ENDS LONG REST WITH WIN OVER ● OCCHIPINTI ●

By Leo Vollnhofer

Vienna, Austria—After a layoff of almost five months, Austria's former European light welterweight champion Johann Orsolics started his comeback campaign in Danube Park Hall and unanimously outpointed Italy's Giuseppe Occhipinti, a pocket-size Marciano.

Orsolics had the Italian on the floor in the first round but played it safe after stopping a right swing high on his cheek bone, causing a lump the size of an egg.

Occhipinti has been stopped only once, because of a cut, by Germany's Willy Quatuor, in the Clay-Mildenberger under-card.

The Italian was dangerous until the 10th round, but had to concede victory to the former European champion, who won six rounds, holding two even, and losing two.

Turk Cemal Kamaci, who had caused a sensation two weeks earlier by outpointing Germany's welter Conny Rudhof, stopped Italy's Antonio Budano in the fifth.

Willy Karall put up the best fight of his career by drawing with Italy's highly touted Luigi Patruno, light middle.

Vid Stilija reversed a recent points defeat by Italy's former middleweight champion Giampaolo Gabanetti, shading the visitor in an interesting eight-rounder.

Light middle Anton Schnedl stopped Italian Bruno Ruggiu in the fifth round on a cut.

Universal trains d places more men in the Ac- ent Investigation field than any ner school. Or, if you would prefer start your own full or part time siness, we will show you exactly w to do it.

● That Accident Investigation is one of the biggest service businesses today—a $19 billion industry booming to new growth every year. It's safe from lay-offs, recession and automation because accidents keep right on happening no matter what the economic conditions.

● That more and more men are urgently needed to investigate and settle some 22 million accidents and losses every year for insurance and other companies—and the accident rate goes up steadily.

● That for nearly 20 years Universal Schools' training-by-mail plan has been the path to success for hundreds of men in this profitable, fast-growing field—most of them men with no college and no experience.

So there it was. The opportunity of a lifetime and the way to grab it. Joe did—fast. He enrolled for Universal's correspondence training at the mere cost of cigarette money.

HE TRAINED WITHOUT RISK, IN HIS SPARE TIME AT HOME

It was suprisingly easy. Joe simply studied his lessons-by-mail. He did it in his spare time, at home, at his own pace. He didn't risk a single paycheck because he kept right on with his old job while he trained.

In brief, clear, interesting lessons, Joe learned exactly how to step in and start making money quickly in Accident Investigation. And, obviously, that's what he did. But even today, successful as he is, Joe says: "If at any time I'm in doubt, I refer to my Universal books."

Joe Miller's income is unusually high and it is not typical of the industry. He's become a busy specialist in storm loss adjusting. But it does show the huge potential in Accident Investigation—even for men with no college and no experience. For example, here are some reports from recent Universal students:

My income has more than doubled." —James T. Woodruff of Louisiana.

"An immediate 40% increase in wages."—Bill Ruhnke of Missouri.

"A raise every three months for the next two years, plus new car and expense account."—Oscar Singletary of Georgia.

ZURHEIDE'S BODY ATTACK ● TOO MUCH FOR TALHAMI ●

By Hank Kaplan

Miami Beach, Fla.—Still in the learning stages of his career, Eddie Talhami, Canadian heavyweight, took a lesson in body punching from Houston-bred Karl Zurheide, who captured a unanimous 10-round decision from him at the Auditorium.

Actually out of Milwaukee, and a student at Milwaukee Tech, Zurheide could get close to Talhami only with his winging right hook and uppercut to the body. Eddie's left hand would not allow the sociology major to become friendlier. Zurheide connected occasionally with a wide left hook but most of the damage was done at close range with the right giving Talhami a sore mid-section.

Eddie's loss made his record 9-3-0, with more experience under his belt.

In the 10-round semi-final Roscoe Bell, Cocoa, took a unanimous decision over Jerry Wells, Washington, D.C., in a welterweight contest.

John Hudgins, South Miami, showed much improvement as he edged Willie McIntyre, Fort Lauderdale, to a split decision in an eight-round heavyweight contest.

Frankie Otero, Hialeah, racked up his eighth consecutive knockout victory, over Bobby Bro Miami, in a featherweight four-rounder wh terminated in the first round. Otero, a stud at Dade-Miami Junior College, has kayoed opponents in the first round and allowed opponents to go to round two.

The Miami Beach Auditorium battle was a turn bout in which Brennan, Bimini, thoug long-time Miami resident, 162, tried desperat to establish himself a superior boxer over Jo son, 162, Miami, who disallowed Gomeo to his usual pattern. Brennan was forced to m more and jab with greater rapidity than in t previous match. Johnson pressed constantly caught some resounding right hands. No kn downs occurred.

In the semi-final eight, "Parson" Frank Jon 173, Nashville, was caught with a right hand the last round, taking the count at the hands Willie McIntyre, 174, Fort Lauderdale. The ma was spiced with a double knockdown. McIn was his usual defensive self as Jones conti ally rushed him with wild left hooks mis their target. This was the Parson's third fi as a pro, unbeaten in both previous fights.

In another eight-rounder, Jerry Wells, Wa ington, D.C., 145½, outpointed Jimmy L 140½, Miami.

In a scheduled sixer, Earl Blake, Tam 147½, came back from a previous defeat Jerry Brooks, 147, Fort Lauderdale, this t stopping his opponent in the second round.

▶ Arrival of Kid Gavilan from Cuba recalled days when the free-swinging bolo puncher ru the 147 pounders . . . Paul Doyle, Brooklyn w terweight who boxed the best his era had offer and typified the high class gentleman the ring, is vacationing in Miami with old p George Mandot and Ben Seamon.

Ford suffered the only mark of battle, howev a cut above the left eyelid in the first round.

There were no knockdowns and neither w hurt at any time. Mandell was never in conte tion. His time was spent defending himse against Ford, who threw punches from all ang with hardly a letup. Mandell had no chance work on Ford's injured optic which would ha been his best chance for success.

OS ANGELES' TWO Rs ARE EATEN BEFORE 20,132 FANS

By DON FRASER

OS Angeles, Cal.—It was a night of disaster for local favorites Raul Rojas and Mando Ramos at the Coli- before 20,132 fans.

jas had the WBA featherweight lead- taken away by Japan's Sho Saijyo in nale of Aileen Eaton's twin bill.

ando Ramos lost a tight 15-round de- to Carlos (Teo) Cruz, lightweight pion.

ijyo left no doubt as to who was the man. He decked Rojas in the sixth , the first time the tough little long- man had been floored; inflicted cuts both eyes, and finished strong under ure to complete a convincing 15-round on.

e 21-year-old Tokyo speedster, who had beaten Rojas, fought the perfect fight. He took advantage of his speed to beat Rojas to the punch. He built up a large lead, lost ground in the middle going and then turned on the steam at the end.

The pattern of the fight was set in the first round when Sho almost floored Rojas with a left to the head. A combination deposited the localite on the canvas again in the sixth.

Saijyo didn't escape unscathed. He was cut over the left eye. Rojas 26, took the loss without complaint, but did admit he wasn't strong at 126 pounds and would move up to the junior lightweight class.

Referee John Thomas had it 10-5; judge Rudy Jordan, 9-5, and Judge Dick Young, 12-3. Saijyo weighed 125; Rojas, 126.

A desperate late rally by Mando Ramos fell short and champion Carlos (Teo) Cruz retained his lightweight title by the slightest of margins. However, it was unanimous.

Referee Lee Grossman and judge Rudy Jordan favored Cruz by 7-6, while judge Dick Young saw it 9-6.

Ramos, only 19, had a bad case of stage fright at the start and the bull-shouldered campaigner from Santo Domingo took advantage. He had no trouble landing roundhouse swings to head and body.

There were no knockdowns, although the teenager from Long Beach was shaken up by the champion's overhand rights and uppercuts. Ramos was cut on the corner of the left eye in the third, but manager

Rudkin, Pritchett, Anderson, Cooper Win Over There

By JOHNNY SHARPE

LONDON, England—Four championships, none of the world variety, were involved in recent competition in England. The most important title in the change was the European heavyweight championship, which the aged and scarred Henry Cooper took away from Karl Mildenberger, who apparently has reached the end of the line.

Mildenberger was disqualified for butting referee Nello Barrovoccio in the eighth round. It was a mess of confusion and decided nothing to the breeding of boxers.

Alan Rudkin, British and Empire bantamweight champion, was favored with a ridiculous match. He belted one Rudy Corona, of Mexico, an odd import, for seven rounds, until referee Harry Gibbs and the pending populace were bored to distraction and it had to be stopped.

Johnny Pritchett, British middleweight champion, was asked to fight only eight rounds against Wilfredo Hurst, and John Lyon.

The British junior lightweight title was defended by Jimmy Anderson. He beat Brian Cartwright in 15 more or less violent rounds.

It will be seen that what with one thing and another the period of reportage was not spectacular. We need some fights over here but there should be a breakthrough with Maurice Legra and Johnny Famechon.

Much to the surprise of nobody at all, Howard Winstone, who announced his retirement, now is not so sure he wants to quit.

At the end of the Cooper fight there was confusion in Mildenberger's corner as it was thought that the referee had stopped the contest in his favour. The announcer then revealed that Karl Mildenberger had been disqualified for the misuse of his head, and Cooper was the new European champion.

Johnny Pritchett, British middleweight king, defeated Wilfredo Hurst in an eight-rounder at the Anglo-American Sporting Club, London. Pritchett won easily.

According to EBU rules, a boxer who receives an injury by accident can be declared the winner, if he is in the lead on points on his card, if the bout has passed the halfway mark.

Johnny Clark, Walworth, 116½, stopped Billy Brown, Philippines, 116½, in the second. Harry Gibbs intervened when Brown was unable to defend himself.

Mark Rowe, Camberwell, 157, took less than two rounds to stop Larry Brown, Birmingham, 160½. Rowe's body attack did it.

Tommy Carson, Hammersmith, 145, and Malcolm McKenzie, Glasgow, 143½, battled six rounds to a draw.

Phil Watford, West Ham, 171, had to struggle hard to outpoint Tom Bell, Granada, 162, in eight.

Chris Jobson, East Ham, 146½, outpointed Fred Powney, Doncaster, 150, in eight.

Peter Boddington, Coventry, 199, stopped Ulric Regis, Trinidad, 188½, in the fourth.

Joe Bugner, Bedford via Hungary, 202, took 2:47 to stop Obe Hepburn, Salford, 193¾, in the first.

▶ Liverpool—Les McAteer, Birkenhead, 157½, gets another crack at Pritchett's title, by virtue of a points victory over Harry Scott, Bootle, 159, in 12.

The 23-year-old McAteer had his hand raised by former British champion Wally Thom who scored them 59¾ to 58¼.

The early rounds were all McAteer, who ran

MARITIME COUNTRY ON FIRE; ● HAFEY STOPS GARCIA IN 5 ●

By Fred Bishop

Glasgow, Nova Scotia—The Maritime country is ablaze insofar as boxing is concerned. The tremendous revival, with gates going to $10,000, is incredible. It's up to the protomers to see that it stays that way.

Lawrence Hafey, 134, Stellarton, N.S., stopped Carois Garcia, 130, Worcester, Mass. here, midway through the fifth of a scheduled 10, to win his second main event in a row. Hafey had the visitor down for eight at the close of the fourth. In the fifth a couple of fast combinations set up Garcia for one right cross and it was all over.

In a scheduled six, Gary MacNeill, 133, New Glasgow, upset veteran Jojo Jackson, 124, New Glasgow, in the best fight of the night. No knockdowns, but a brawl all the way with MacNeil a unanimous winner.

Art Hafey, Stellarton, again upset Bobby Hayman, 114½, New Glasgow, in a four.

In the opener, Ernie Bigney, 132, Abercrombie, N.S., hung a third-round kayo on Eddie Kid Phalen, 134, Trenton, N.S.

▶ Dartmouth, N.S.—Kevin Hogan, 196, Dartmouth, added another name to his knockout list. He was fed inexperienced Joe Dinardo, 214, Toronto. Dinardo, fighting his first scheduled 10 and with only a couple of prelims under his belt, was no match for Hogan. After two nine-count knockdowns, referee Jack Delaney called the mismatch off in the second round. Hogan broke a bone in his left hand.

The only fight of the night saw Bobby Benoit, 168, Oakham, Mass., upset Stew Gray, 164, Windsor, N.S. The decision was unanimous, but Gray looked like a winner.

Jerry Smith, 123, Yarmouth, had things all his own way as he punched Eddie Paris, Saint John, N.B., all over the ring to stop his man midway through the second.

In the opener, Clarence Johnson, 154, Preston, N.S., scored four knockdowns to stop overmatched Wayne Lettney, 147, Halifax, in two.

▶ New Glasgow, N.S.—Les Gillis, 133, New Waterford, N.S., contender for the vacant Canadian featherweight title, started a campaign he hopes will lead to a shot at top Canadian lightweight Fernand Chretien, Toronto. Gillis had to fight from heart out to keep ahead of Lawrence Hafey, 13 Stellarton, over 12 action-packed rounds, to pi up a unanimous decision.

The semi-final of six went all the way as Ga MacNeil, 133, New Glasgow, upset JoJo Jackso 124, New Glasgow.

Art Hafey, 114, Stellarton, again upset Bob Hayman, 114½, in a wild go that saw Haym take a nine count in the last round, no. four.

Ernie Bigney, 132, Abercrombie, N.S., hu a third-round kayo over Eddie Phalen, 134, Tr ton, N.S.

STENGEL QUITS BOXING BUT OFFERS POUR IN ON MILDE

By J. A. TREE

BERLIN, West Germany—World champions Nino Benvenuti and Sandro Mazzinghi, and European titleholders Tom Bogs, Carlos Duran, Bruno Arcari, Salvatore Burruni and Fighting Mack all were in action recently. They left their titles at home. All won except Benvenuti, who got a draw against Doyle Baird.

Bogs has been the uncrowned light heavy champion of Europe for some time. His one-round victory over European and German light heavyweight champion Lothar Stengel confirmed this. Tom has had 44 bouts without defeat.

Stengel wants no more of boxing. "What happened to Jupp Elze, who died after a championship bout with Carlos Duran, could happen to me," declared the German. He will train amateur boxers and spend more time with throwing the weight and bowling.

Stengel learned little since winning the crown from Piero Del Papa last December.

Karl Mildenberger, beaten by Henry Cooper, has no plans for the future. However, retirement is out, he insists. Offers continue to come in.

Joachim Göttert is prepared to give Jimmy Ellis $175,000 to fight Milde.

Morgan Palle, of Copenhagen, says he seeks to match Karl Mildenberger with Floyd Patterson. Karl's manager, Wolfgang Mueller, says that he will let his beard grow until Mildenberger wins back the European crown from Cooper.

Louis Goldschmidt, President of the German Boxing Board died from a heart attack. He was in his 70th year. The new president is Dr. Dieter Hoffmann. He says German boxing is a very sick patient but far from being on its death bed.

German lightweight champion Karl Burcht has no license for the time being. The authorities suspended him on health grounds and refused him a fight against European welterweight champion Fighting Mack.

Former light welterweight champion of Europe Conny Rudhof has opened a gymnasium in Russelheim.

Helga, widow of Jupp Elze, is still having a tough time. Recently her mother died.

GERMANY

Essen—Christian Schaath's program was paralyzed by 2000. Lightweight Klaus Jakoby beat fellow countryman Rolf Kerstein in a six. Middleweight Karl Heinz Klein beat another German, Adolf Millich, KO in five. Light welterweight German welterweight champion Klaus Klein beat Jean Rolland, France, 10 rounds. Welterweight Herbert Weinrauter beat fellow countryman Horst Albassa. KO four. Heavyweight Herbert Willems topped Klaus Velensek, KO three.

Berlin—Willy Zeller's luck failed him. First his show had to be postponed, then his second bicycle clashed with the final of the Berlin six-day bicycle race in the Sportpalast, a stone's throw away from the New World, where only 1200

THE ANIMAL BEATS FELSTEIN, ● ALVARADO PLEASES ALAMO ●

By Harlan Haas

Houston, Tex.—Bobby Felstein has a certain amount of boxing skill. However, he did not have enough to ward off the persistent attack of battering ram Dave (The Animal) Zyglewicz. The husky blond just kept moving in.

Felstein started out keeping Ziggy at bay with a fencepost-like left jab, and he shot out the right occasionally. But keeping the bobbing and weaving Zyglewicz away is more difficult than keeping a tout away from a race track. His bombardment of Bobby's body made the Canadian wilt down the stretch, and raising Ziggy's hand was a mere formality. Ziggy weighed 188, and Felstein 197¼.

Marshall Wells, 150, Houston, took a six-round decision over Efren Rudy Castillo, 143½, Monterrey. Castillo gave it a good try, and proved to be a willing mixer with plenty of moxie, but Wells was too strong and durable.

Wendell (Sugar Ray) Willis, 171, Houston, outboxed Frank Evans, 170, Beaumont, to get the four-round duke. George Seals, 159, Houston, and Refugio Barrera, 158, Monterrey, battled it out to a 12-minute draw.

▶ San Antonio—Oscar Alvarado, one of the brightest prospects in the South, required only one round to stiffen Lonnie Harris, Bakersfield, Calif. Alvarado is a belter from the word go, and San Antonio likes having this Uvalde native living here. Oscar and Harris each weighed 147.

Sweetwater Willie Warren, 163½, Corpus Christi, stopped Rocky Martin, Miami, 170, in the eighth round. Terry Krueger, 178, blasted out Ernest Montez, 169, in the opening round. Carlos Gonzales, 145, starched Rudy Keith, 146, in one. Roland Hernandez, 118, and Manuel Yanes, 114, fought four even.

▶ Beaumont—Paul Patin finally zeroed in on Gilbert De Los Santos, Corpus Christi, and stopped the chunky visitor in the seventh round. De Los Santos was a good welterweight prospect several years ago, but has been having his trouble with the heavier boys. The left-handed Patin was a little too much for him. Patin weighed 165½, and De Los Santos 164¾.

Allen Moten, 150, Beaumont, longarmed his way to a victory in four rounds over Gil Martinez, 155½, Corpus Christi. James Breaux, 154, Lake Charles, and Harold Brown, 150, Rockdale, came out even in a four. Art Cuellar, 127, kayoed Billy Gonzales, 127½, in the second.

▶ San Antonio—Jose Luis Valdovinos, 118¼, Mexico, hammered out a 10-round win over Japan's Katsuro Takanashi, 119. Roberto Alvarez, 116, Mexico, kayoed Oscar Rivas, 106, Mexico, in three rounds. Oscar Alvarado, 146½, San Antonio, stopped Cassius Green, 148, Dallas, in the opening round to remain unbeaten.

Joe Cokes, 159, stopped the more experienced Buck Thorton, 154, San Antonio, in one round. Cokes is the young brother of welterweight champion Curtis Cokes. Terry Krueger, 178, San Antonio, another great young prospect under the direction of Jimmy Parks, dismissed Bushman Jones, 185, Austin, in the first round.

▶ Houston—Eddie Gray, home light heavy who gained experience on the West Coast as an amateur, looks very good in workouts with Mark Tessman and others. He is being trained by Billy DeFoe.

George Foreman, the U.S. Olympic heavyweight, sparred with Cleve Williams in the Texas Boxing Gym and he has everything it takes to go as far as he desires. A whale of a prospect. It's all up to Big George who stands 6-3, and weighs 220.

Tampa, Fla.—Cleve Williams scored a seventh-round knockout over Mose Harrell, and was hampered by a left arm he was seldom able to use because of a muscle tear in the biceps area. He could be out of action until December. Billy Strother got stopped in the second round of his rubber match with Robert (Songbird) Williams.

Steve Freeman, making his first start since coming back from Vietnam, outclassed Sandy Jefferies in a six. Houston's Frank Santana got kayoed in the second round by Tony Licata, New Orleans, in an amateur battle. Puncher Salvador Martinez is headquartering in Houston, trained by Billy DeFoe.

Dave (The Animal) Zyglewicz working as a bricklayer again when not fighting. His pal Lonnie Nelson, who owns a brick contracting biz, always sees that Ziggy gets plenty of work when he wants it.

JERSEY LIGHTIE MURPHY ● SCORES EASILY OVER RAMOS

By Ronnie "Burns" Bouse

Secaucus, N.J.—Young "Irish" Pat Murph the best-looking lightweight on the New Jers scene in a long time, engaged in his first ma bout at the Plaza Arena and came through great style. He outclassed Juan Ramos, no fighting out of New York.

In another eight-round bout, Rocky Oreng Puerto Rico, upset Mike Mamarelli, Union Ci in a lightweight bout.

Steve Shevlin, 150, Seaford, L.I., won th duke over Herbie Brown, New York, in a six.

Joe Massaro, 162, Amityville, N.Y., outpointe Newark's Dave Horn.

▶ John "Chang" Collura died recently. Char will be remembered as the three-time New Je sey amateur champ, bantam in '31, and feath in '32 and '33.

GREENE, FROM DALLAS, ● WINS WITH EASE AT SPRINGFIELD, MO.

Springfield, Mo.—This oldtime stop on the wa West has gone in for boxing in an ambitious wa in the Shrine Mosque.

Cassius Greene, Dallas, outpointed Wall Swoope, Chicago, in an eight. Swoope refuse to swoop.

Dickie Wells, another Dallas standard beare scored a TKO in the first round over Lee Powe St. Paul.

Middleweight Dick Young, Springfield, ga Johnny Baker, Dallas, his first beating, in a s which went to a unanimous decision.

Johnny Brizendine, Springfield, made his pr debut with a four-round split against Fredd Burris, Dallas welter.

KOBAYASHI RETAINS TITLE, VALLADARES DOESN'T FIGHT

By Joe Y. Kolzumi

▶ Tokyo, Japan—World junior lightweight champion Hiroshi Kobayashi easily defeated Jaime Valladares, Ecuador, to retain his title for the second time.

Sho Saijo, 21, is the first Japanese to wear a world crown in a foreign country. His decision over Raul Rojas in Los Angeles gave the fast-moving featherweight WBA recognition but not the title.

According to The Ring Magazine, the feather championship became vacant after lefty Vicente Saldivar's retirement, Saijo is a new factor to settle the current confusion among the WBA, WBC and EBU.

Katsuo Saito, Oriental feather titlist, suffered from a second-round kayo at the hand of Herbert Kang and lost his laurels to the Korean puncher.

An unexpectedly small crowd of 4500 was disgusted at Valladares' poor performance. Kobayashi, pressed the action all the way and scored knockdowns in the 10th and 12th rounds at Budokan Arena, Tokyo. The Japanese winner scaled 129 to Jaime's 129½. Referee Pope had it 75-64, judge Ugo, 75-61, and judge Morita, 75-64.

The 32-year-old Ecuadorian kept running away and threw few punches throughout the 15 rounds. Valladares apparently has passed his peak. Kobayashi, with whom Jaime drew in Quito, two years ago, sustained the initiative in every round. Kobayashi failed to catch his trotting foe until the 10th session, when the champion landed a short right to the jaw and dropped Jaime for a compulsory eight.

The second knockdown was scored by Hiroshi's left hook after several blows in combination in the 12th. The Ecuadorian was too fast in backpedaling for Kobayashi to finish the dull affair. Valladares should have been thrown out of the ring.

In the semi, Kazumichi Hayashi upset Noriji Matsuo on points in a junior lightweight eight.

▶ Yoshiaki Numata, 132, Orient junior light kingpin, got off the canvas in the opening canto and unanimously decisioned Filipino Rosalave Kid, 130½, in a 10-round brawl at Korakuen Hall. Shuta Yoshino, a former Olympian, drew with Genzo Kurosawa in a bantam eight in the semi.

▶ Kiyoshi Ogawa, peekaboo stylist, whipped Yoshihiko Soma in 10 rounds at Hekinan City Hall, Aichi. They weighed 130½ each.

▶ Korea's puncher Herbert Kang, son of former Orient junior middleweight boss Sae-Chul Kang, became the Oriental featherweight champion, when he stretched Katsuo Saito, defending titlist, in two rounds at Korakuen Hall. Both tipped the beam at 125¾.

Kang, 19, was an underdog in spite of his proven reputation. He reduced more than 10 pounds in three days. The Korean started cautiously with light left jabs. Saito shot left uppercuts and right crosses at short range. Herbert, in round two, went all out for a kayo and had the Japanese backpedaling from corner to corner. Kang's left hook followed by a right uppercut decked Saito for good. It was Kang's 18th victory and 13th kayo against 6 defeats and 3 draws.

▶ Up-and-coming Jaguar Kakizawa, 134½, downed Greg Guirre, 132½, a taller Filipino by four inches, in the 10th and decisioned him in 10 furious heats at Korakuen Hall.

Jaguar's smashing right cross stunned the Filipino, who halted Akihisa Someya at Osaka. In the semi, lefty bantam Akihide Tamaoka TKOd Misao Yamane in six.

▶ Hiroshima saw Hajime Fuji floored three times by a series of left hooks of Yoshiaki Eto in the eighth and the referee awarded a victory to Eto. The KO meant Fuji's farewell to the national middle laurels. Eto, whom the champ had beaten twice was in fine shape. He outclassed his sluggish foe. The new titlist weighed 158¼ to Hajime's 157¾.

▶ National junior featherweight ruler Hajime Taroura successfully kept his throne for the ninth time in succession, copping a split duke over Kenjiro Nakajima in a dull tenner at Korakuen Hall. They weighed 122 each.

Taroura, a lefty veteran, avenged the loss in June, but their return was far from furious and hot in comparison with their first one. The champion proved an excellent counterpuncher.

▶ Middleweight double tenners were won by underdogs at Chiba. Shigeaki Izumi, former Shinpin-o winner, knocked out George Carter of U.S. in the ninth. Both weighed 160. Ken Iwamura, 159¾, stopped Ken Sato, 157, in the second.

▶ Kazuyoshi Kanazawa, 118, easily outpunched defensive Filipino Ely Axinto, 117½, at Korakuen Hall in 10.

▶ Oldtimer Arthur Persley, 134, was no mat for young slugger Tetsuo Furuyama, 135¾, wh kayoed the 44-year-old relic in seven rounds Nagoya. Shinjin-o winner Jo Tamai, southpa junior welter, lost to Yoichi Urawa via a seven round kayo.

▶ Filipino Sulfred Basco seized the Orient juni featherweight championship, as Kiyohide Yazu retired because of an eye injury at Kumamoto the 10th. The Japanese fought prudently an wisely.

▶ Osaka saw an incredible upset by spee welter Hisao Minami, who pounded out a on sided victory over Musashi Nakano, Orient welt boss, in an exciting nontitle tenner. In round fo a fast straight right decked Musashi for a ma datory eight. The victor outboxed the rou champ to win seven rounds and lose none. Th upset winner tipped the beam at 147¾ to 14 for Musashi.

In the semi, Kazuo Nishi, junior welterweigh suffered a knockdown in the opening session an barely drew with Tatenao Mitsuyama in eigh Hideo Kanazawa outscored Tamiyoshi Tanigu in a welter eight.

▶ Having lost a close verdict to Lionel Rose July, Takao Sakurai returned to action an whipped Romy Guelas, imported from the Phili pines, at Korakuen Hall in 10. They weighed at 119 each.

▶ Hiroshi Shoji's knockdown punch in the ope ing round solved the puzzling peekaboo style Kiyoshi Ogawa, weighing 129½. Shoji scored unanimous decision at Fukuoka. Hiroshi gained the national junior lightweight crown wit his rally.

▶ Scrappy Noriyasu Yoshimura, 153¾, dethrone Muneo Mizoguchi, 153½, in 10 rounds at Kor kuen Hall. Muneo had a narrow escape in th second when Yoshimura decked the champio with a solid right and downed him once mo at the end of that session.

▶ After a long layoff Katsuyoshi Takayam lefty bantamweight, was held to a draw by Kazu Tanaka in 10.

BENTON DISMISSES WARTHEM IN FIRST ROUND AT PHILLY

By Archie Pirolli

Philadelphia, Pa.—George Benton, vetera Philadelphia middleweight, weighing 163 pound came out in that calm way of his and tossed o a left jab which jerked Bobby Warthem's hea soon after the bell in the first round. Georg jabbed once more, threw a hook off the sam punch, and followed with three consecutive jab There was no doubt that the Buffalo boxer, 15 pounds, was in trouble.

Benton hit him with a right cross and the propelled a left hook to Warthem's face. Bobb dropped to the canvas and took an eight coun As he staggered to his feet, referee John Fitz patrick stopped the fight.

Warthem, who had beaten middleweights Larr Carney, Harold Richardson, and Paul Rindon, wa disappointed over his performance.

4,000,000 COMPUTATIONS FOR EACH ROUND!

The idea of a dream "Championship Tournament" between the greatest heavyweight fighters of All Time was conceived by Murry Woroner, President of Great Fights, Inc. and of Woroner Productions of Miami, Florida.

The fighters for this tournament were selected by polling the leading Sports Writers in the United States, among them Jim Roach of the New York Times, Mel Durslag of the Los Angeles Examiner, Fred Byrod of the Philadelphia Inquirer, Nat Loubet—Ring Magazine, Blackie Sherrod, Dallas Times Herald—Leo Fischer of the Chicago American, Charlie Hoerter, New York Daily News and George Strickler—Chicago Tribune.

Then thousands of bits of information were fed into a giant NCR 315 Computer by SPS Data Processing of Miami, Florida. The fighters were rated by the world's leading fight authorities on 129 variables per man. The variables included speed, ability to deliver various punches, accuracy, courage, agility, ability to avoid and to take various punches, killer instinct and others. Then the blow-by-blow of every fight these men fought in the prime of their careers was fed into the computer, and each of their opponents was rated. A total of hundreds of thousands of bits of information was all digested by the computer.

It was from these bits that the computer read out a round by round elimination tournament ending with the computerized All Time Heavyweight Title Bout. The computer performed 4,000,000 computations for each round of action.

Participating in the ratings of the fighters were Nat Fleischer, publisher of Ring Magazine and Hank Kaplan, ex-president of the World Boxing Historians Association. The pairings for the tournament were made by Chris and Angelo Dundee, Chris being one of the top fight promoters in the country, Angelo "Cassius Clay's" trainer and one of the leading trainers in the world today.

The computer readout was converted into the blow-by-blow broadcasts by Producer Woroner and blow-by-blow announcer Guy LeBow. LeBow, a veteran sportscaster of real dedication and knowledge, had been ringside at most of the major fights of the last twenty years. He had been at the microphone for radio and TV broadcasts of the classic fights of Sugar Ray Robinson, Rocky Graziano, Marcel Cerdan, Jake LaMotta and Dick Tiger. His performance in the All Time Heavyweight Tournament series ranks as one of the finest in the history of the broadcasting industry.

Dream referee for the series was Ruby Goldstein whose career as third man in the ring had him arbiting some of the greatest fights in boxing. All fights in this computer series were under the rules of the Miami Beach Boxing Commission.

The final results were heard worldwide on more than 300 radio stations and the Voice of America, and received universal accolades from all reviewers.

BOB ELLIS, A REAL COWPOKE

By JIM LOUDON

SAN Angelo, Texas—Look over the list of wrestlers o ating in these United States and you will find Cow So-and-So listed perhaps a hundred times.

Years ago a real cowboy in the grappling game was a ra and he got publicity aplenty through his involvement with sa sores.

But now research will accord to few so-called cowboys auth ticity insofar as connection with horses is concerned.

One of the real riots of the range is the veteran Cowboy Ellis. He sits on a horse as if he first learned to ride when he knee high to a Kansas locust. He bestrides an opponent with the class of a top-flight grappler. And a top-flighter he is, a attested to by his fine record.

"Iron Men" Galore, But Briton Logan Is True Metal

By MARIO MULDOON

LONDON, England—Going back through the pages of British wrestling for the past decade or two, one comes across many "Iron Men." Probably this has been so ever since wrestling began. But of all the "Iron Men" that come to mind, none have made a more indelible impression than Steve Logan.

Steve came into pro wrestling via amateur boxing, judo, and the sheer love of "having a go." His amateur boxing career came to a close when it was discovered that he was acting as a paid sparring partner in professional gymnasiums. The next move was to judo. Joining a well-known club, the London Judo Society, within one year he was on the team that won the national title. From there it was but a small step into pro wrestling.

A visit to Dale Martin's office and a chat with promoter Jack Dale paid off with a booking to meet Arthur Fisher. Steve Logan had arrived on the British wrestling scene. He built up a reputation as a tough guy, not only in the eyes of the public but in the eyes of the men that were matched against him.

Like so many of the grapplers who like to play it rough, Logan has had his share of injuries and scars. A broken leg, a broken hand, cauliflower ears and a host of other mementos crowd his history.

Another South London tough guy, Mick McManus, and Steve became one of the biggest drawing tag teams in the country, and were soon in great demand, being besieged by promoters in Ireland, Scotland and the Continent.

Recently a letter bearing only a picture of him cut from a magazine and stuck on the envelope was delivered by the General Post Office to his London address. It was posted in South Africa.

Despite the rugged methods Steve is apt to adopt in his all-out effort, he usually manages to have more fans rooting for him than any other "Toughie" in the business. To see him surrounded by youthful admirers clamoring for his autograph speaks volumes for his popularity.

In Steve Logan, the "Iron Man" of wrestling, they may see the man they would like to be.

tement in dear old London. Mick McManus, nding on left, with Logan next to him, is intent mauling and otherwise manhandling the poor on the mat.

It was the first national title bout to be staged over the shorter distance of 10 rounds. Prior to Elze's death all title bouts in Germany were slated to go 12 rounds. The fight of the night was the six-rounder between Malcolm McKenzie, Edinburgh, 143, and Tommy Carson, Notting Hill, via Ireland, 143. Carson was floored in the fourth and last round, but on both occasions he came back fighting.

TIGER TROUNCES DePAULA BUT HITS DECK TWICE, SHOWS AGE

It appeared that DePaula could not continue much longer as the bell sounded for the fourth round. Frankie still was shaken and wobbly from the effects of that third-round battering. But at the one-minute mark, to the surprise and joy of his adherents, he found new strength and belted Tiger to the canvas with a hard flurry of lefts and rights.

Dick pulled himself up by the ropes, then shook off the effects of the knockdown. Soon he was in command again, belting DePaula, who outweighed him, 174½ to 167. They both looked weary, but Tiger had stamina enough to take charge and flail away strongly in the last part of the round.

That knockdown by DePaula proved to be his last moment of glory in the contest. It was Tiger the rest of the way. He took command, allowing DePaula no respite.

In the fifth round, a hard right by Tiger knocked DePaula's mouthpiece out. Dick appeared arm-weary by the time the sixth round came along.

DePaula said he had hurt his right hand in knocking Tiger down in the fourth. "I wasn't able to do much with it after that," Frankie explained.

In the ninth and tenth, DePaula tried to launch some sort of attack but was turned back by the Old Man of Biafra at every turn.

It was ironic that the bout, which had been so furious for the first four rounds, ended tamely with no blows struck for the final half-minute of the contest.

Both judges, Mike Davidowitch and Al Berl, scored it 8-2 in favor of Tiger. Referee Mercante gave each man five rounds, but had Tiger ahead, seven points to five, to make the decision unanimous.

The Ring scorecard showed 6-2-2 for Tiger, giving DePaula only the first two rounds, with the fourth and ninth even.

Tiger thus registered his 59th win as against 16 losses and three draws. DePaula suffered the sixth loss of his career. He has won 18 and drawn three times. The gate was an excellent $105,756.

There is talk of a return match, but Tiger wants Foster again. Dick has been floored by Emile Griffith and Foster, and twice by DePaula. That does not bode good, especially for a man of Jack Benny's comic age.

Tiger is a gentleman. His spirit is willing but his flesh is getting weaker. He's just plain vulnerable, spelled O-L-D. It would be a terrible thing if he fought once too often and got himself badly hurt.

Losing His Or Her Hair

If you are troubled by thinning hair, dandruff, itchy scalp, if you fear approaching baldness, read the rest of this statement carefully. It may mean the difference to you between saving your hair and losing the rest of it to eventual baldness.

Baldness is simply a matter of subtraction. When the number of new hairs fail to equal the number of falling hair, you end up minus your head of hair (bald). Why not avoid baldness by preventing unnecessary loss of hair? Why not turn the tide of battle on your head by eliminating needless causes of hair loss and give Nature a chance to grow more hair for you? Many of the country's dermatologists and other foremost hair and scalp specialists believe that seborrhea, a common scalp disorder, causes hair loss. What is seborrhea? It is a bacterial infection of the scalp that can eventually cause permanent damage to the hair follicles. Its visible evidence is "thinning" hair. Its end result is baldness. Its symptoms are dry, itchy scalp, dandruff, oily hair, head scales, and progressive hair loss.

So, if you are beginning to notice that your forehead is getting larger, beginning to notice that there is too much hair on your comb, beginning to be worried about the dryness of your hair, the itchyness of your scalp, the ugly dandruff — these are Nature's Red Flags warning you of impending baldness. Even if you have been losing your hair for some time, don't let seborrhea rob you of the rest of your hair.

HOW COMATE WORKS ON YOUR SCALP

The development of an amazing new hair and scalp medicine called Comate is specifically designed to control seborrhea and stop the hair loss it causes. It offers the opportunity to thousands of men and women losing their hair to bacterial infection to reverse the battle they are now losing on their scalps. By stopping this impediment to normal hair growth, new hairs can grow as Nature intended.

This is how Comate works: (1) It combines in a single scalp treatment the essential corrective factors for normal hair growth. By its rubifacient action it stimulates blood circulation to the scalp, thereby supplying more nutrition to still-alive hair follicles. (2) As a highly effective antiseptic, Comate kills on contact the seborrhea-causing scalp bacteria believed to be a cause of baldness. (3) By its keratolitic action it dissolves ugly dandruff. By tending to normalize the lubrication of the hair shaft it corrects excessively dry and oily hair. It eliminates head scales and scalp itch.

In short, Comate offers you in a single treatment the best that modern medicine has developed for the preservation of your hair. There is no excuse today except ignorance for any man or woman to neglect seborrhea and pay the penalty of hair loss.

COMATE IS UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED

To you we offer this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Trear your scalp to Comate in your own home, following the simple directions. See for yourself in your own mirror how after a few treatments, Comate makes your hair look thicker and alive. How Comate ends your dandruff, stops your scalp itch. How Comate gives your hair a chance to grow. Most men and women report results after the first treatment, some take longer. But we say this to you. If, for any reason, you are not completely satisfied with the improvement in your own case — AT ANY TIME — return the unused portion for a prompt refund. No questions asked.

But don't delay. For the sake of your hair, order Comate today. Nothing — not even Comate — can grow hair from dead follicles. Fill out the coupon now, and take the first step toward a good head of hair again.

Male pattern baldness is the cause of the great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss. In such cases neither the Comate treatment nor any other treatment is effective.
